

THIS COWPUNCHER SAW INTERESTING SIGHTS NEAR MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK CITY

RED SUBLETT LOOKING 'EM OVER IN NEW YORK

BY DUDLEY SIDDALL
NEA Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—"This here is the greatest spot in the world," said Red Sublett, "for a humble cowpuncher to devote himself and his noon-hour to the study of that important cowboy subject to which I refer—the study of calves. Look at 'em!"

The scene was the park across from Madison Square Garden, where Red and many of his kind were striving for hospital trips and other prizes in Tex Austin's ten-day riding tournament. To this park come daily the perfect 35 models from the nearby clock and suit district for their noon-time airing. Red and his fellow students soon learned to ease themselves up against the iron fences between 12 and 1 and watch the parade go by.

"Near as I can figger from what I've seen, always allowing that I can't see so much as I coulda if I'd been here when they was wearing 'em shorter," Red continued, "there ain't so much difference between these calves what we're seeing now and the calves which cowboys meets professionally."

"Take three generalized classes of calves for example: There's show calves and beef calves and bucking calves. You got them kinds here in New York just the same as we have them in Texas. Only you New Yorkers see mostly the show calves, for the other kinds seem to have took shelter under these long skirts from Paree."

Red lighted a cigaret, blew a whiff of smoke through his nose, and tossed the match on the grass.

"Ever hear of a 'dogie'?" he went on. "That a calf with a brand onto it which won't stay near its mother. I bet we're seein' plenty of dogies going by right now. Then the east and west both has lots of 'mavericks,' which is calves that ain't got no brand but just runs around loose. We have what we call 'woolies,' too. Mobbe you city guys use that name for the calves with the fuzzy coverings. And how about 'deadheads'—the same being calves which just sits down and waits peaceful for a cowboy to walk up to 'em."

Thoughtfully Red looked over the passing show, unmindful of the curious gazes of the New York girls who were visibly impressed by his enormous sombrero, his checkered shirt, and his fancy boots.

"There's only one big difference as I can see," he concluded, "The calves out west hang around a range all the time, while my guess is that these here ones never get near a range only to ask their mother or is supper ready."

It is estimated the average man could learn to beat a drum with the energy spent shaking hands.

MOVIE ACTRESS AIDS HOMELESS

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Nearly one thousand "down and outers" turned their faces to the west Christmas and thanked the diminutive movie actress Lila Lee, for her generosity in furnishing them a Christmas dinner, "the best handout they had had in years," they declared.

Last week Lila Lee, who is in Los Angeles, telegraphed her father, Charles Appel, to furnish a Christmas dinner "with all the trimmings" to one thousand business men and send the bill to her. That number was speedily gathered together at the Hobo college and a dinner of large proportions set before them.

Miss Mary McCormic, grand opera star of the Chicago Civic Opera company, helped to make the dinner a success by singing several Christmas songs.

The advent of Christmas in Chicago was greeted by the singing of carols in more than a dozen settlement and poor sections of the city, members of the Chicago Civic Opera company taking a leading part in this work.

Among the grand opera stars engaged in this work were Mary McCormic, Ina Bourskaya, Melvina Passmore, Irene Pavolozka, Desire Defreze, Cesare Parmichi and others.

More than 100,000 destitute persons were cared for by newspapers and charity organizations of the city. Dinners to families and toys and clothing to children were distributed to a larger extent throughout the poor sections than ever before, it was stated.

POPPING OF CORKS IS HEARD THROUGHOUT PARIS

PARIS, Dec. 27.—Popping of corks marked the advent of Christmas in Paris.

The whole city, good time bent, left home to wine and dine in the cafes. The Christmas eve celebration here is similar to pre-Volstead entertainment on New Year's eve in America.
