

The Office Cat

BY JUNIOR

"Whether you believe in heredity or not," declares Horace Manning, "you must admit that a boy whose parents can't work arithmetic is handicapped at school."

Frank Sexton says "we can't all be highfliers—somebody has to stay on the ground and look up."

What is an undertaker. An undertaker is a man who follows the medical profession.

We stopped little Alice who lives down our street the other day and asked her if her little brother could talk yet. "Yes," she replied, "but no one but mother and grandmother can understand her."

Fed Up

Scene: Bush corner. A traffic hold-up owing to a bus having run over a cat.

Policeman on point duty, wearily, to an aged lady (the 137th) inquiring as to what had happened: "Yes, Ma'am, a bus ran over a cat."

"What, really? In the middle of the street?"

"No, ma'am, the cat climbed up a lamp-post and the bus went after it and caught it at the top."

BELLIGERENT YOUTH

Reginald's a scrapper—of that there is no doubt:

He scragged his father's auto the first time he went out.

At every social gathering he's right there with the punch.

And he can kill more time than any person in the bunch!

He did not fight the Germans—but he fought against the draft.

He's smashed all the conventions, then lightly, he has laughed!

Ah, peaceful folk breathe easier when Reginald decamps.

Why, I believe that he could hike his weight in postage stamps!

T. A. Stevenson says another reason why we like to get a postal card is because it doesn't come marked "postage due."

She—"Oh, the monotony of this place! I fear before the day's over it will drive me wild!"

He—"May I come around this evening?"

They are putting motorcycles instead of bicycles on special delivery stamps now, but the speed limit is the same, gargles John McCall.

An automobile ad says the Sunday outing keeps a man up to scratch. It does if he spends the day among the wood chiggers.

A mosquito is a great screen actor—and he always gets by, says Harry Borel.

Different

A furious man rushed into a newspaper office. He was a local celebrity, and had been reported as present at a boxing match.

"You referred to me as the well known lightweight champion," he roared.

"And I'm not. That's my brother. I'm the coal merchant."

When Meusel Hit the First World Series Homer

This shows how the Giants got their three-run lead in the first inning of the second world series game. With Groh and Frisch on base, Emil Meusel hit the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run, scoring the other two men ahead. Dotted line shows the course of Meusel's hit. Groh is shown rounding third, Frisch between second and third and Meusel heading for second. Bob Meusel, Yank outfielder, is shown watching the ball disappear in the crowd.

PIRATE BACKERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Pittsburg Fandom in Different Mood Despite Defeat By New York Giants

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—Despite the fact that the Pittsburg Pirates failed to wrest the National league pennant from the New York Giants, local fandom is in a distinctly different mood than it was a year ago today.

In 1921, Manager Gibson's warriors came down the home stretch with a commanding lead—and then blew up with a report that was heard throughout organized baseball. Pennant hopes faded away with the Giant's rush, and local supporters gave vigorous vent to their disappointment.

Gibson got away poorly this year. A change of managers resulted. From the week that Bill McKechnie became skipper, distinct improvement was noted. From the middle of July, Pittsburg played like a championship team and records show that the Corsairs made the greatest record in the league from that turning point.

The Giants' lead was too much, however, and local fans must wait another year. And they are, seemingly, confident that 1923 will be the scene of triumphs such as were recorded at Forbes Field when Fred Clarke's men became champions of the world.

For the past six weeks, the Pirates have been leading the league in team hitting. The pitching has been superb, with almost victories anything but rare. The fielding has been equally as spectacular.

McKechnie intends to start next season with his present line-up and pitching staff.

Why break up a championship team? he asked. "Would you trade our outfield for any in the business, or our pitching staff for any corps in either league? Is there a better catcher than Schmidt or a mightier infielder—on offense or defense—than Grimm, Tierney, Maranville, and Trayner?"

Local writers and grandstand experts have advanced many theories for the remarkable change that came over the Pirates after McKechnie took charge. Some give the manager all the credit. Others insist that the pitching staff did it—after Catcher Schmidt was brought back to the fold and given charge of the hurlers.

Another faction credits a lion's share to Bob Russell, mighty slugger, who was brought from Minneapolis by Skipper Mac.

