" A QUIET EVENING"

BY TAYLOR

LONDON POLICE STANDARD HIGH

LONDON, May 9. - The day when London's police force war made up of stalwart though ignorant recruits from the East Side has passed. The beer arinking hercules with the coeleney accent is stepping aside to who we the university graduate a chance to carry a whistle and a club. It now takes more than a six feet of brawnto qualify for a pair of thick books. The poll-eman's duty is now a profession in London.

Once, before the war, a man joined the London force when he could not get anything else to do. The policeman in those days earned 30 shillings a week, he worked ten hours a day for seven days a week and he had no recreation centers at his disposal. Thirty shillings, even his disposal. Thirty shillings, even in the days when a shilling knew a lot more tricks than it does today, hardly sufficed to keep a family. The guardian of the public welfare was always ready then to accept a tip for any little service he might perform.

Now the pay is good, the shance of promotion to responsible jobs are many, and the conditions and hours of service easier. The municipal authorities are taking an interest in their police force. They have provided clubs for the men and their families, they are given better ini-forms, and promotions and salary increases are granted for educational actainments as well as magnitorious nervice.

At the same time the law of supply and demand has raised the stand-ard of requirements. The candidate must pass a stiff educational examination, he must know more English than is contained in the yallow penny thriller, and be familiar with the cu, and national government's organiza-tion and operation. There are many tion and operation. There are many cases where a knowledge of two languages is necessary. The authorities must be satisfied with regard to his life and habits.

After the policeman has been accepted an apprenticeship of turce years is necessary, and then he is assigned to regular duty. If he is successful he may even get to be a
