Christmas bazaars have taken the time and attention of the city's women-folk this week. Three of the church bazaars have been held up to date. Friday and Saturday of next week the Catholic ladies will stage their big fair and bazaar. Many clubs have postponed their meetings until after the holidays to enable their members to prepare for Christmas. The big Christmas opening Tuesday under direction of W. O. Smith, originator of the idea, will be a gala night here with a band concert at 7:30.

The band benefit dance last night at the Scandinavian hall proved a gratifying success to members of the organization, who have worked hard to form a community band.

The St. Paul's Episcopal bazaar proved a big success this year, all food and articles of fancy work being sold during the day. A charming feature of the day was the tea served by members of the guild to visitors at their sale. This affair was held on Tuesday, and on Thursday the Presbyterian ladies sold their Christmas wares. Last night, after the day's sale, a turkey supper was served in the basement of the Presbyterian church to a large number of patrons. A third bazaar is in progress today, under the direction of the Methodist church women. Many lovely things have been made by the women who have worked all through the summer months preparing for the Christmas holidays.

Tuesday night of this week, Mrs. W. T. Lee entertained a small group of friends at her home in the Lee Apartments, the occasion being her husband's birthday. Cards and music were the features of the evening's entertainment.

The Happy Hour Needle Work club will meet next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Edward Jones, on Johnson avenue.

The Wednesday Auction Bridge club, which was to have met this week at the home of Mrs. Lewis Gerber, has been postponed and will not meet until early in January.

Mrs. J. F. Goeller was hostess on Wednesday of this week to the Art Needlwork club at her home on South Riverside. The afternoon was spent in sewing. Late in the day a luncheon was served to the guests by Mrs. Goeller, assisted by Mrs. R. E. Geary.

Monday night of this week the Klamath Falls chapter of the D. A. R. met at the home of Mrs. Charles Wood Eberlein for their monthly business and social gathering. A very pleasant evening was spent with Mrs. Eberlein, and a great deal of work was attended to at this time. The D. A. R.'s here are taking up the subject of conservation and thrift in connection with the forestry service and an effort will be made to arouse interest in the semi-centennial celebration of Arbor day, which falls this year the 8th birthday of the man who originated the idea of Arbor day will be celebrated at the same time. Mrs. Eberlein, one of the most active members of the local chapter of D. A. R., has been made chairman of the state conservation and thrift committee and her work will be to plan and outline the conservation and thrift programs for the 19 chapters of the D. A. R. in Oregon. This appointment also entitles her to be a member of the national committee and will necessitate her attending the D. A. R. gathering at Washington D. C. in 1923.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Fountain, old pioneers of Klamath county, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at their home on Pine street. An reception, in charge of Mrs. A. F. Glover and Mrs. Sarah Gowan assisted by Mrs. Addie Walker was tendered them. Friends of the couple, who have known them for the greater part of the 34 years of their residence in Klamath Falls, called during the afternoon to offer their congratulations and many lovely flowers were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Fountain.

Mrs. B. L. Hardenbrook entertained on Wednesday evening with a novel holiday party at her apartment in the White building. The hostess provided amusement for her guests in form of games, played until a late hour. At the close of the games a supper was served by Mrs. Hardenbrook, during which each guest was presented with a corsage of violets from a brilliantly lighted Christmas tree forming the center piece for the dining table. Mrs. Fred Schallock won honors for winning the greatest number of games. The guests were: Messieurs A. E. Whitman, H. W. Henderson, Leslie Rogers, G. H. Jester, G. W. Houston, Fred Schallock, R. E. Dewege, and the hostess.

The musical entertainment held at Mt. Laki church December 6 was a decided success and was attended by a large number of Klamath folk as well as by a great part of the people living in the Mt. Laki district. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McPherson, Misses Geneva Glenn and Gladys Metzker were Klamath people who assisted with the program.

Announcements are being received here from Los Angeles of the marriage of Richard Byard Ramsey to Miss Helen Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kenneth Watson. The wedding was on December 5, and took place at the home of the bride. Ramsey is well known here, having attended school in this city and later as a member of the Reese River Flume company spent several months here installing blow-pipe systems in the big mills of the country.

Mrs. Charles Thomas, of Mills Addition, was tendered a delightful surprise by a group of her intimate friends Thursday night, the inspiration for the occasion being her birthday. Those taking part in the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. James J. Farber, Mr. and Mrs. Reimie, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Danneride, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Hamel, Miss Ruby Danneride and Roland E. McPherson.

TODAY'S FASHIONS

Blouses Match Hats

The latest style is to have your hat match the blouse or the blouse section of your new winter suit. Little round narrow-brimmed soft hats or turbans are often found in this combination, and either Paisley patterned material or bandana handkerchiefs are the popular materials. Another scheme is to have the coat lined with the material from which the blouse is made.

Paris—Neck furs have undergone a curious change. While animal scarfs are still in good taste today, the newer neckpieces extend downward in back till they are of the proportions and shape of a small cape. Two kinds of fur are not permissible in a neckpiece, thought several kinds may be used on a coat.

Paris—There is today a recurrence of veils as first aids to military. They may be rolled with an edge like a Turk's turban or they may be embroidered or simply of the sheer sort bordered with folds. There are veils of blonde and black lace, also delightfully decorated with bands of metal.

London—Linings for evening cloaks are still sumptuous lengths of brocade, but linings for the less dressy outer garments have toned down considerably from the wild colors of the past season. Printed satins are the favorites today in shades of gray, blue or sand.

London—Still another recent idea in evening bandeaux is the straight, narrow band of imitation sea shells. Worn with an ocean green costume, foaming into lace. It is especially attractive. The shells are very tiny and of the scallop variety, made of stiff bits of varnished ribbon.

New York—Varnished flowers and fruit, translucent and of gay colorings are used on the hats now being shown in several smart shops. These gay and glistening garlands of cherries and grapes indiscriminately mingled with red roses may be seen in little unexpected sprays on the sober satin hats of black and dark brown, even on those which are tailored in style.

PRACTICAL GIFTS

FURNITURE of quality is one of the most practical gifts that you can offer. No home, whether luxurious or simple in its appointments, but what will welcome an additional piece of

Quality Furniture

My stock is selected to meet the needs of Klamath County people but only merchandise of good material and good workmanship is considered by me when buying. The lower priced articles are not "cheap" but are low priced because of simplicity of design and finish rather than because of poor material and construction.

In buying I invite comparison of merchandise and prices. Study your mail order catalog, if you have one, visit other stores and then come to my place, let me show you how I can meet your ideas in quality and price.

Virgin Wool Blanket
China Set
Table Linen
Linenware
Bedroom Rocker
Leather Covered Chair
Kitchen Cabinet
Percolator

With me no piece of furniture is sold until it is placed in the home AND IS SATISFACTORY to the purchaser. When you buy here you buy both quality and service. If the buyer is not satisfied in both we do not consider we have made a sale.

There are many little things which can be had here that make "Gifts that endure." Let me suggest some that may interest:
