

The Evening Herald

Issued daily except Sunday by The Herald Publishing Company, Office, 119 North Eight St., Klamath Falls, Oregon

F. R. SOULE, President and Manager
RUTH SOULE, Secretary-Treasurer
Entered as second-class matter, at the post office at Klamath Falls, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879

Member of the Associated Press

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and to all local news published herein. All rights of republication of special dispatches herein are also reserved.

F. R. SOULE, Editor
H. R. HILL, City Editor
F. S. WATTS, Advertising Manager
H. W. REYNOLDS, Mechanical Superintendent

The Evening Herald is the official paper of Klamath County and the City of Klamath Falls

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

ONE YEAR	Delivered By Carrier	$6.50
SIX MONTHS		3.50
THREE MONTHS		1.95
ONE MONTH		.65
By Mail
ONE YEAR		$5.00
SIX MONTHS		2.75
PER MONTH		.65

INFORMATION FOR ADVERTISERS

Copy for display advertising must be in this office not later than 3 p.m. on the day preceding publication in order to be inserted in the issue of the paper of the next day.

Want ads and reading notices will be received up to 12 noon on the day of issue.

Advertising for fraternal orders or societies charging a regular initiation fee and dues, no discount. Religious and benevolent orders will be charged the regular rate for all advertising when an admission or other charge is made.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1924

REQUIESCAT ET PACE

WHEN a man active in the public life of ancient Egypt died, it is said, his friends placed the body upon a bier and carried it through the streets, stopping before the homes of the dead man's enemies, crying upon them in the name of the dead to come out and behold how death had leveled all animosity, and declare in the presence of the dead whether they would elect to carry the combat further.

This custom, legendary it is true, was supposed to serve a double purpose. It impressed upon the living the uncertainty of life and the futility of hate; and it gave the spirit of the dead man rest in the future world from the hindrance that earthly enmities might exercise against his spiritual advancement—for few animosities are so enduring that they will persist in the face of death, and death brought home to the beholder by such direct contact.

The enemies that Woodrow Wilson made in his lifetime will not pursue him beyond the grave. Yet it would be idle to deny that he made many enemies, personal and political.

A man of overwhelming egotism, certain always of his course, he needed no advice, considered no one's feelings. He took them into his counsel, gave them influence and position in the eyes of the world, then, when they were forced into disagreement with his autocratic policies, threw them out unceremoniously. Naturally this roused strong resentment.

He treated the members of the congress of the United States, many of them gray in public service when he was still unknown, as he had been in the habit of treating his college classes, as incapable boys in need of constant direction. He arrogated unto himself the position of director. He was in fact during the war a dictator, the autocrat supreme. The country, faced with the task of winning the war, accepted the dictatorship as a military necessity, but rebelled the instant that peace came.

When Wilson sailed for Versailles, against the advice and over the protest of the majority of congress, he virtually told the people's representatives that they were intellectually incapable of knowing what was best. He mounted to the final heights of egotism. And when the inevitable moment came that he slipped, when the public sentiment that he had flouted refused to maintain him, when, after his return he toured the country carrying his cause to the people and they turned him down—the natural result of his egoistic disregard for their opinions—the fall was correspondingly great.

The rise of Woodrow Wilson entitled respect for the man whose individuality maintained itself at such great height by its own intellectual might; a height where for a brief time he was the center for the gaze of all the world, and millions hailed him as the Messiah of a new era in world brotherhood.

For his fall there is naught to blame but the attempt to run contrivance to all of the established rules, traditions and customs of a democracy. It is a peculiar paradox that he, the greatest exponent of world democracy of his time, should fall victim to the inevitable workings of the natural law by which democracy maintains itself—willingness to submit all matters to the general counsel, willingness to be guided in all matters by the sentiment of the majority.

There is no doubt as to his ability. He was well versed in statesmanship, probably the best versed man in the domestic and world affairs and their relations that ever sat in the president's chair.

Men disagree as to how well or how badly he used his exceptional talent. Doubtless, considering his disposition, he gave the best that was in him.

He was not a lovable figure as was President Harding. He sought to inspire in beholders the idea of infallibility, and the result was that they took him at his own valuation; holding him in awe while his power was high, not giving over much of sympathy when that power was broken.

