

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Even As You and I

Apropos of the remark of an anonymous cynic, "Man is the only animal that you can skin more than once," a recent bulletin of the Tacoma Better Business Bureau contained the following:

"A fool there was and he saved some rocks,

Even as you and I; But he took them out of the old strong-box

When a salesman called with some wildcat stocks, And the fool was stripped right down to his socks, Even as you and I."

One of the greatest drawbacks all the time, musing Ray Anderson is that there are too many people who will listen to no arguments but their own.

Joe the Plodder says that the stingiest man he knows put extra bars on his fence so the birds couldn't sit down.

N. E. Bond says another good thing about telling the truth is you don't have to remember what you say.

A young lady was visiting friends in the east and attended a little party one evening, in the course of which bonbons were passed by the negro waiter. The girl spied a nice, plump chocolate on the plate, which she started to take, but it seemed to adhere to the dish. Another pull failed to dislodge it, then the darky good humoredly remarked: "Beg pardon miss, but that's my thumb."

Maudie—"What's wrong with the car? It squeaks dreadfully." Jimmy—"Can't be helped—there's pig iron in the axles."

It is not the direction you take in seeking success but the spirit in which you set out on the journey.

Every time some men see a near-beer sign, they cuss.

Evidently

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

"Gonna peddle gasoline?"

Charley Stone says one of the mysteries is how the two words "political" and "economy" ever got hooked up together.

When in doubt whether to kiss the young lady good night, give yourself the benefit of the doubt, gargles Johnny Houston.

Even if a driver is not superstitious, he shows good sense in believing in and observing the signs at railroad crossings.

"Mary had a little skirt: It was in style, no doubt; 'But when she was in it, She was half way out."

BOXING BECOMES A POPULAR SPORT IN GERMAN METROPOLIS

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Boxing has become so popular in Germany that the American system of matinee programs has been adopted. Some 10,000 "fans" crowded the Sports Palace at each of two recent bills, and it was stated the demand would have been even greater had it not been for the fact that the bouts were staged in the evening and many suburbanites were kept away by the difficulty of getting midnight trains home.

Americans here are interested in the outcome of a challenge which Hans Breitenstraeter, Germany's heavyweight champion, had lodged with an American boxer, Samson, who provided the sensation of the evening in his Berlin debut recently. Samson is reputed to have been a sparring partner of Jack Dempsey, and to have made good showings against such fighters as Tom Gibbons and "Kid" Norfolk.

Samson surprised the spectators by showing a speed and an aggressiveness greatly contrasting with the sluggish maneuvers of the native talent. Although twenty pounds lighter than Hugo Podzuhn (175), a barbarian of considerable ring experience in Germany, the American knocked his opponent down so often in the two opening rounds that the latter's seconds saved their fighter from the other eight rounds by throwing in the towel. Breitenstraeter, who was at the ringside, immediately issued a challenge to the winner and it was accepted.

American who attended this program found highly amusing two other bouts on the bill. In one of these a flabby, 150-pound boxer who has become somewhat of a local favorite, as German pugilistic standards go, put up a comic opera opposition to a lighter man, enraging many enthusiasts who had been expecting a stiff battle. After stolidly stalking about the ring for eight rounds with little or no guard to ward off a rain of punches which lacked knock-out effectiveness, the favorite bluntly walked over to his corner, giving up the fight. He was greeted with a bouquet of roses from an admirer.

A Dutch boxer, understood to have a fair reputation behind him, figured in the windup as substitute for the Italian Spalla, who was prevented from appearing because of illness. After keeping the audience and a huge opponent impatiently waiting ten minutes for him to enter the ring, the Hollander appeared, attended by an imposing retinue of assistants. His opponent landed several stiff blows early in the fight, and thereafter the visitor fled in panic from one corner of the ring to another until the towering German caught up with him long enough to secure a knock-out in the first round. The crowd sympathized, laughed, and protested in turn.

MEMORIAL ATHLETIC STADIUM TO RISE IN BERKELEY CANYON

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 22.—A great memorial athletic stadium—already named the "den" of the Golden Bear—is soon to rise in Strawberry canyon, in the Berkeley hills on the University of California campus here. The stadium is to cost $1,000,000 and will seat 72,000.

The new stadium will be built of concrete throughout and will be a combination of the earthen bowl and the coliseum site on the slopes of the canyon.

The seats, tier or tier, are to be terraced into the sides of the canyon. Tunnels and stairways will lead to the seats from a plaza outside which will face a Berkeley street.

"The liberal width allowed for the approaches imparts a feeling of spaciousness to the whole project and removes any impression of crowding or blocking the canyon," said a report issued by the university stadium commission.

"From the rimway, just above the stadium, a unique and wonderful effect is obtained. To the natural beauty of the surroundings—the canyon, the bay, the campus and Berkeley city, is added the sweeping tones of the tremendous bowl immediately below.

"Against the hills, majestic in its dimensions and grand in its simplicity, visible from the campus but not apart, the memorial fits its place—and the place is fitting for a memorial."

The stadium, it is expected, will be completed in time for the football "big game" against Stanford University next year.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 22.—Wireless play-by-play reports of the "big game" of football between Stanford University and the University of California here Nov. 25 are to be broadcast from the campus by the radio clubs of the two universities.

The reports will be received, it is expected, by Stanford and California alumni clubs in cities of California and, if possible, in other western states. The report will be telephoned from the playing field, during the game, to a standing station on the campus.

Efforts are being made to have President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University and President David P. Barrows of California deliver talks on the radio between halves.

INDIANS SHOW BIG INCREASE

13,500 More In United States Than 10 Years Ago, Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Indian race is not a dying one. E. B. Meritt, assistant Indian commissioner says the 340,917 Indians now in the United States represent an increase of approximately 13,500 over the number ten years ago.

The increase has been brought about, the assistant commissioner says, by improved housing conditions and increased hospital and medical facilities. There are 78 hospitals at the Indian reservations and schools, and there are employed in the Indian service 150 physicians, 81 nurses and 70 field matrons, the latter visiting the homes of Indians to improve living conditions.

"We are educating in our Indian schools and in the public schools of the country 69,000 Indian children," Meritt says, "and are asking for increased appropriations with a view of ultimately placing every Indian child of school age in school, on the theory that education, industry and sanitary living conditions are the solutions of the Indian problem."
