

CALIFORNIA DEFEATS STANFORD 28 TO 0

on. The offensive worked well in streaks, but was not consistent. Stanford's secondary defense charged in and tackled well and the Bear plungers could not gain with regularity. So the Blue and Gold turned to the aerial department, and all of its touchdowns were directly or indirectly made by forward passes. Had Stanford been able to colve this attack the score board might have shown an even closer score.

Few thrills marked the game, because the result was certain all the way through, so Andy Smith, the Bear coach, tried to inject a few thrills by letting "Brick" Muller, California's brilliant all-American, attempt forward passes. The crowd wanted to see Muller forward pass and he brought the big throng to its feet when he threw a 50-yard pass towards Berkeley, who almost caught it. Muller tried several passes, but Stanford was watching him closely and only one was complete. This was a short pass to Dunn, who ran 20 yards before Stanford's safety man downed him.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The University of Iowa, Western conference football champions of 1921, closed their 1922 season Saturday undefeated, with the additional glory of a victory over Yale. They were tied for the honor of being undefeated in the Big Ten race by Michigan, also unbeaten this season.

The University of Chicago was eliminated from the triple tie Saturday when the University of Wisconsin held them to a scoreless tie. Wisconsin, the stumbling block to Chicago's hopes, ranks fourth in the conference standing, the Badgers having been beaten by Illinois and Michigan.

The rest of the teams in order are: Minnesota, Illinois, Northwestern, Ohio State, Indiana and Purdue.

It is Ohio State's lowest ranking in many years, their victory over Illinois being their only conference win this season. Purdue kept Indiana in the column of unbroken defeats by a 7 to 7 tie. Northwestern held Minnesota to an early season tie, 7 to 7, by virtue of "Chuck" Palmer's 100-yard run for a touchdown.

COMMUNISTS TO GO ON TRIAL

Advocating Overthrow of U. S. Government By Violence Charged

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 27.—Twenty alleged leaders of the Communist party of America—representative in this country of the third international and the Russian soviet government—are scheduled to go on trial in Berrien county circuit court today, charged with teaching and advocating the overthrow of the United States government by force and violence.

Their arrest grew out of a meeting held in a wooded grove in the wild and dense country twenty miles south of St. Joseph, on the shores of Lake Michigan, last August. The meeting, the government alleges, was the national convention of the communist party of America.

Although the warrant on which they were arrested names seventy-six men and women as having been present at the meeting, only sixteen were found there when federal and state agents, led by Sheriff George Bridgeman, swooped down on the sylvan retreat in the early hours of August 22. The others, government agents claim, fled when they were warned.

A farmer boy whose curiosity had led him to spy on the sand dune convention told the raiders he had seen the prisoners bury something in the woods, and he led them to a spot where, under a carefully arranged covering of fallen leaves, they dug up three barrels, filled with typewriters, duplicating machines, papers, books, letters, reports, manuscripts, brief cases and pamphlets.

On the strength of information found among those papers W. Z. Foster, leader of the 1919 steel strike, and two other men were arrested at Chicago and extradited to Michigan; and Joseph Zeak was arrested and brought back from New York, bringing the total of prisoners "up to twenty.

Because of the expense involved in hunting down and bringing back the fifty-six others who the government charges attended the convention, no effort has been made to locate them. Among the fifty-six for whom warrants have been issued are Rose Pastor Stokes, who was pardoned from Leavenworth penitentiary by the president.

The case here has attracted nationwide attention because it is the first test of Michigan's anti-syndicalism law, passed as a war-time measure, and also the first "red" case of prominence since the widespread prosecutions during Attorney General Palmer's regime. While this is a state case, the raid was engineered by federal agents, and they have been instrumental in preparing the evidence for the trial.

Rathenberg, Foster, Dunno and their associates contend they are charged only with advocating and talking about a change of government, and not with the commission of any overt act. Their arrest, they say, violates the constitutional guarantee of free speech and free assembly, and it is indicated the defense will be that the Michigan statute is unconstitutional when it seeks to deny the right to meet and discuss political reform.

The state, on the other hand, charges that the defendants proposed to change the government by invoking sabotage and violence, and that they were without the pale of the constitution, because they urged commission of crimes to accomplish their aims. Change of the form of government is legal only when accomplished by legal means, the state will contend, and such change, admittedly legal in itself, can not be brought about by illegal means.

The state's line of argument follows closely that employed by Attorney General Daugherty in his injunction suit against the railroad strikers, where Judge Wilkerson supported the government's view that a conspiracy existed in violation of the law when unlawful acts were committed in the attempted consummation of a lawful purpose.
