COLLECTING BILLS

A DISPATCH from Des Moines, Iowa, tells of the experience of a girl 19 years old who has started in business as a bill collector and who is making good. She remarks from her experience that there are no real deadbeats, but that all people originally mean to pay. Their failure to do so is due to troubles piling up so they can not meet expenses. The secret of success in collecting, she says, is in being persistent, and by keeping at the slow pay folks she finally gets it out of them.

Bill collecting is commonly called a disagreeable job, but it is something that has to be done, and it performs a great service. Were it not for the pertinacity of the folks who chase after delinquent debtors, a lot of people would live far beyond their means. They would pile up expenses with little thought how they were going to come out. A large part of their living would be at the expense of trusting people who let them have money or credit.

People of that type need some one camping on their trail all the time. They get into an indifferent habit of mind, and devise expedients for keeping out of sight of creditors. They save their consciences with excuses for dilatory ways.

Now if such folks could be approached by some creditor several times a day, it would have a wonderful tonic effect on them. The necessity for thinking up new excuses, and the remarks of creditors not always of a complimentary nature, would arouse them from their negligent ways.

It would dawn on a lot of them that they would get more out of life to keep even with the world, and either spend a little less or earn a little more, so they could look the community in the face instead of having to dodge around corners. All honor to the bill collectors, for such folks are a force that makes a lot of slipshod people toe the mark.

ICE CREAM "SODY"

EVERY country is supposed to have its own favorite food. The English, for instance, are said to be a nation of beefeaters. From the habits of the American people, particularly as observed on a warm summer day, it might be said that our national food was ice cream soda, or "sody" as millions of people affectionately call it.

The thirst of all kinds of soft drinks and frozen concoctions has taken possession of the American throat. One can only guess how many a day some folks line up in front of the fountain and ice cream counter.

Some injure their digestion by a surplus of sweets. If some families realized the proportion of the family income that went into this kind of stuff, they would try to regulate this expenditure. But there seems to be something in our active and intense temperament that calls for these cooling foods and drinks. Now if the American people will not acquire sweet tempers in proportion to the amount of physical sweetness they consume, they ought to be good folks to get along with each other.

