DEATH STALKED IN KLAMATH CO. FIELDS SUNDAY

Cecil Caldwell and Antone Bauman Are Killed in Hunting Accidents

Death stalked in Klamath's hunting fields Sunday, taking the lives of two young men. They were Antone Bauman, 29, an employe of the Holiday dairy, and Cecil Caldwell, 24, employed at the N. B. Drew store.

Caldwell had been hunting ducks on the McKendree ranch near Merrill, about 17 miles from this city, with Drew and R. K. Lake. About five o'clock the trio started to return to their car which was standing on a nearby road.

It was believed that Caldwell had failed to lower the hammer of his gun. Neither of his companions were close enough to see what actually occurred.

Bauman and Edward Holliday, 13, son of C. L. Holliday, Bauman's employer, had started down the Keno road from the Holiday ranch on a hunting trip. Near the Van Valkenburg ranch, about three miles from the Holiday ranch, the young boy discovered two traps which he picked up, on the suggestion of Bauman, and slung over his shoulder.

The Holiday boy ran to a nearby ranch for help and Bauman was brought to a hospital here. He expired at 7 o'clock this morning.

A coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Bauman case. None will be held in the Caldwell case, Coroner Whitlock said.

CALIFORNIA WINS OVER STANFORD IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

Cardinals Make Strong Stand Against Bear Onslaught in Fourth Quarter; Score 28 to 0

STADIUM, STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 27.—The victorious California Bear ambled onto the Stanford stadium Saturday and ran into a surprise when the Cardinal eleven, playing with its back to the wall, turned and fought savagely, holding its old foe to a 28 to 0 score.

Eight of the Bears were playing their last game—after three years of history-making football at California—and they wanted to run up a record score of 40 or 50 or 60 points, to give future teams something to aim for.

Stanford Makes Stand For three periods Stanford played on the defensive, only once having the ball in its possession in the California territory.

Bears Over-anxious California seemed over anxious and lacked the smoothness that has characterized its team work all seasons.

WEST IS SPLIT AT HEARING ON S. P. UNMERGER

Wyoming and Idaho Favor Separation; Nevada Is Opposed to Move

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The public service commissions of Wyoming and Idaho put themselves on record today before the interstate commerce commission as favoring separation of the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific, while the Nevada commission urged continuation of the merger.

Representative Mondell took the position that general national interest required an independent Central Pacific in order that trans-continental lines might be maintained, not only in efficient operation but in competitive operation. Keen in the absence of a supreme court decision, the commission would be obliged to "favor and insist" upon unmerger the Central Pacific, Mondell declared, adding that the decision had eliminated all questions as to the necessity of the separation.

In the cross examination Mondell conceded that he was not informed as to the specific rates, and service details, but insisted that the general view taken justified his position.

J. S. Shaughnessy, of the Nevada public service commission, coming to the support of the Southern Pacific's application, declared, "The economic welfare of the state of Nevada is forwarded by the present association between the two roads. The state government desires to endorse its presentation here just as we would endorse the advancement of any other industry we have."

Claude L. Draper, chairman of the public service commission of Wyoming, followed up Mondell's presentation with a study of rates and service details which, in his judgment, made the separation desirable from the point of view of Wyoming railroad users.

For Idaho, Geo. E. Erb, a member of the public service commission, argued that separation of the railroads as now unified would be disastrous.
