

LAKE SHORE ROADWAY COMPLETION IS PROPOSED

MODIFICATION OF CATTLE BAN IS CONSIDERED

Meeting at Reno Monday to Have Bearing on Case in Oregon

It states west of the Rocky mountains can be persuaded at a conference Monday, in Reno, Nevada, to modify their hoof and mouth quarantine regulations. California, 100 miles north of the infected section, will be declared a free area for the transportation of Oregon cattle through California to the middle west, according to State Veterinarian Dr. W. H. Lytle. Dr. Lytle passed through Klamath Falls this morning accompanied by Dr. H. H. Green his assistant, on his way to Reno.

Representatives from sanitary boards of all the states west of the Rocky mountains will be present at the conference. The present status of the hoof and mouth disease in California will be gone into thoroughly.

Market Fact Cited
The market for a large percentage of Oregon cattle is in the middle west states, where cattle are taken to be fattened in the corn fields before killed for the market. The cheapest and quickest route is by way of the Western Pacific road which starts in California.

Livestock shipped through California must be taken off the train and be fed while still in the state, as usually a freight train loaded with cattle is in the state longer than 36 hours. Federal regulations require that cattle be taken from the train at 36 hour intervals to be fed.

Ban Applies Here
The quarantine of western states Dr. Lytle pointed out, is applicable to Oregon cattle shipped through California to the middle west under the foregoing conditions. Hence all cattle shipped through California from Oregon would be stopped on the border of the western states which have quarantine regulations against importation of cattle, sheep or other animals from California.

It is hoped, Dr. Lytle said, to persuade the western states to modify.

BRITISH AGENT IS LEAVING FOR HOME FROM MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—H. Cunard Cummins, British charge archivist, the storm center of the controversy between the British and Mexican governments, left last night for the United States on his way home.

The difficulties of Cummins, at Mexico City, are due to his official efforts to prevent continuation of property belonging to Mrs. Rosalie Evans, British subject, according to Mrs. W. J. Pettis, sister of Mrs. Evans, and wife of a physician in the United States marine hospital here. Mrs. Pettis said the protests by Cummins against the treatment accorded her sister brought the British diplomatist into disfavor with the Oregon government.

Pheasants of Klamath Held Tame Sport

Open Season in October Commented on By Gunners

Announcement of the state game commission that one week of pheasant shooting is to be provided in October for Klamath county has aroused considerable interest among members of the Klamath County Sportsmen's association.

Although the commission provided for the brief open season on the birds, at the earnest request of many people of Klamath county the opinion of many sportsmen is that the "sport" will not be exciting owing to the fact that the pheasants having been protected by state law for such a long period are very tame.

"One thing that the short shooting season will do is to drive the pheasants back from the farms into the woods and make them more cautious after the week's bombardment," is the opinion expressed by H. W. Poole, president of the Klamath County Sportsmen's association.

Some sportsmen have expressed the opinion that there would be an influx of gunners into Klamath county for the week of shooting in October, but the general opinion is that the known tameness of the birds here which takes away the keenness of the sport, will deter a large number of real sportsmen from coming into the county during the short open season.

Tiller was arrested several weeks ago in Glendale following an auto smashup near Spencer's ranch in which he struck a car driven by C. L. Hawkins. Hawkins was the complaining witness in the case.

Tiller's attorney asked Justice Emmitt to raise the fine to $25 so he could appeal to a higher court. The judge was about to grant the request when Tiller countermanded the order, saying that the action had gone far enough.

CHAMBER CITES FUNDS FIGURES ON '24 BUDGET

Klamath County to Raise $15,000 For Work This Year

Data on the funds provided for development work at other chambers of commerce of the state as a comparative basis to indicate the needs of the Klamath county chamber have been compiled. This campaign of raising the budget for the coming year for the local chamber is being outlined by the officials and special committees of the local body.

The budget for the Klamath county chamber has been set at $15,000 for the coming year. Last year the budget totaled $12,400. Based on a conservative estimate of a present population of 7,500 in Klamath Falls the chamber will make an appeal for an adequate budget to carry on the development program for the coming year.

Table Is Prepared.
The following table containing the names of the chambers of commerce, populations of the cities, budgets for 1923 and the budgets provided for the coming year, has been prepared. Hood River, population, 2,195, budget for 1923, $5,000; budget for 1924, $9,500; Grants Pass, 3,151, $8,200, $10,000; Pendleton, 7,387, $8,000, $10,000; Bend, 5,415, $8,700, $10,000; Astoria, 14,027, $9,000, $12,000; Salem, 17,679, $11,500, $13,000; The Dalles, 5,870, $10,000, $13,500; Medford, 6,000, $11,500, 14,000; Eugene, 10,593, $19,000, $20,000.

