

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

BILLING AND COOKING
He met a fair maiden and soon was wooing.

He told her he loved her, the words softly cooing.
He suggested they marry, she felt for the plan.

On the first of the month the billing began.

Slang is talk shorthand.

E. M. Chilcote says the man who is so busy attending to civic duties that he can't take his family out riding isn't much of a citizen.

Used To It

"Need any more talent for your moving picture dramas?"
"We might use you. Had any experience at acting without audiences?"
"Acting without audiences is what brought me here."

E. A. Geary says when the girl keeps on calling your attention to what a lovely ring the moon has grab your hat and go home.

Joe the Plodder says some fellows grab a stool when there's a piano to be moved.

Some one shot a bootlegger the other day. What saved his life was that the bullet struck a bunch of labels in his breast pocket.

Try This on Yours

Mother—"Did that man kiss you last night?"
Daughter—"You don't suppose he drove 99 miles to hear me sing?"

A. M. Worden concludes that the cheap optimist is the chap who goes to a banquet to get something to eat.

Clyde Brandenburg says the main trouble with politics is there are too many politicians in it.

Money: A medium of exchange formerly used by the poor; now seldom seen. Definition by Marion Nise.

Motorist, Spare That Chicken!
The well known Go Slow, Danger—School Ahead sign so familiar to motorists was apparently the basis for a novel and courteous warning which strikes the eye of motor car drivers approaching a farm on a state highway in the Catskills. It reads:

Danger!

Please Drive Slowly
We Thank You
The Chickens Thank You

Tell a girl that her newly bobbed hair is becoming and she thinks you are lying, and if you tell her that it isn't, she stops speaking to you. Life ever has a deep problem.

L. J. Bean says sometimes he has a strange feeling that there is more profit in feeding fishworms to chickens than in feeding them to fish.

When the savage red man lived in a wigwam he paid no rent. What was it, then, that made him savage? asks Rex Black.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON IN AND FOR KLAMATH COUNTY.

MARIE GASKINS, Plaintiff vs. LEONARD GASKINS, Defendant.

To LEONARD GASKINS, Defendant.

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON, You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint on file in the above entitled suit, on or before the 6th of January 1923, that being the day prescribed in the order of the Court for the publication of this summons, and if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in her complaint, viz: for the dissolution of the bonds of matrimony now and heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion for more than one year last past, and immediately preceding the filing of the complaint herein.

This summons is served upon you by order of publication thereof in the Klamath Evening Herald, a newspaper printed, published and of general circulation in Klamath County, Oregon, once each week for six consecutive and successive weeks, the first publication thereof being on the 24th day of November, 1922, and the last publication being on the 28th day of December 1922.

Done by order of the Hon. A. L. Leavitt, Judge of the above entitled court under date of the 23rd day of November, 1922.

THE LIBERTY

Henry B. Walthall has the character lead in "The Long Chance" at the Liberty Theatre today.

Ralph Graves has the romantic leading role.

Marjorie Daw is opposite him in a "triple" role, portraying one character and another character at two ages twenty years apart.

Grace Marvin, William Bertram, Jack Curtis, Boyd Irwin, Leonard Clapham, George A. Williams, Margaret Cullington and Mal Wells have other principal roles.

Jack Conway directed this imposing aggregation of famous players. The scenario was worked from was prepared by Raymond Schrock, supervisor of the Universal City scenario department. The story itself is by Peter B. Kyne.

"The Long Chance" pictures the old West as it really was. The story is dramatic, but there are no fast moving squads of drunken cowboys and no senseless gambols of reckless posers. The locale is the Mojave desert in gold mining days and twenty years later, and the story is developed logically without lessening the "hurray" element in the popular conception of the West, according to those who have viewed the picture.

THE STRAND

Mitchell Lewis' newest-starring vehicle, "King Spruce," the photoplay of Holman Day's famous story of the Maine woods, produced by the Dial Film company, which comes to the Strand theatre tonight is a gripping human drama that holds the interest of the spectator from first to last by its stirring heart appeal, rather than by a series of thrills injected to excite the nerves of audiences. But many a scene in the new W. W. Hodgkinson release, nevertheless, raises a supreme thrill of sheer excitement.

The most thrilling situation and one in which the star gets his fill of heroics is the rescue of a lumberman from under a moving train. Joe Ray, a prominent character actor who appears in the role of Tommy Eye, a teamster with a burning hatred for prohibition, is hurled under a flat car after a furious fight with Calin McLeod (Arthur Millette). A moment later the train starts, and Dwight Wade (Mitchell Lewis) taking in the situation at a glance, rushes to Tommy's rescue and drags him to safety in the nick of time.

Also country store tonight, 15 prizes given away at 8:30.

PINE TREE

A notable cast appears in "Fools First," Marshall Neilan's latest production for First National release, which is coming to the Pine Tree Theatre today. And it is one of the largest seen recently in any film, including players who have been starred in their own productions in the past.

The story of the film was suggested by Hugh McNair Kahler's "Fools First," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. By special arrangement with Marion Fairfax, who has been responsible for many Neilan scenarios, this noted author-producer wrote the script of the story, which is considered one of the most unusual of the year.

"Fools First" was directed in its entirety by Neilan in Hollywood and San Francisco. The plot is perhaps the most dramatic theme yet offered by this producer. The story as portrayed on the screen presents unusual situations created by Neilan and effectively worked into the plot.

Among its novelties are scenes actually taken within the First National Bank of Hollywood, the famous St. Francis hotel in San Francisco, and San Quentin penitentiary, California.
