JACKIE COOGAN, MILLION DOLLAR KID, STILL REMAINS UNSPOILED

Jackie Coogan and His Mother

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Jackie Coogan is a little angel. His mother told me so. He never runs away to go swimmin'. He wants to go barefoot, but he doesn't because he was told he mustn't. He has had only one fight in all his eight years.

Why, if all the little sonybobs in America were as dutiful and well-behaved as this "million-dollar prodigy" there wouldn't be one gray hair in a mother's head!

There isn't one gray hair in Mrs. Coogan's head. She looked like some young movie star herself as she sat there telling me about her boy.

But she isn't. She's a business woman. She has come to New York to sign a new contract for Jackie. And to plan a trip to Europe for Jackie, his father and herself. And to arrange for the exhibition and exploitation of his pictures.

One thing certain, Jackie inherited his features from his mother.

But not his genius. "God gave him that," says Mrs. Coogan.

And then she related the following incidents about the best known child in the world. They give insight into his sensitiveness, his wit, his keen mentality.

Mrs. Coogan is planning a party for Jackie's eighth birthday anniversary which occurs Oct. 26. Patricia Marks, Alma Lloyd, Marjorie Lesser and Priscilla Bird are all a bit smitten on Jackie. "Patsy" Marks is nationally known as his sweetheart.

Mrs. Coogan explained that Jackie would sit at the head of the table and that the one he recognized as favorite should sit at the other end of the table.

"Well, since Patsy's had all the publicity as my sweetheart sit her at the end of the table," Jackie replied. "But have Alma sit on my left."

Morris Rosenwald, Chicago banker, visited the Coogan home with his little daughter, Caroline. She was accompanied by her governess. The circumstances were most formal.

"Caroline, allow me to present Master Jackie," said her father as they met.

Caroline curtsied, Jackie touched her on the shoulder and started to run, calling back, "Tag! You're it!"

In 15 weeks Jackie completed three years of school work under the tutelage of Mrs. Kora Newell. Before then he could only print his name. Now he writes his signature and has passed fourth year school examinations.

He reads Greek mythology and applies the mythological characters to his playmates. Percentages interest him most in mathematics. He likes to figure out percentages of cost and profits on his pictures, promising to be a great help to his father when he grows up.

Jackie gets $3.50 for spending money each week. "I generally get it back before the end of the week," says his mother. "He drops the money about the house and yard while he is playing. Sometimes he goes down town to buy a skooter or some new plaything, but other than that he has no need of the money, and he never buys candy or soda water."

At present the youngster is more concerned with carpenter's tools than the screen. Each day he makes a new ladder and paints it with enamel. They're all done in apple green. He also has started to build a toy house.

Charlie Chaplin frequently visits "the kid." There is a deep affection between them.

Says Chaplin of Jackie, "His popularity as an actor may some day wane but he will accomplish something before he dies that will leave its mark in history. It may be something aside from acting. It will probably be something that will not gain recognition or appreciation while he lives, but few geniuses were appreciated while they lived and Jackie is a genius."
