

The Office Cat

BY JUNIOR

CHRISTMAS, 1922
'Twas the night before Christmas
When all through the house,
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a mouse.

About all we expect in return is the usual:
Yellow and pink checkered necktie that we wouldn't wear to a bull fight.

A box of "El Cabbageo de Punks" with which we can later insult the janitor.

Two or three "false front" silk shirts in colors fit for a lockey.

And perhaps a dozen pair of "Puncture" brand silk socks— "guaranteed to be shot in heel in six months or your money refunded."

If we carried a lot of insurance on our life, here are some of the gifts we would make:

For the butcher, whose hand we have bought time and time again, a scale with enough electricity charging through it to knock him on his ear every time he as much as put a finger on it.

For the milkman, a pair of wings, so we wouldn't have to listen to his horse-like foot falls coming up the back stairs in the wee hours of the morn.

For the janitor—A pocket radio outfit, so we could locate him once in a while.

For the family upstairs: A steam trip-hammer to enable them to shake the foundations of the building in more efficient style.

For our neighbor's cat—A healthy dose of chloroform. It sleeps all day and warbles all night with nary a let-up.

And last but not least, for friend wife—"Maxim Silencer", to be put on at regular intervals so she could come up for air once in a while.

Ed Vannice says time is fleeting, but many people try to beat it.

A colored pastor announced to his congregation the following subject: "Brethren and sisters, I've gwine to preach a powerful sermon dis mornin'. I've gwine to define the undefinable, I've gwine to explain the unexplainable, and I've gwine to unscrew the unscrutable."

Jack Kimball says don't judge a man by his appearance. He may be supporting an automobile.

Your Goal

"There is no goal that is as near as it appears to the hopeful or as remote as it seems to the timid," says Lloyd George.

But, always, there is a goal. If we but hope.

The goal is on the road of hope. Just over some hills, and while we keep going, it draws nearer. "Keep going!"

Andy Green says some folks should wear a placard over their mouths which reads, "Opened by Mistake."

First wife—Does your husband give you your housekeeping money or do you have to ask him for it.

Second wife—Ghosh, my dear.

Ability of eggs to hatch will be determined to a very large extent by the care the hens receive at this time of the year. Birds with colds or those run down in health will not produce eggs that will hatch well.

Bees need to be kept quiet for the next two months. Do not disturb them for any reason, if possible. If late feeding is necessary it should be done as quickly as possible by using warm syrup.—O. A. C. Ext. service.

Land foul with weeds, crop remnants, or bunches of grass and soil proves particularly inviting to insects as a breeding ground. Here the majority of our injurious cutworms, meadow maggots and wireworms occur. Cleaning up the fields will do much to prevent serious infestations of such pests.—O. A. C. Exp. Station.

A cold, wet hen needs her food to warm up and dry her feathers rather than for egg production. If the birds are kept only for egg production, better results will be obtained, if they are confined, providing proper management is carried out by properly feeding them to make them exercise and keep busy. Out one day and confined the next does not make a satisfied, contented hen. Contentment tends toward egg production.—O. A. C. Exp. station.

MRS. CARMACK OUSTED

Wife of Discoverer of Klondike is Removed as Administratrix

AUBURN, Calif., Dec. 21.—According to word received here from Seattle, Mrs. Marguerita Carmack, widow of George W. Carmack, discoverer of the Klondike, has been removed in the superior court there as administratrix of his $100,000 estate because she is legally a resident of California.

A blank filled out by Carmack when the 1919 census was taken was exhibited to show that he acknowledged that Mrs. Graphic Shaffig of Berkeley, who started proceedings against the award of the estate to the widow, was his daughter.