Conservative followers of the Pirates have been willing to admit that the individuals referred to have all contributed their share, but they point out that it was McKechnie who patched up the Schmidt trouble and McKechnie who added Russell's 42 centimeter bat to the available artillery. Players themselves have aired their views.

"This psychology stuff may be called the bunk by some, but I'm for it," said one of the veterans. "We looked like bums when McKechnie took hold. Then we start out and break the season's record for consecutive victories. How do you explain it? Easy—

"Schmitty comes back to take the kid catchers in hand and in a few days he has the pitchers believing they can't lose. Russell blows in and gets hit by the home run bug. Tierney goes on a rampage and boosts his batting average to .370. Bigbee blows himself to a similar average. Max Carey and Rabbit Maranville, the two real eggs of the outfit, have their greatest season. Grimm and Trayner prove they are really wonderful fielders despite their hard luck with the bat.

"Then the pitchers go crazy. Cooper, Morrison, Carlson, Adams and Glazner all turn in shutouts or hold the enemy to one or two runs. They get out there and sock'em through, well-knowing that they have a team that can go back and get'em. Look over the records and see how stingy they all have been with bases on balls. There is your psychology again. They took chances, but broke the old pill over the plate."

Fred Clarke, former manager, has been traveling with the team for a couple of weeks.

"Best vacation I could blow myself to," said the Kansan.

Clarke, like John McEraw, doesn't like to make predictions. He seldom talks before a crucial game or a world's series battle, but he did open up a bit here the other day.

"Yes, I think the Pirates will come through in 1923," he said. "A team needs five essentials to win a championship. These are: Management, pitching, hitting, fielding and nerve."

"I think our pitching staff easily has it on the Giants. The Pirates are the hitting fools of the league. And I can endorse McKechnie's declarations regarding the fielding. Yes, they should cop."

One familiar figure may be missing next year. That's "Babe" Adams. The big right hander wants to retire, but he may change his mind.

It is an open secret that Adams over-exerted himself this season. Past 40 he pitched shut out ball when he had to, but like the Mighty Matty of the olden days, he took things easy when he could. His friends on the team have told of the nights, after hard battles, when Adam's arm was so sore he could hardly life it. His perfect control and his uncanny knowledge of batters were his ace.

ATHLETES DEPEND ON GOOD COOKING FOR THEIR SUCCESS

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 13.—Food will win football games, according to the members of the last two crews coached by the late Hiram Conibear at the University of Washington, who believe that the prospects of the 1922 purple and gold eleven have been much brightened by the acquisition of "Ma" Snyder as cook for the training table. Former oarsmen emphasize the fact that during her two years reign in the boat club kitchen neither the freshmen nor the varsity lost a race.

"Ma," Mrs. M. S. Snyder to everyone but her charges, has faith in her culinary ministrations too. "I think I'll give them each a beef-steak every other night," she said recently "and a big baked potato or mashed potatoes and the trimmings and some of my home cooked pastry, except just before a game when pastry will be out off."

Eugene Has Largest Pheasant Farm in U. S.

EUGENE, Oct. 13.—With the recent completion of a large addition to the pheasant pens at the state game farm near here, the farm is now the largest enclosed by wire in the United States, according to members of the state game commission. The pens now cover ten acres of land and will accommodate between nine thousand and ten thousand pheasants.

The pens will be filled to capacity this year, according to L. E. Boan, a member of the state game commission. The birds will be held until next spring, when they will be liberated in various parts of the state.

The policy that has been followed heretofore, that of liberating the young birds early in the fall before the open season begins, has been abandoned because of the belief that to release the young pheasants just before the hunting season opened, resulted in an unwarranted number falling easy prey to the hunters. If the birds are liberated in the spring, they are full grown and wary by the time the hunting season opens in the fall.

Heavy Gold Production In Alaska Is Predicted

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 13.—The production of gold in interior Alaska will probably be considerably larger this season than during 1921, according to Col. J. C. Gotwals, acting president of the Alaska road commission, who recently completed a trip through the Richardson highway and Alaska road districts. No figures are available on this year's estimated production, but Col. Gotwals based his prediction on the increased activity which he observed along the various creeks in the section of the territory through which he passed.

In the Fairbanks district, there is a decided increase in placer mining, while outside interests are prospecting the creeks in that vicinity to ascertain the advisability of bringing in dredges for working the property. Col. Gotwals believes that if dredges are installed there is little doubt of their successful operation.
