TREE PLANTERS

If the whole country had the tree-planting zeal of a few individuals, there would be no fear for the future of the forests or the timber supply of the United States.

The head of the American Tree Association, as part of his effort to increase public interest in tree-planting, has been hunting for the champion tree planter of the United States.

If 500,000 individuals who have never planted a tree in their lives would agree to plant one piece this year in appreciation of Mr. Luther's larger efforts, real progress would be made in spreading the gospel.

TO ENGLAND FOR LAW.

Four hundred members of the American Bar Association have left for England to attend an international bar convention in London.

It is a good thing for those lawyers to go and talk things over with their professional brethren in England. It may be a good thing for their country, too.

The two countries started even in the theory and practice of law. Our American law is based upon the English common law. There was a time when American administration of justice was much improved over the English system.

It is an old maxim that "justice delayed is justice denied." Thousands of Americans have justice thus denied right along, in civil suits, because they lack money or patience to see them through the long series of trials, re-trials, appeals, reversals, etc.

114,000,000 PEOPLE.

Big figures no longer carry much meaning, but there is a thrill in the announcement that the United States now contains almost 114,000,000 people and may be expected to reach that total some time in August.

It is a tremendous lot of human beings. Imagine them all lined up for you to count. Imagine them marching past a given point. Imagine them assembled at one place, in a compact crowd.

Our 114,000,000 Americans, in spite of their varied origin and the diversity of language and custom found among individuals and localities, are nevertheless one people.

The numerical immensity of the nation is overcome by the perfection of its means of communication. As a result, any American can go anywhere in America and still be among his kind.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The uncertainty of politics were never better demonstrated than in the closing sessions of the Democratic convention, where the pent-up votes of a thousand restless delegates, breaking the deadlock that had held them back through nine days of balloting, rushed forth like flood waters when a dam has burst and, catching Davis and Bryan on the crest of the waves, swept them swiftly to the nomination.

Delegates who were swept off their feet on the final day and threw their ballots, into that Davis-Bryan whirlpool, make no apologies for their actions.

No phase of convention activities were more interesting than those which immediately followed the nomination of Davis for the top of the ticket.

The vice-presidential sentiment, could not be crystallized until after the presidential selection had been made. For everybody conceded the second place on the ticket, for political reasons, would have to go to someone who would help "balance the ticket."

With an eastern man for president, a western man must be chosen. The ticket mustn't be sectional.

Davis' nomination, therefore, at once eliminated Silzer of New Jersey, Copeland of New York and Ritchie of Maryland as real contenders. Who could the west offer that would be of real help?

The first man the convention turned to was Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, chairman of the convention, who had directed the senatorial investigation into the Sinclair-Fall-Dohney oil leases.

Walsh could have had the nomination in a minute. In fact, he promptly adjourned the convention, following the nomination of Davis, without putting the question, in order to head off a move to nominate him to second place by acclamation.

Walsh then explained to party leaders that it would be most unwise to place him on the presidential ticket. He is up for re-election to the Senate this fall, and is sure of sweeping his state for that office. But the fate of the Democratic presidential ticket is not so certain. He would be much more valuable to the party, he explained, as a real senator than as a problematical vice president.

In deference to his wishes—in fact to his demand—Walsh was reluctantly passed by.

Second choice of the large majority of delegates from the western field, to which the choice was limited, was Edwin Meredith of Iowa.

Meredith lives in the center of the great agricultural region which is the seat of the cramps which threaten to bring on political convulsions this fall. The trouble has been diagnosed out there as too much Wall Street.

Meredith, as publisher of farm periodicals and in close touch with agricultural thought and sentiment, realized that a lot of explaining would have to be done to convince the mid-west that a New York attorney, with his office on Broad street just around the corner from Wall, and with J. P. Morgan as his client, is not to a considerable degree influenced by if not representative of Wall Street.

honor. Thereby setting a new record for the Democrats.

One Republican—Lowden—refused the G. O. P. vice-presidential place. Two Democrats—Walsh and Meredith—refused it from the Democrats.

POTATO CROP HERE TO BE LATER THAN LAST YEAR, REPORT

Investigations conducted by C. A. Henderson, county agent, and E. R. Jackson, connected with the extension department of the Oregon Agricultural College, have disclosed that the potato harvest will be later this year than usual and the output will be slightly under normal.