Wilson is dead and the league of nations, that he said he would give his life for, is dead before him.

We Americans are poor haters. We do not carry grudges as the old world nationals do. The respect that was withheld by many during the days of his power, will be ungrudgingly given his memory by a whole people, who under a more lenient rule than his have forgotten, and therefore find it easy to forgive. The sympathy of a nation will enshroud the bereaved home, for after all Woodrow Wilson was an American and his patriotism was of a high order. It led him through the fires of sacrifice, and he died as he lived—sustained by an indomitable will, yielding dominion grudgingly even to death itself.

A WONDERFUL LITTLE HILL-CLIMBER

The Office Cat

A Mid-Winter Reverie.
As wintry winds with dismal sigh
Sweep around my humble shack,
My thoughts revert to days gone by,
Days just a few months back.

The snow sifts in, I know not how,
To swell my discontent,
Methinks I'll raise an awful row,
When comes the man for rent.

I'm chilled thru—neck, hip and thigh,
My feet are blamed near frozen,
It's three to one the furnace guy,
Is playing cards, or dozing.

The sun peeps in my dreary room,
When I am most downhearted,
But, ere he drives away the gloom,
Again he hath departed.

The coin that I had left from coal,
I've handed to the plumber;
Say, won't I be a happy soul,
When comes the good old summer?

"This bars me from athletics," said the football captain as he was put in jail.

W. M. Kaylor says a man is old when he has nothing to look forward to this evening and is darned glad of it.

Henry Ford can make all kinds of conveyances, but Johnny Dunnington says it remains to be seen if he can make a band wagon that will go.

Correct This Sentence.
"Yes," remarked a man in our neighborhood, "my relatives always are willing to lend me money and they don't keep reminding me that I haven't paid it back, either."

Yes, But Whaddy Ya Mean?
(Norfolk, Va. Pilot.)

An American officer arriving in 12:45 o'clock broke out in the office of the local paper, says the Ledger-Dispatch. It looked like the entire building was doomed.

So She Did.
She knew that as soon as she became fast her color wouldn't fade.

W. J. O'Brien says the girl who always says, "Why didn't I think of that?" usually does not think of anything else to say.

Correct.
Ditographed in our own 2-4 apartment.

Wife—"Did you forget the 50 cents worth of hotted ham I told you to bring for supper?"
Us Ourselves—"Naw, I didn't forget it. I've got in here in my watch pocket with my watch."

Men would make much better husbands and fathers if there were no women," remarked the woman hater.

George Metz says every small town has a genius who imagines he can repair his own watch with a pocket knife.

Popular Fiction.
"Maw, I dunno why the teacher alius picks on me, but she does."

G. R. Lindley says many a man taking the perilous zigzag course through life has zigged when he should have zagged and zagged when he should have zigged.

A fool can answer any question to his own satisfaction.

Read the Herald Want Ads.

The question of the hour is, "What time is it?"

There is no such thing as a chaperoned joy ride.

Time killed says dead.

If you want a man to growl at you treat him like a dog.

You can't uplift people by sitting down on them.

Ten Years Ago Today

Feb. 4, 1914—Registration 402—

At noon today there were registered 402 persons out of a total of between 4000 and 5000, who are eligible to cast their ballots at the May primaries and the November general election. The books are now open at the clerk's office.

In addition to the registration books here, there are registered in different parts of the county persons who are empowered to register voters. These are:

Keno, H. Snowgoose; Merrill, R. H. Anderson; Midland, R. O. Vinson; Fort Klamath, John Hessig; Bonanza, J. O. Hamaker; Bly, Dan F. Driscoll; Crescent, F. M. Cleaves; Algoma, Roy Hamaker.

Convicts in British Columbia penitentiaries are prohibited to labor for private companies, according to a new ruling.

HOME SURVEY QUESTIONNAIRE

Assist the housing committee by filling out this questionnaire and mailing it to the chamber of commerce.

