"POISON THE GUNNERS"

TESTIFYING in a court of record, under oath, W. E. Townsend, one time member of the Industrial Workers of the World and lieutenant of Bill Hayward, its fugitive president, declared he was a party to a conspiracy to cripple the United States army during the war, by feeding soldiers bad meat.

The witness said he was one of 490 I. W. W. members employed in a Chicago packing plant. It was part of their task to test the canned meat before packing. Instead of condemning bad cans the I. W. W. inspectors passed them.

"Let them poison Uncle Sam's damned gunners," Townsend testified he and his comrades said.

Nails were driven through the boxes where they would pierce the cans, the witness said. Later at Hayward's request he joined the marines, one of a corps of I. W. W. assigned to spread propaganda among the nation's fighting forces. He confessed that he was also party to an active conspiracy to blow up the railroads.

This is but part of the testimony, but it is enough to condemn the I. W. W. organization.

In answer to this arraignment the I. W. W. propagandists will doubtless say that Townsend testifies untruthfully, for the wage that is in it, and that if he committed any of the acts he describes he did so without authority of the organization.

The leopard is seeking to change its spots. The old policy of direct action met with stern reprisal and failed. Now a more insidious campaign has been started, and its promoters are seeking to keep within the pale of the law.

The past history of the I. W. W. is against them. That their policy of destruction by violence has been changed to destruction by undermining the foundations of American government is nothing in their favor, even if it could be established as true.

ETERNAL TRIANGLE LANDS MEX. WOMAN IN JUSTICE COURT

Defendant Thinks Too Much Ado is Being Made Over Simple Shooting Scrape

The "eternal triangle" today landed Louisa Blanco in the justice court charged with assault with a dangerous weapon on the person of Alice Leon. She waived hearing and was bound over to the grand jury and her bail fixed at $1,500, in lieu of which she was committed to the custody of Constable Morley, who made the arrest and preferred the charges.

Prompted by a jealous rage resulting from the attentions paid Louisa Alveria, Louisa Blanco on the night of October 18 opened fire on her alleged rival with a revolver, according to the officers. She missed her mark but Jesus Cudiel, a bystander, was shot in the leg. All three are Mexicans.

"Why All This Fuss?" Just why "all this fuss" was being made over a "little shooting affair" was beyond the understanding of the defendant, according to Deputy District Attorney W. A. West. In Mexico, she told West, when a man was killed he was merely dragged out into an old well where his presence would not become offensive as the sun mounted, while no attention at all was paid to one who was merely wounded. The unfortunate simply poured a little vinegar in the wound and let it go at that, possibly awaiting an opportunity to pay off the score in his own way.

That this was not Mexico was information of no apparent importance to Louisa Blanco.

In Kemal's Cabinet She soon played a leading role at Kemal's capital. At a Turkish woman who had discarded the Turkish veil and urged other Turkish women to do so, as the author of a novel which attacked many of the evils of the karem system, as one who nursed wounded Turks in spite of Mohammedan teachings, she captured the fancy of the women and taught them to read and write.

She became the champion of the new woman movement in Islam, saying—"Without emancipated women, Turkey will never become reunited." Recognizing her powers, Kemal broke all records by making her minister of education in his first cabinet. As a cabinet minister she has gone far beyond supervising education. She has been the most trusted of Kemal's advisers.

NEW METHODS FOR DEGREASING WOOLS DISCOVERED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26—

In order to compare the grease and dirt contents of various wools and to improve wools in these respects, the U. S. department of agriculture has devised a new method of degreasing and washing the dirt from samples. In the course of this work it was found that samples from the side of the fleece are best for the purpose as the contents of dirt and grease in this part are closely related to the average for the entire fleece.

In the method for determining grease, as now used by the department, the samples are washed three times with gasoline, which is drained off through a filter paper that retains all foreign matter. It has been found that this treatment leaves only 0.17 per cent of grease in Rambouillet wool and only 0.28 per cent in wool of the crossbred sheep used.

Dirt is taken out of the samples by washing with soap and water. The wool is cleaned well if the water is at a temperature between 40 and 45 degrees centigrade, which is not hot enough to felt the wool. Results obtained by testing various samples of wool for grease and dirt will be used in planning the mating of sheep in an attempt to improve the fleece in these respects.
