ADVOCATES LESS FOOD FOR MEN OF RIPER YEARS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Two meals a day as a regular diet for men over middle age, especially those whose work do not require great physical exertion, would avoid disorders of the stomach, kidneys and heart, Dr. C. D. Spivak, of Denver, told the American Medical Association here today.

Dr. Spivak stated that a study of the diets of a large number of families indicated that the caloric value of the daily meals increased, breakfast having the smallest value, luncheon the next and dinner the largest.

"As persons grow older, the appetite grows feebler for the first meal of the day, and yet the quantity of food consumed as a result of habit remains the same," added Dr. Spivak.