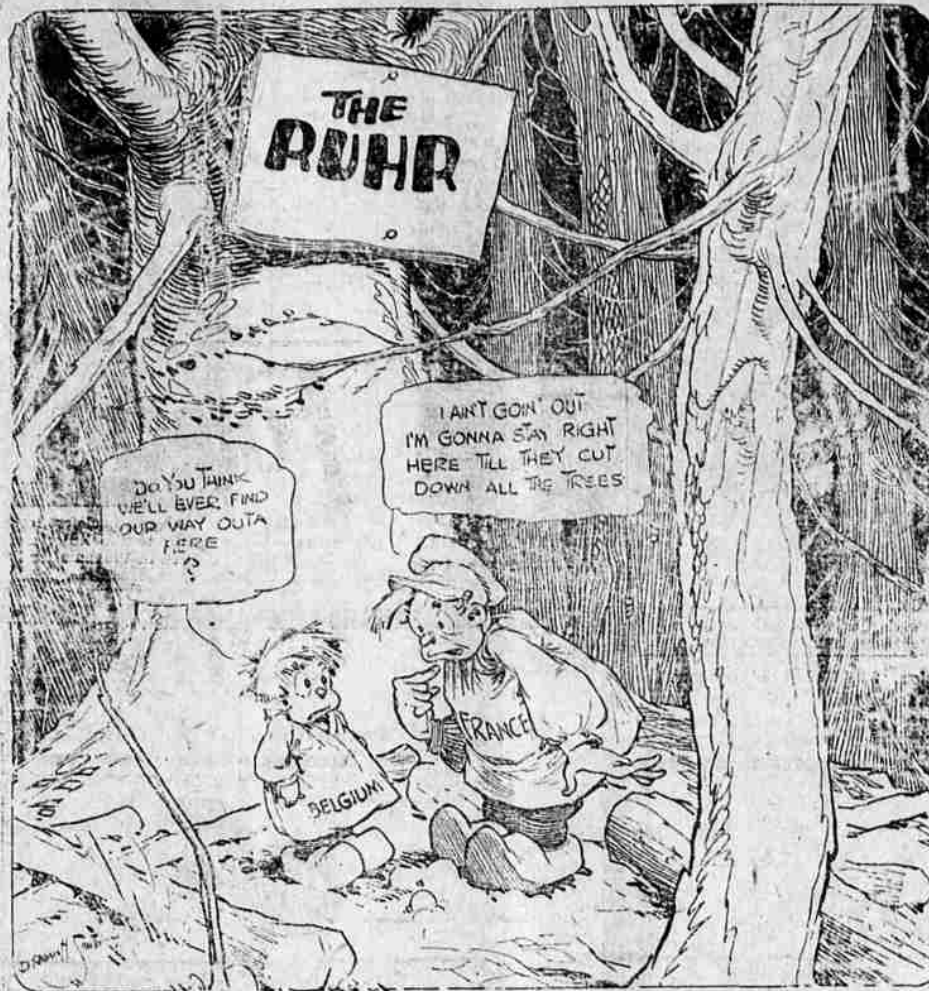

An Illinois woman's club authority holds that dish-washing beautifies the hands, but the girls may look at this as dangerous propaganda.

Not true that athletic success is all that interests people now, as many are working to get their names printed in the society notes.

About now the amateur gardeners of Klamath Falls might look to see if the electric light bulbs have come up.

The home is the aim of our social system, says President Harding. Along about green apple time, however, the kids think it safer to aim at the barn.

LOST IN THE WOODS

SAYS RUSSIA HAS FEW OPENINGS FOR BRIGHT YOUNG MEN

PETROGRAD, July 24.—"Only two profitable careers are open to Russia's bright young men today, and they are speculation of banditry," a bearded old civil engineer told the writer while riding on the train from Moscow to Petrograd the other day.

This engineer, who occupies an important post with the state railway administration, said that he earned a salary which is the equivalent of about $15.00 a month. His son, who is a speculator, and admittedly not over scrupulous in the way he turns his profits, makes fifty times that amount.

"Our salaries are so low in the state service that no ambitious young man, particularly if he is married, can reconcile himself to accepting them. Therefore, to win a fortune or live comfortably, he must become one of that hated class in Russia and elsewhere, a speculator. The only other lucrative profession is that of a bandit, or hold-up man."

"People who blame the speculators forget that it probably will be they, with their quickly secured profits and faculty of taking long chances, who will ultimately build up Russia. It is not a long cry from speculating in merchandise to taking a chance on building a railroad or developing a mine. They are the pioneers, breaking away from old Russian traditions and becoming men of business. Exactly the same kind of pioneers or speculators in your Wall Street helped build up America."

EXPERT JUDGES FOR LIVESTOCK

POMONA, Calif., July 24.—Three nationally known livestock experts have been asked to officiate as judges at the Los Angeles county fair here in October, according to George L. Cobb, secretary, who says it is almost certain they will accept. F. E. Duffy of West Hartford, Conn., a judge at the recent national show, has been asked to judge Jersey, Ayreshire, and Guernsey cattle; Frank Morris, of Woodland, Calif., Holstein cattle, and A. W. Oliver hogs.

THEATRES MOVIES

AT THE LIBERTY

A volcano bursting into smoke and flame as it spews out its fiery torrent of molten lava. Buildings crashing into fragments as the earth rocks and sends huge structures tottering to the ground. Flooding natives rushing for safety and being overtaken by the flaming flood. This is but a brief word picture of one of the big scenes in Sessue Hayakawa's most recent "The Vermilion Pencil," now at the Liberty theatre, and which many critics insist is the greatest thrill picture of the year. Beside Love and Ann May appear in support of Hayakawa.

Tom Mix, the noted western star who comes to the Liberty theatre today in "Do and Dare," recently contradicted the age-old theory that horses were afraid of fire. "Until a horse has been badly burned," said Mix to Director Sedgwick, he knows nothing of the dangers of fire. But what he does understand when violently ousted from a burning stable is that he is being driven from his comfortable stable home. This he resents—and that is why he so often tries to run back into the fire."

AT THE PINE TREE

An unusually attractive vaudeville bill will be seen at the Pine Tree theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Four Nightons will be the headline attraction, two marvelously agile young men and two perfectly formed and talented females in a study of sculpture, present an offering which is decidedly unique and classy. Their posing is not only novel and meritoriously presented but so original in conception as to mark them as extraordinary performers in their line. Sandy McKay, the Scotch comedian with his bag pipes and a song and a story or two done in a quaint manner which is always a popular hit. Tock & Toy in "A Breath from Peking" a Chinese novelty. A Chinese couple Americanized orientals in a Chinese singing, talking and dancing act in beautiful Chinese costumes. Millard & Millard in a rural comedy offering "The Music Teacher." Comedy songs, talk, eccentric dancing and banjo manipulations. This act is full of good comedy and many laughs.

"On the bridge at midnight," hummed the night-flying mosquito, as he lit on the false teeth.
