First, Clarence Hill, Fairview, $5; second, Loraine Beasley, Lone Pine, $3; third, Wilber Zetzman, Miller Hill, $2; fourth, Ralph Hill, Fairview, $1; fifth, James Noble, Loro, $1.

The prizes, totalling $16, were contributed by the chapter of commerce. The judges were C. A. Henderson, G. G. Johnson and A. L. Wishard.

Following is the essay by Clarence Hill:

CARE AND MANAGEMENT OF MY CLUB PIG

By Clarence Hill

Last spring during the month of May, Mr. Sexton organized the Fairview pig club and I became a member. I did not have to buy my pig because I had a pig boned Poland China sow that my father had given me last year, and she had had a litter of pigs earlier in the spring.

Just as soon as my pig would begin to eat grain and kitchen waste I began to feed him all he would eat, so by the time the records were started, which was June 1st, he had begun to eat in earnest.

He weighed 43 pounds June 1st. I fed him twice a day during most of the period between June 1st, and the county fair, but towards the last I fed him at noon too. At first I fed him ground oats and wheat, but later I used ground oats and barley instead, towards the last I fed him a good deal of wheat middlings which I found to be a real good feed. I intended to mix whatever grain I fed with skim milk, but when there was not enough skim milk I used part water, because pigs like it better than whey.

I fixed a mineral mixture of Epsom salts, table salt, air slacked lime and wood ashes, and placed it in a box so my pig could run to it. I gave him all the clean water he wanted to drink.

He also had all the green feed in form of pasture that he would eat. I potted my pig every day and it became a great pet. I gave him baths frequently during the summer. I gave my pig all the feed it would eat and it got so fat and lazy that it lay in the shade until about time to be fed and then it would eat and go lay down again.

On October 2nd, my pig weighed 234 pounds, therefore making a gain of 190 pounds in four months, and weighing over 200 pounds before he was quite six months old.

Our pig club had a judging team that judged four classes of livestock at the county fair.

I exhibited my pig at the county fair, and won second place in club work.

From my experience as a pig club member I think that there are six things necessary to make hogs grow well:

1. All the ground or rolled grain they will eat.
2. Skim milk and other kitchen or dairy wastes.
3. Green pasture.
4. Good clean water.
5. Good shelter.
6. Plenty of exercise.

Walter, Agnes and Chester Enman and Phyrne Corum took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Enman Sunday.

S. C. Eastwood is doing some carpenter work for J. R. Elliott.

D. M. McLemore was out looking after his cattle in this district Sunday.

E. L. Hosley is moving back to his ranch. We are glad to welcome the Hosleys back to our community. Quite a number of our Lone Pine folks have been attending the Chautauqua at Merrill this week. They report it to be very good.
