"Fish Lake is about half the area of Diamond Lake and an excellent trout water," said Poole. SIGN DIRECTS AUTO PARTIES KLAMATH WAY

Tourists On Pacific Route to Learn New Road Toward Lake

"This way to Klamath Falls and Crater Lake," or some similar slogan will soon be the directing information on a huge sign to erect tourists at the intersection of the Pacific highway and the new million dollar road over Green Springs Mountain.

At the Chamber of Commerce forum today, Secretary Linn Sabin announced that the board of directors had voted to at once erect a sign at the point in question. The forum meeting was dedicated to the new Ashland-Klamath Falls Highway and a discussion of plans for the coming Mile High celebration to occur in Hayden Meadow on Wednesday, June 4.

Million Dollar Highway. C. C. Kelley, division engineer for the state highway commission, was the principal speaker and announced that somewhat over a million dollars had been expended in construction of this mountain roadway.

It was Mr. Kelley's advice to the Chamber that a specific program be undertaken of advertising the road as a new route to Crater Lake. The distance to the lake, he said, was a trifle longer than by the older route, but the counter attractions in the way of scenery would balance this.

"No where in Oregon can one find 220 miles of continuous scenic highway as you now possess," Mr. Kelley emphasized. "You should let the world know this and you will have plenty of visitors." "From the Pacific Highway near Ashland where this mountain road begins, crossing four mountain summits, through the finest body of timber one could wish to look upon, into your city and on along the Klamath lakes into Fort Klamath, where can it be equalled?"

Advocate Tree Planting. The speaker gave a short history of Oregon highway work, told where the money comes from to finance the highway program and concluded by arguing that trees be conserved along the line of new mountain road. "He also advocated the planting of trees along the barren stretches."

Bert Hall and Jack Kimball, committeemen in charge of the Mile High celebration, asked that Klamath Falls respond by the hundreds and attend the event. All plans have been made for a big day and room for two to three thousand autos to park near the Hayden Meadows has been provided.

E. E. Valente, formerly of this city, gave two song selections and was heartily applauded. Mr. Valente has been studying music in San Francisco. He will remain here this summer and then return to his studies.

That Klamath Falls can boast of a hundred and five year old resident, perhaps, not generally known, but living in a tent on Broad street is Mrs. Rebecca Stewart, born in London, England, August 17, 1818. Mrs. Stewart has been sixty years in America, and now at the age of 105 after wandering about through every state in the union, has halted her covered wagon on a vacant lot in the precincts of Klamath Falls.

For her years Mrs. Stewart is surprisingly active, and states that she has been in excellent health since coming west. A widow for 38 years, and with only four of her eleven children now living, Mrs. Stewart lives quite alone, and frequently walks to town to purchase her supplies.

Mrs. Stewart stated yesterday that she was the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, and that she used to make her living by reading palms, at which she is very adept. But since coming to Klamath Falls two months ago, she had done nothing at palmistry, as no one here knew of her accomplishment. "I can tell you of the past, advise you of the present, and foretell the future," said Mrs. Stewart, "but here no one knows of me, so my art is useless." Besides being a palmist, Mrs. Stewart is extremely bright and interesting to talk to, and has been in every "shrine" in England, and is willing to tell the chance visitor of her manifold experiences.

Klamath Will Send 70 Boys and Girls to Corvallis Session

At least 70 boys and girls of Klamath county will attend the annual summer course at the Oregon Agricultural college early next month, is the estimate of Frank Sexton, county club leader. About 300 members are enrolled in the 39 clubs of the county and Klamath has been designated as a 100 percent county in the state club work.

"Klamath county has always made an excellent showing at the annual meeting at the state college and we have hopes of again being the banner county of the state at the sessions this year," Mr. Sexton said.

Mr. Sexton is in receipt of a recent communication from H. C. Seymour, state club leader, in which qualifications for attendance of club members at the summer session are outlined. All who will be given the privilege of attending the college course must be full-fledged club members, with work up to date. KLAMATH SEEN AS MECCA FOR FILM CONCERNS

Owner of Tin-Tin Tells C. of C. This is Wonderful Picture Country

Klamath Falls and the Klamath country will become the mecca of many moving picture companies within the next few months, was the prediction today of Lee Duncan, owner of the famous dog, Rin-tin-tin speaking today before the Chamber of Commerce.

Accompanying Mr. Duncan was Rin-tin-tin himself, fresh from a bath following a thorough fumigation at the hands of authorities who had granted a special permit for the dog-actor to cross the hoof and mouth lines.

Mr. Duncan gave an interesting account of how he had adopted the dog with his sister, Nannette, after finding them behind the lines in France. At that time Mr. Duncan was flying with the 136th Aero Squadron.

As to his visit here, which is for the purpose of making a moving picture featuring Rin-tin-tin, Mr. Duncan stated he had wired his producers today that the selection of Klamath was a ten-stroke. Now that he had seen the diversity of scenic material at hand, was positive that many moving picture producers would follow his company into this field.

When the soldier returns home to Oregon he finds his vast timber holdings about to be taken from him through fraud, and his sweetheart in danger.
