Mesa Park Field Work Discloses Prehistoric Houses and Temples

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Dr. J. Walter Fawkes, chief of the bureau of American ethnology, Smithsonian institution, who has recently returned from a season of archaeological fieldwork on the Mesa Verde national park, Colorado, reports the unexpected unearthing of a most interesting and instructive prehistoric ruin to which he has given the name "Pipe Shrine House," because of the large number of tobacco pipes which were found scattered in a circular shrine just as they had been thrown there during ceremonial feasts, said Dr. Fawkes.

Mesa Verde park was reserved from settlement some years ago by congress on account of the numerous cliff dwellings in its canyon, but later it was discovered that there were as many pueblos on the open top of the mesa as in the cliffs. These have fared badly from the ravages of exposure, and have now been reduced to mounds without walls above ground.

For some years Dr. Fawkes has been active in unearthing and clearing out these mounds of our prehistoric ancestors on the western plains of the continent, and it has been through his efforts mainly that the ruins have been preserved. Excavating several of the mounds that were taken to be natural formations it was found that they were in reality the mouldering heaps of fallen masonry and temples.

Last May Dr. Fawkes undertook the excavation of a mound in the neighborhood of what is known to many motor tourists as Mummy lake. The results of his excavations were as instructive as his excavations were unexciting.

Out of the mound emerged a rectangular building about 70 feet square and one story high, accurately oriented to the cardinal points of the compass, with a circular tower formerly 15 to 20 feet high, like a church steeple, midway in the western wall. This tower is supposed to have been for observation, and as it is very important for an agricultural people to determine the course of the sun, it was probably watched from the sun as it rises or sets, that they determined the time for planting and for other events.

In the middle of this building was found a circular room 20 feet deep and about the same in diameter, in which were found more than a dozen clay pipes, numerous stone knives, pottery, beads and other objects. None of this kind have ever before been found on the Mesa Verde and as all the indications point to the belief that after the rite of smoking they were thrown into the shrine, the ruins were called Pipe Shrine House.

A few feet south of the building, which was not a habitation but specialized for ceremonies, there is a square room or shrine dedicated to the mountain lion, a stone image of which was found surrounded by water-worn stones and other strangely formed stones. A similar shrine is found on the north-east corner of Pipe Shrine House in which, among other objects, was a small iron meteorite and a slab of stone on which is depicted a symbol of the sun.

The cemeteries of the pueblos of the Mesa Verde are situated near their southeast corner, and while the burials in them have as a rule

Chastity Tradition Is Held Reason for Large Number of Jap Widows

TOKIO, Oct. 26.—The traditional Japanese idea is that the real merit of chastity consists in the devotion of spirit and body to the husband in this as well as in the other world. This accounts for the number of widows in Tokio alone increasing annually instead of decreasing, according to the police authorities. Of the 110,000 widows of Tokio, 413 are below 20 years old, 7,500 below 20, and 27,368 below 40. Some of these are frequently victimized and the authorities think it well to encourage widows of Japan to remarry.

been removed by vandals, several inscriptions were found in the cemetery near Pipe Shrine House. One of these was left without moving a single bone and an enclosure with a weather-proof roof was erected over it, so that a visitor can view a skeleton more than 500 years old with food bowls and other pieces of pottery just as they were left by relatives that long ago. This is said to be the first time care has been taken to preserve for inspection a pre-Columbian skeleton of an Indian in his own cemetery.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv. 68.

Bargain Glasses Are Expensive

The cost of glasses does not lie in the cost of the material alone, that is but a small part of the cost, but the examination and then in the preparation of the lenses to correct the defects of that particular eye.

Bargain price glasses cannot have these things done correctly, as the cost would prohibit the low price.

To the People OF Klamath County

For weeks the paid agents of the Union Pacific Railroad Company have been in Klamath County attempting to work up sentiment against the Southern Pacific Company. The Union Pacific attorneys and other representatives were given a full and fair opportunity to be heard. A committee of substantial citizens, whose integrity and fairness are beyond suspicion, listened to both railroads, made an independent investigation, and then concluded that the best interests of Klamath County will be served by the preservation of the present Southern Pacific system.

Those employed by, or interested with the Union Pacific Railroad, now publicly condemn the large number of our leading citizens who have only the interests of Klamath County at heart. What do you think of such conduct. Who are these men who go to such extremes for the Union Pacific Railroad Company? What is the interest of these men who publicly vilify our respected citizens? What is their connection with the Union Pacific? What motives inspire them to go to such lengths? What do you think of a cause that must be supported by such procedure? Will any self-respecting citizen of this county lend his support to a cause that is supported by such methods?

If there were ever a doubt as to the Union Pacific being in the wrong in this controversy there can now be no question about it. Their methods furnish ample proof that their cause is wrong and that the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce is right in upholding the Southern Pacific Company.
