

SCOWS OF LINCOLN'S
DAY STILL IN USE

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—A scow of the same sort as that in which young Abraham Lincoln and his home-seeking parent were ferried across the White River near Petersburg, Ind., plies there today, propelled in the same manner by the current, according to Dr. William E. Barton of Oak Park, Ill., moderator of the national council of Congregational churches.

The ferryman, Dr. Barton says, doubles like the ferryman of Lincoln's day, manipulates cables from boat to shore and swings his craft so that the current, striking it at an angle, drives it in the direction desired. He shortens one cable and slackens another until his prow points to the shore he seeks. The White river does the rest.

This survival of pioneer method was witnessed by Dr. Barton on a motor trip from Springfield, Ky., to Springfield, Ill., in which he traced the life journey of Lincoln and his parents from the place of the scow's burial.

While the White river ferry is representative of early conditions, the ferry where the Lincoln family crossed the Ohio from Kentucky into Indiana is representative of a combination of the modern and the primitive, which Dr. Barton reported as recurring along his route. On the Ohio, a small low-powered gasoline launch has been hitched to the scow; it does not propel the scow, but replacing the cables head it at the right angle of the current, which furnishes the real power.

Similarly, a log church once attended by Lincoln's relatives remains a log church, but few would appreciate it as it has been weather-boarded.

Life is still primitive in part of the Lincoln country, Dr. Barton states, but schools and churches are better housed. Tractors are unknown in the broken farm country of southern Indiana, he adds, although motor cars are numerous on the highways, many of which follow trails blazed by Lincoln.

DOGS HELD BEST PROTECTION FOR DEER AND BIRDS

MOSCOW, Idaho, Aug. 24.—A good pack of dogs affords the best of protection to deer and other game animals and birds, according to Ross Greer, rancher, who has run hounds in Latah county for the past twelve years and claims thereby to be responsible for the destruction of many hundreds of predatory animals.

Since the dogs have been waging war on the coyotes, Greer says, there are from five to ten times as many deer in the territory. In a recent report to the state game warden, he gave 40 as the average number of coyotes, bobcats and lynx killed each year by the dogs, in addition to an occasional bear. With "Jap" Burden, another pioneer rancher, Greer keeps the dogs primarily for the protection of stock and poultry, which he says fall victim to the same foes as do game birds and animals.

LEGION NEWS

Among the entertainment features planned for the thousands of citizens and war veterans attending the American Legion convention at Seaside, Sept. 6-8 inclusive will be: Bathing girls contest to select Oregon's fairest bathing beauty; state rifle championship meet; log rolling contests, athletic races, weenie roasts on the beach, swimming, fishing, airplane trips over the ocean, sightseeing trips, the big military parade of the legion, water carnival, banquets, dances and visits to historical spots. Seaside being rich in history.

Those coming by automobile to attend the American Legion sessions at Oregon's greatest ocean resort will find splendid camping facilities and suitable parking privileges, according to Pat Dillan, of Seaside, chairman of the legion convention arrangements committee.

Prominent speakers to attend the Oregon State Legion sessions at Seaside include Governor Walter M. Pierce, Senator McNary, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, president of the American Legion auxiliary, H. E. MacDonald, secretary of the National 40-8 and the state commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. It is expected that the commander of the Spanish war veterans will also be on deck.

GAS WILL DECIDE
WARS OF FUTURE
EXPERT DECLARES

New York, Aug. 24.—Whole armies put to sleep and taken prisoner in gas warfare is by no means an impossibility 25 years hence, Col. Raymond F. Bacon, chief of the technical division of the chemical warfare service, A. E. F., says in a description of the possibilities of the future art of war made public by the American chemical society.

The $2,000,000 spent on the research organization did more toward winning the war, Col. Bacon asserts, than any other $200,000,000 spent in other ways. One of the greatest lessons of the war has far gone almost unheeded, according to Col. Bacon, who continues:

"To say the use of gas in warfare must be abolished is almost the same as saying that no progress must be made in the art of warfare toward making it more efficient or more humane. If one reads of the great battles of history, one will find that the victorious general conquered his enemy usually because of the fact that he so chose his position as to have his flank protected by river, mountain range or some naturally strong barrier.

"Much of the strategy of these battles consisted in maneuvering so as to obtain the advantage of position. With the use of gas it is possible to saturate a piece of ground so that no troops can cross it, and thus make an artificial barrier for the flank or protect the lines of communication. Moreover, these artificial barriers can be kept barriers for just as short a time as the strategy of the particular battle demands. These are but hints, but show the tremendous unexploited possibilities of gas in warfare.

"One can easily imagine the situation at the time the fighting was hand to hand with the spear or the sword, and gunpowder was first introduced, which in those days perhaps permitted the antagonists to fight at a range of 100 or 200 yards. There must have been a great outcry as to prohibiting the horrible new mode of warfare, and it must have been felt that it was very unfair to stand off 200 yards rather than to meet in combat man to man.

"But no one looking back on that period would attempt to say that it was possible to have stayed the hand of progress and to have prevented by any legislation or agreement the use of gunpowder to warfare. Moreover, the consensus of opinion today would be that the hand to hand fighting with spear and sword was more cruel and inhuman than the fighting with the gun and the bullet. Similarly, at the present time we cannot effectually stay the progress of science and to attempt to do so is not only unwise but is also preventing the possibilities of a really more humane type of war."