Showing the progress that is being made among chambers of commerce in California cities facts are cited on a group of seven cities in Fresno county showing population, membership in the chamber, and the budget for 1923.

Comparison Is Made.
The following is the list of Fresno county cities:
Clovis, population, 1800, members 225, budget 1923 $5,000; Fowler, 1800, 225, $6,000; Sanger, 1800, 250, $8,000; Kingsburg, 1800, 250, $12,500; Selma, 3,500, 375, $12,500; Reedley, 3,500, 500, $24,000; Dinuba, 5,000, 550, $22,000.

These towns are not selected at random, but are all in Fresno county. This means that one county, exclusive of the city of Fresno, is spending a total of $99,000 each year for development work.

Klamath County is spending less than one-sixth of this amount. Santa Monica, Alhambra, Hollywood and Inglewood—four cities in Los Angeles County—are spending $220,000 annually.

A comparison is also made with Englewood, which has a population of 750, similar to Klamath Falls. Englewood has a chamber of commerce membership of 500 and an annual budget of $30,000. Klamath Falls chamber membership is 275 and a budget of $15,000 is to be raised for the coming year.

OAKLAND ARTIST VISITS KLAMATH

Cartoonist on Bay Newspaper Impressed with Beauty of Region

"Beauties undreamed of," was the words of Frank Kettlewell, cartoonist and artist for the Oakland Tribune, in expressing himself today about Klamath and the Crater Lake country upon his arrival here, accompanied by Mrs. Kettlewell.

"Ket" as his cartoons are signed, has been on a tour of Oregon and will soon prepare an automobile page drawing of the roads and high points of interest in this state. This will appear in the Tribune.

Yesterday the Kettlewells were at Crater Lake and witnessed the sight presented by a heavy fall of summer snow over the entire park region. "It is impossible to describe the beauty of it," was the enthusiastic remark of the two visitors.

Departure from Klamath Falls was by motor over the new Ashland-Klamath Falls highway where Mr. and Mrs. Kettlewell were told they would find more scenic beauty and wonders.

The Kettlewells' visit means that the Klamath county has added two more ardent boosters who will carry their message into the bay region of California.

6 MORE CATTLE IN RIVER AREAS RABIES VICTIMS

Maddened Steers Charge on Cowboys in Sprague Valley District

Six more beef cattle in the lower Sprague River section have fallen victim to rabies from infected coyotes, according to reports received this morning by County Agent C. A. Henderson. The six dead cattle were ranging in the Hay Creek district several miles from where eight head of the Hugelstein herd died two or three days ago. Cowpunchers riding among the Hugelstein cattle before they died narrowly escaped injury when maddened steers charged at them. It has been learned.

A letter has been dispatched to Stanley Jewett of the United States Biological Survey of predatory animals and it is expected Mr. Jewett will hasten immediately to Klamath and assist in killing the infected coyotes.

An experienced trapper, working out of the county agent's office, will be sent to the Hay creek section on Monday to kill as many of the destructive animals as possible and endeavor to locate the infected coyotes.

In lower Sprague river valley there are said to be a large number of coyotes. Authorities state if the rabies continues to spread among them the danger to cattle herds will be great.

PORTLAND GROUPS OUTLINE CHARGES IN RATES HEARING

WALLA WALLA, June 21.—Further indications that Portland interests would base their opposition to the establishment of party grain rates, from territory south of the Snake River, on the cost of railway operations down the Columbia as compared to the haul over the mountains to Puget Sound ports, as well as differences in distances as given in testimony of J. P. Newell, consulting engineer of Portland, became apparent at the opening of the interstate commerce commission hearing today.

Newell was first witness today. Late yesterday he reintroduced an exhibit containing figures used in the original Columbia basin rate case and this morning he continued explanation of those figures.

WALLA WALLA, June 21.—H. W. Collins, Pendleton grain buyer, testifying for Portland in the Columbia basin rate hearing today was confronted with two letters alleged written by him. One declared "farmers kicking because of grain buyers combination," the other disclosed he was working with the Kerr-Gifford company which the farmers' counsel maintained was contrary to his previous testimony that he was selling to several different firms in Portland. Apparently surprised, the Portland attorneys asked a recess to confer with the witness.

When the first letter was produced Collins was testifying that the price of wheat to the growers of this district of Washington in his opinion, was a result of the differential and that no combination of buyers existed. Ewell, who had been occupying the stand, had given way to Collins in order to bring out these points from the first interior witness who has taken the side of the Portland intervenors.
