PRICE, FIVE CENTS

SENATE ADOPTS EXCLUSION

FINAL ACTION ON MEASURE UP TO PRESIDENT

Japanese Keeping Anxious
Watch on Washington
as Question Pends

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The Senate adopted the Japanese exclusion bill late today.

TOKIO, April 15.—Eyes of the Japanese nation are anxiously turned toward Washington and the immigration bill is the all-absorbing topic. Extra editions tell each detail of the action in Congress. A cabinet meeting was held to discuss the problem after which, according to newspapers, "new important instructions, were despatched to Ambassador Hanjira."

The immigration question was considered also at a meeting of the Koseikai and Chawakai parties in the house of peers, and leaders of both parties demanded a stiffening of the foreign office attitude in the matter. Interviews with officials disclosed an attitude bordering on despair, although they still look to the Senate or President Coolidge to block enactment of the Japanese exclusion clause.

"I want to appeal against final passage of the proposal designed to exclude Japanese," said Baron Matsui. "For many years and sometimes at considerable sacrifice we Japanese both through government circles and privately have made the utmost efforts to develop friendship with America. We have never given up hope that this very clear and worthy policy would be successful, nor have we given up now. However, we have cause for grave anxiety. Therefore, I make this appeal through the American press."

WASHINGTON, April 15.—No inkling came from the White House or state department as to position to be taken by executive branches of the government on Japanese exclusion. Equally silent was the Japanese embassy.

When the Senate debate opened today, Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, leaving aside all reference to the Japanese provisions, launched into an attack on the quota policy.

With the Senate committed to passage of the Japanese exclusion law, Senator Lodge went to the White House today to inform the president of sentiment on the matter and to advise him to consider the overwhelming vote on the question when the measure reaches him for action.

The question of the president's attitude overshadows today actual approach of vote on exclusion, which is regarded certain either late today or tomorrow.

DANGER FROM STOCK DISEASE ABOUT PASSED

Lyle Finds Conditions Are Improving; Ban Still In Effect However

ROSEBURG, April 15.—Danger of spread of foot and mouth disease into Oregon has practically passed, said State Veterinarian Lyle who was in Roseburg today to inspect a trainload of cattle cars to be used in shipping stock from Umpqua valley to Klamath county.

Lyle is on his way to the California line to take personal charge of quarantine measures. He says the governor's order barring all California stock, fruit, vegetables, flowers and abrasives will be strictly enforced.

C. A. Henderson, county agent today issued the following statement relative to quarantine measures:

Trouble Experienced.
"Since the quarantine became effective, considerable trouble has been experienced by the men on patrol duty in different districts, particularly Tule Lake, regarding the movement of stock, more especially horses, back and forth across the state line within a radius of a few miles on either the Oregon or the California side. When cases of this kind are found in the future, after the ownership of such livestock is fully determined by a reliable committee, a report of which will be made to the county authorities, owners of such livestock, cattle, etc., will be liable to fine or imprisonment, or both.

Permits to Work Stock.
"Any violation of the quarantine regulations that now exist, will be taken up in this way, to prevent all movement across the state line. Permits will only be issued to work stock, that is, horses in harness to be used south of the Oregon line and these only upon investigation by the livestock committee and the O. K. of the county court; such permits to be revocable at any time by the said county court."

CITY MAY OUST CAMPERS FROM PARK PROPERTY

Action Is Considered by Council Because of Sanitation Lack

Lack of sanitation facilities in the old camp ground adjoining Modoc park, and at Riverside park on the west side, both of which are being used by transient campers, may cause their ejection.

The matter was brought before the city council last night, and while no definite action was taken it was clearly indicated that lack of sanitation would not permit campers to remain in either place.

Under Park Board
Riverside park comes under jurisdiction of the park board while the other property is privately owned.

The public camp ground at Altamont ranch may be used by people now camping in the outskirts of the city, it was pointed out. Many of these are believed to be people who were unable to find places to live in town, and who have been forced to find makeshift dwellings temporarily.

Increased activities of the street commissioner led the council last night, at the motion of Smith, to authorize Police Judge Gahagen to advertise for bids for a truck with a one-ton steel body. The truck will be used for general street purposes.

The sewer system on High between Seventh and Eighth, which has caused trouble for several months, will be cleaned and put in good shape, according to an official order of the council. The immediate action was caused by information that the sewer was at present partially stopped up.

Ten Petitions.
Out of ten petitions to the council for building, one was disallowed and another referred to the fire committee. Peter J. Burgoyne was refused permission to build a garage and dwelling on Pine street because the buildings would be of frame structure and within the fire limits. H. M. Barby petitioned the council to remodel the second floor of the building occupied by the Star Drug store into a ten room rooming house. This was referred to fire committee.

All of the eight permits granted were for dwellings ranging in price from $200 to $4,000.

Permits Granted
Permits were granted to Mrs. Eugene M. Prouty, a dwelling on Oregon avenue; S. E. Burt, a dwelling on F. Street, to cost $500; Olive H. Powell, a dwelling on Eldorado to cost $4,000; A. H. Dowers, a dwelling on East street to cost $200; Nicola Civitarese, a dwelling on Broad street to cost $500; and Charles W. Thomson, a dwelling on East Main street to cost $1800.