Similar Case in Place

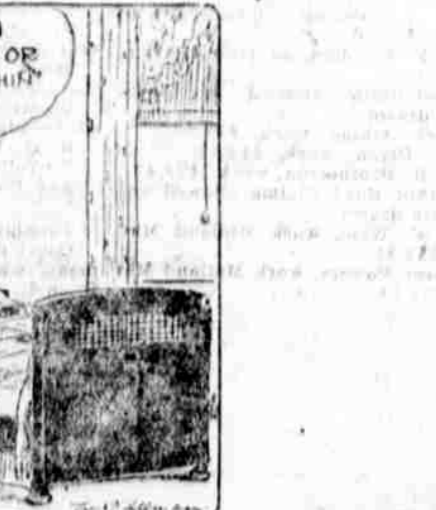

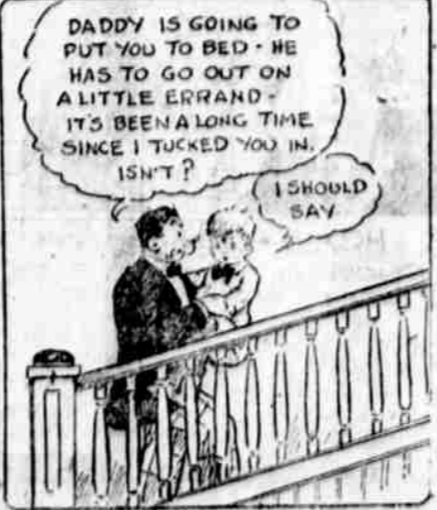

Mrs. Carmack recently applied in the superior court here to have the portion of the estate in this county set aside to her as the widow. The petition was set aside by Judge J. B. Landis, following an attack on Mrs. Carmack's status as a legal wife by Mrs. Shaffig.

THE STRAND

Tonight if you want to laugh see Owen Moore in "The Desperate Hero" at the Strand. There is said to be a laugh every second in this picture. It's a laughable night at the Strand for there will be two comedies besides the main feature.

Tomorrow night will be Christmas country store night with many extra prizes given away. These include turkeys, chickens, candy, plum pudding and a beautiful cedar chest.

Sunday "The Headless Horseman" which is taken from Washington Irving's "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" will be shown in a continuous performance from 15:15 to 11 p. m. A special matinee for school children will be given at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

In this picture Will Rogers takes the part of Ichabod Crane, which insures a worthwhile presentation of this great classic character. It's narrow escape from being tarred and feathered will give you the thrill of your life and when he meets the headless horseman, Who—it will send the shivers down your back.

PINE TREE

"Her Mad Bargain," a First National attraction starring Anita Stewart, is at the Pine Tree theatre Friday and Saturday.

The film deals in realistic manner with the life of a pampered society idol who suddenly finds herself cut off from all the wealth and luxuries she has been accustomed to. Faced by this situation, utterly unable to make her own way in life, she enters into a mad bargain that will insure her the extravagant things of life she has been used to having.

The story combines tense realism with pathos, humor and swift action. Anita Stewart is bewitchingly charming in the leading role of Alice Lambert.

One unusual scene is shown in an automobile accident where the star runs over a small boy. Only a blood transfusion can save the lad's life and Alice Lambert, humble and penitent as the result of her carelessness, offers herself.

The part of the young boy is played by Ernest Butterworth, who will be remembered by thousands of film followers for his juvenile roles in "What's Your Hurry" and "The Love Special." His intensely human characterization of the young newsboy adds immensely to the picture in its contribution of humor and naive mischief.

Walter McGrail has the leading male role and the balance of the cast includes Arthur Edmund Carew, Gertrude Astor, Helen Raymond, George B. Williams, Adele Farrington, Margaret McWade, Will Badger and Percy Challenger.

THE LIBERTY

New laurels are brought to the fascinating Equity star, Clara Kimball Young in her latest motion-picture appearance "Charge It" written by Sada Cowan, the noted author of "Straight From Paris" and "Hush." It is seldom that a photoplay should make such a direct attack on human faults and reveal the weaknesses to which a modern wife is liable to succumb. At its title suggests "Charge It" is an indictment of the enslaving habit of a credit account. By going to the depths of this problem Miss Young has added to the subject matter of the screen and penetrated to the bottom of temptation.

A part from the new insight that "Charge It" affords on the pitfalls of married life, this production stands out among many in the unparalleled impersonation of four characters rendered by Miss Young. First as the wealthy extravagant wife of a millionaire, then as the fickle, gay coquette "vamping" another man; thirdly as the humble restaurant help in a common resort, and finally as the modest, loving wife of her devoted husband—each part portrayed with striking likeness to the role. See "Charge It" at the Liberty tonight.

LASSEN PLANT QUILTS

Susnaville Sawmills Shut Down for Winter; Box Factory Continues

SUSANVILLE, Calif., Dec. 21.—The Lassen Lumber and Box company has closed its saw mills for the winter months. During the time the mills are closed a crew will be kept and the plant will be thoroughly renovated and repaired for next season's run.

The box factory will continue to run the entire winter. The 1922 season has been the best since the mills were built here five years ago.

A new camp is being constructed at the foot of the Lassen mountains, where a new station has been located, one mile from Whitwood Junction. This camp will be the headquarters for the head-quarters camp in the woods.

Camps Closed The Fruit Growers' Supply company has closed its logging camps and mill for the season. The box factory, however, will operate throughout the winter.

The company plans to start next season with approximately 1,400 men at the plant and in the woods on a much larger scale than in the past. The company plans to build twenty-four new houses during the closed season.