This is caused, Mr. Jackson said by the weather conditions. Mr. Jackson inspected many Klamath potato fields in search of disease. Beyond a few minor diseases nothing of importance was discovered.

Mr. Jackson is one of the foremost authorities in the west on farm crops. He left this morning for Bend, via Crater Lake accompanied by W. D. Kaddler. He will probably return to Klamath Falls some time in the early part of August to be the principal speaker at a picnic lunch given by the Klamath Potato Producers association.

BODY OF MAN HELD TO BE M'LEARY IS FOUND AT RALEIGH

RALEIGH, N. C., July 17.—A body believed that of Mayor Samuel McLeary, who mortimer King, of Canton, is alleged to have confessed he killed, was found 11 miles north of Cheraw, S. C., today by a searching party. The body was mangled, having been eaten by animals and practically nothing was left but the bones. No clothing was found.

KLAMATH BOYS ARE COMING FROM CAMP

Closing of the annual Camp Lewis Citizens military training camp is scheduled for tomorrow and the three Klamath county boys who have been in attendance for the past month are expected to return here within the next few days. The local boys are Donald Loomis, Joe Paynter and Walter Peck. The month's course of military training has been a big success and the boys had an enjoyable although rather strenuous time during their stay, is the report received here.

KANSAS CITY FIRE TAKES LIVES OF 7

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 17.—Two firemen were fatally injured and several others seriously hurt and five negroes burned to death in an explosion and fire early today, which wrecked a store and an apartment building in the negro quarter. Firemen, Earl Harvey and John Hayden were pinned under a falling wall.

BOURBONS HOPE TO CHANGE UNIT RULE

CHICAGO, July 17.—Concerted action by members of the Democratic national committee from a number of western and southern states in an endeavor to make both the unit rule and two-third majority inoperative in future national conventions had advanced today to the stage of formal interchange of views on the subject, a member of the committee revealed.

TRACES NOT FOUND OF BRITISH PILOT

TOKIO, July 17.—No trace of A. Stuart MacLaren, British aviator, overdue due at Paramashiru Island, in Kuriles, with companions, has been found up to tonight. MacLaren is more than 33 hours overdue. Japanese destroyers are continuing the search.

AMERICA LEADS OLYMPIC SWIMS

United States Adds More Points to Score in Water Events

OLYMPIC SWIMMING POOL, Les Tourelles, France, July 17.—The United States won two out of three final Olympic swimming events today, adding 33 points to the American score, placing the United States far ahead of Australia the nearest competitor in the water sports.

The United States finished one, two, three in the springboard fancy diving, and first and third in the 200 meter breast stroke swim. Albert C. White, of Leland Stanford University, Pete Des Jardines of Miami, Fla., and Clarence Pinkston, of San Francisco, finished in that order in the diving competition, gaining 19 points. The Americans gained 14 points in the breast stroke event. Robert Skelton, of Illinois A. C. taking first place and W. T. Kirschbaum, or Hawaii, taking third.

France won the Olympic water polo championship today, defeating Belgium in the finals, three to nothing.

HOUSTON IS NAMED FOR "AD" SESSIONS

LONDON, July 17.—The general session of the International Advertising convention today adopted a resolution approving Houston, Texas, for the 1925 convention. Lou E. Holland was re-elected president and Jesse H. Neal secretary-treasurer of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world.

What the World Needs

Self-satisfaction and contentment with present conditions are the most dangerous factors in the life of an individual, a community, a state or a nation. We must try to do better. We need a vision. No great thing has ever been done without a vision.

Vision comes not from work alone nor from books and words alone, but through a combination of the two. The highest type of citizen can be produced only as he is trained through his life's work. After all, the whole object and purpose of education is to make a great human being capable of performing all the duties efficiently that come to him as a citizen.

The primary purpose is not to create a man who can grow more corn and raise more pigs—with the emphasis on the corn and pigs; the object is first to make useful men and women and, as a result, there will be greater production. The emphasis should be placed on the man, not on his work, nor on the product of his labor.

world, their days and years of toil and labor. The boy who has raised a calf or a pig has learned some of the principles of feeding, and this with the profit he received made the work amount to something. Work—real problems—develops strength, self-confidence and ability. Work makes better citizens physically, spiritually, morally, intellectually, economically.
