

Playing At The Liberty

Rosemary Theby and Rex Ballard in

"Across the Divide"

A wonderful outdoor story with Mr. Ballard playing a dual role of a cruel father and the outcast, half-breed son. Rosemary Theby as a fiery dance hall girl takes the part well.

SUNDAY

Now we will tell you about Harold Lloyd. He comes tomorrow in the best and biggest picture he ever made. It is and after you have seen it you will want all your friends to share your pleasure. It's that kind of a picture. Don't miss it—the show will be continuous so everyone will have a chance. But remember our capacity is limited so come early because you must see

"Grandma's Boy"

"GRANDMA'S BOY"

THE LIBERTY

Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy," his newest comedy in five parts, plays the part of a country boy who was afraid. He had no more spirit than a jack rabbit. The other kids had knocked enough chips off his shoulders to start a lumber yard. As a baby he was afraid to cull his cradle his own. At school he wore great holes in his stockings, where his knees shook together. At nineteen he was meek, modest and retiring.

The Boy's most precious possession was his old-fashioned Grandma. When the girl came into his life, and then a rival who was a big bully, the Boy's days were made miserable. Then came realization of his weakness and cowardice. How he goes out and conquers his fear, captures a desperate criminal that has terrorized the community, thrashes the Bully and wins the Girl provides "Grandma's Boy" with a real, dramatic story and a host of opportunities for hilarious situations and "gags" and some great thrills.

The Liberty theatre will present Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" Sunday.

THE STRAND

During the filming of "Barb Wire," showing at the Strand Theatre Sunday Jack Hoxie, the screen's greatest exponent of the real west, handled even the employees a real thrill by jumping his favorite horse, Inno, through a large glass window. Jack is one of the few stars in the picture business today who can be credited with actually doing his own stunts, and during the filming of hundreds of dare devil stunts he has never once been known to use a double. In the filming of this particular scene employees of the studio made it a point to be on hand early, and many visitors were present, even the kids of the neighborhood.

When all was ready Hoxie led Inno over to the big window and with a friendly pat remarked "There it is, old boy, do you think we can make it?" And leading him back to the center of the room signaled for the cameras to start. The horse grew impatient at the brief delay—but with a quick jump Hoxie landed in the saddle and shouted to clear the way. There was a terrific crash of broken glass—and the scene was over.

PINE TREE

Just as "Smilin' Through" was Norma Talmadge's first really big production, so does the forthcoming presentation of "East Is West" mark alster Constance's debut in the field of drama and famous play adaptations. Ever since "East Is West" completed its two year run on Broadway and proceeded to create further records as a road show, it has been held as a prize for some screen star who wished to do something of a sensational nature and would pay the price. That it has fallen to Constance Talmadge is an indication of her new intention to forget the delightful frivolities of the past and to make future products equally delightful in drama, not to the absolute exclusion of comedy however.

Fay Bainter, it will be remembered created the role of Ming Toy in the original stage production. Constance Talmadge's performance is not a duplicate but an amplification of that. Due to the narrow confines of the stage "East Is West" had to subdue many of its entertaining possibilities. Enlargement to the screen makes possible many of the delightful episodes which were merely covered by words and not action in the stage play; and as Ming Toy figures largely in those moments the screen's scope of the character is so much greater.

Sidney A. Franklin, who directed "Smilin' Through" and also this production, has invested it with a wealth of gorgeous Chinese backgrounds and general technical excellence in keeping with what Miss Talmadge provides. "East Is West" will be seen as a First National attraction at the Pine Tree Sunday and Monday.

Oregon Hotel Men to Convene December 8

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—Hotel men from all parts of Oregon are expected here December 8 and 9, for the annual convention of the Oregon state hotel association. Hotel men from Washington and Idaho also are expected to be present. Tourist trade will be prominent in the discussion, according to the advance outline of the program.

Hotpoint SERVANTS

Gifts That Work Every Day

A SURE WAY to bring delight to those on your Christmas list is to give them Hotpoint Servants. Their beauty and utility will be pleasant reminders long after this Christmas is forgotten.

If you employ Hotpoint Servants in your own home you know how practical, how necessary they are. Hotpoint Servants are convenient—they save minutes and lighten labor. They are enduring servants that never slacken their efforts or take a day off.

Their graceful design and beauty make them eagerly welcomed as gifts. Make up your mind to give Hotpoint Servants this year. You will find one to please any member of a family. We advise early selection while our stock is complete.

Where will the gifts you give this Christmas be next May?

For the Bride of the Year—a Hotpoint Urn-type Percolator with Sugar Creamer and Tray. Beautiful in design and finish. A gift reflecting good taste and individuality in selection.