Name

No. Street

(The information below is strictly confidential)

- Number of adults in family, including roomers
- Number of children
- Number of persons employed
- Occupation of chief wage earner
- Do you rent or own your home? Rent.....Own.....
- How long have you lived in Klamath Falls? years
- Would you like to own your home if you could do so by making an initial payment and paying the balance in rent? Yes.....No.....
- What section of the city would you prefer to live in?
- If you bought a home, how many rooms would you want?
- Would you be in a position to build, or finance, one, two or three homes to rent or sell?.....

NEWS OF THE KLAMATH COUNTRY

GROUND IS BEING CLEARED FOR NEW HOTEL AT CHILOQUIN

CHILOQUIN, Feb. 4.—Clearing of ground preparatory to building the new hotel, to be known as Hotel Balfour, started here today on the site of the old hotel which burned in the late fall.

The new structure will be modern in every respect and will contain 20 rooms.

BENEFIT PROGRAM WILL BE GIVEN AT WORDEN SCHOOL 9TH

WORDEN, Feb. 4. (Special) Invitations have been sent to Klamath Falls, Keno and Dorris for the community program and box social to be given in the Worden school house Feb. 9 at 8 o'clock. Proceeds from the sale of the boxes will be used to purchase a Victrola for the school.

The public is welcome.

KENO

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sergeant and son Phillip were visitors at the C. J. McCallum home several days this week.

Henry Chapman is making an extended visit in California.

Mrs. L. W. Smead was a weekend visitor in Worden. While here she was the guest at the M. W. Smead home.

Mrs. Wm. B. Fuller has been spending several days visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Smead. Mrs. Fuller's home is in Klamath Falls.

Ben Gay was a Klamath Falls visitor Wednesday from Worden.

Miss Erma McCallister was a dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lysie V. Gordon Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McCallum spent Sunday afternoon at the Wilson ranch in Worden.

Lester Smead spent the weekend in Worden with relatives.

Miss Erma McCallister will leave this evening for Olney, where she will be a guest over the weekend at the home of her uncle, Ed. Young.

Big Reductions in Furniture
Watch for our ad tomorrow
PERKINS FURNITURE HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Bittler went to Dorris Thursday on business.

Friends of Mrs. D. L. Gordon are glad to hear of her recovery. Mrs. Gordon has been seriously ill.

A large crowd enjoyed the dance Saturday night at Worden. Music was furnished by Jack Chapman of Worden and Elmer McCollum of Dorris.

Chad Gordon left Monday for Chiloquin where he will be employed by the S. P. Co. to do some construction work.

Watch for our smashing Furniture bargains in to-morrows ad
PERKINS FURNITURE HOUSE

Wood

THERE IS A REASON why block-wood and slab-wood are cheaper than other fuels.

Slab and blocks are waste products from the mills and therefore cost less, that is why you can buy them cheaper.

On an actual test a cord of slab made as much heat as 4-5 of a cord of body-wood or limb-wood. Figure it out for yourself and at present prices your saving is 33 1-3 percent you save using dry slab

SLAB IS YOUR CHEAPEST WOOD
$8.00 PER CORD

BLOCKS are also cheap
$6.50 Double Load

$5.00 Single Load

A good stock of 16 inch limb and Tamarack also on hand

O. Peyton & Co.
419 Main Phone 535

GET READY for TOMORROW ~ Everyone

Within the next ten years, we see more industries, better development of the resources of this region, better business for everyone; and now is the time to get ready.

Our New Industries Department is with you—new capital and new people are needed to make the most of your wealth of natural resources.

The New Industries Department is disclosing to investing capital the great raw material wealth of our Agriculture, Timber and Minerals. It is working for the legitimate expansion of every industrial possibility for the region, and supplying a consolidated, supplementary Chamber of Commerce type of service for the five Oregon counties and the one California county within our territory.

We have every confidence in what the future holds in store, and hydro-electric power's participation in it. At present the Industries of this region are counting more on electricity than ever before; and we are proud to be able to say that the communities we serve have advanced further in the use of labor-saving household equipment than many of the largest cities on this coast or anywhere else. If you are ready to have your household work done electrically—a member of this company will be glad to tell you how little it costs.

The CALIFORNIA OREGON POWER COMPANY
Medford, Grants Pass, Klamath Falls, Roseburg, Oregon.
Yreka, Dunsmuir, California.