Official American League Batting Records For 1923

BY IRWIN M. HOMER, CHICAGO

After a sensational race between Harry Heilmann of Detroit and George Ruth of New York, the Detroit slugger led the batters in the American league for the second time in his career. His percentage of .408 was far above his record last year when he finished fourth.

Ruth slumped in his hitting towards the end of the season, finishing with an average of .383. Heilmann and Ruth led the procession all season, the former getting off to a good start. Heilmann started to slump in midseason and when the season was about two-thirds over Ruth caught up and passed him, only to lose the lead during the final few weeks.

It is to be noticed that veterans figured largely in most of the exceptional performances during the year. Of the first ten batters eight are seasoned players. It is also noticeable that the great majority of heavy hitters are left handed with the stick. Of the first ten eight were in position to punish right-hand pitchers the most.

Practically every record went to players who have stood the gaff for years. Prominently among the star performers were Cobb, Heilmann, Speaker, E. Collins, Ruth and Kenneth Williams. Cobb gained the distinction at the end of the year of completing his 18th consecutive year with a batting average of .300 or better.

Tris Speaker of Cleveland set a new American record in two-bases hits, the Cleveland player and manager pounding out 59 doubles. Ruth of New York led all in runs accumulating 151, a fraction under one run per game as he played in 152. A glance at Ruth's all-around record explains why the Yankee star was voted the most valuable player of the year. He compiled a total of 339 bases, which included 45 two-bases, 13 triples and 41 home runs, the latter total being 12 more than his nearest competitor, Williams of St. Louis.

Eddie Collins' mark of 49 stolen bases and 39 sacrifice hits were the noteworthy performances.

Leaving out of consideration those who figured only in a few games, the records show that out of the 28 batters who hit the ball for .300 or better, there are very few newcomers in the league who crowded into this particular column. Manush of Detroit and Summa of Cleveland may be counted as the brilliant exceptions.

Cleveland finished at the top among the teams in batting, but it was a close race with Detroit, the former winning up the season with a percentage of .301, only one point ahead of Detroit. New York Yan-

FARMER-RITCHIE BOUT SIGNED UP

For the second time Frank Farmer, the Cle Elum tigger, and Earl Ritchie, local heavyweight champion, will meet in the squared circle. The match will be held in Scandinavian hall, December 21.

Reports are that Ritchie is already in training for this match. If he reaches the "pink" as when he fought Joe Swindler the second time, it should be a scrappy scrap. Ritchie took a knockout in the seventh in his fight with Farmer, but his downfall came in the first as a result of a punch that left him groggy the remainder of the battle.

Farmer has been a stumbling block for young boxers for years. He has fought all-comers. Early this year he tried his luck in the four-round game in California, but this was too fast for him and he returned to the northwest after taking a couple of beatings.

"Coolidge brown" soon may become as popular with the women as was "Alice blue" during the occupancy of the White House by the Roosevelt family. In the matter of hats and gowns, Mrs. Coolidge, the present mistress of the executive mansion, displays a decided predilection for a particular shade of brown.

Poland's excellent system of agricultural training is due largely to the efforts of Madame Drubinsky, who spent many years in founding and directing agricultural schools throughout Russian Poland, and with the establishment of the new republic has become a member of the national education commission.

A honey bee's work consumes about half the hours of daylight, the remaining hours of the 24 being spent in rest according to tests made by the United States department of agriculture.

Kees, pennant winners and world's champions, were an even 10 points behind Detroit, while St. Louis was back another ten points.

The Philadelphia Athletics were unable to keep up the early season's batting clip and finished next to last, Boston winding up the season with a percentage of .261, just 40 points behind the leaders, and two points less than in the preceding year. Chicago was midway, with Washington a point above Philadelphia.

SCIENTISTS TO REVEAL STORY OF TRINIL MAN

Researches on Gobi Desert May Clear up Mystery of First Human

PEKIN, Dec. 3.—The story of what some prominent scientists believe to have been the first human ancestor of the human race—of how he probably gained his livelihood, wooed his wives, reared his children and got his recreation—will soon be told to the world by Professor Dubois, famous Dutch paleontologist.

This revelation is to come principally as the result of efforts of Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, curator of the American Museum of Natural History who is now in China directing researches on the desert of Gobi where so many ancient fossils recently have been found by excavators for scientific societies.

How Dr. Osborn prevailed on Professor Dubois to make public his findings in connection with the discovery some years ago of the bones of the Trilil man in Java were explained recently by the American scientist in a lecture before men of science in Pekin.

The Trilil man of Java, known to science as the Pithecanthropus Erectus, or upright man-ape, is supposed to antedate by thousands of years any other fossils of man ever found. Discovered by Professor Dubois more than 30 years ago the details of the find have been kept virtually a secret. It was known, the curator explained, that the skeleton, largely reconstructed, bore a resemblance to both man and the higher apes, but in many respects different from both.

Something of the supposed age of the Trilil man is to be had from Dr. Osborn's theory, which is shared by other paleontologists that the youngest of the presumably pre-human or sub-human ancestors of man whose fossils have been found is the Heidelberg man. Bones of the Heidelberg man were found in the drift of the Neckar river valley in Germany and are estimated to be at least 400,000 years old. Still older are the bones of the Piltdown man whose bones were found in the river drifts of Sussex, England. Yet older are the bones of the Foxhall man, also found in England. But oldest of all are the bones of the Trilil man of Java.

So far back in time have scientists assigned the place of the Trilil man that he is supposed to have lived in those far yesterdays of the earth when life itself was hardly out of the experimental stage in nature's laboratory.

In his lecture Dr. Osborn declared that the theories of both Bryan and certain of the Darwinists were out of date as a result of modern discoveries. The ape, he declared, was not now supposed to be the ancestor of man, but in all probability a cousin. He holds the theory that both man and the ape have probably descended from a common type of animal.

It was in Asia, either on the high plateaus of what is now China or possibly south of there in the warmer lands of India that mankind had its origin, in Dr. Osborn's opinion. The uplands of China and especially the Gobi desert, afford to science the world's greatest deposit of relics of bygone life that has been found, he said. His theory is that the original inhabitants of North and South America were descendants of Asiatic races that moved across land bridges which in past ages connected the eastern and western continents.
