At the Pine Tree

In the picturization of Louis Joseph Vance's thrilling novel, "The Lone Wolf," Jack Holt as the famous fictional character, does one of the most sensational stunts ever caught by a motion picture camera. Holt as Lanyard, "the Lone Wolf," takes to the air with Dorothy Dalton, a secret service operative whose identity at the time is not known to Lanyard, who believes her to be a member of the famous Pack of Parisian underworld criminals, in pursuit of Eckstrom, an international spy. Eckstrom has stolen government plans upon his person. Holt and Miss Dalton chase Eckstrom, played by Alphonse Ethier, through the heavens, with Holt jumping from one plane to the other and making a return trip via a daring parachute drop.

Holt more than duplicated the marvelous four-mile parachute leap by an army officer at Kelly Flying Field, duplicated in the sense of accomplishing the impossible.

At the Pine Tree Saturday only.

AT THE LIBERTY

"Cupid's Rustler" featured at the Liberty Theatre, tonight shows Ed Cobb as the instrument of Cupid. He steals his own horses to help the girl he loves.

The picture is brimful of dash and excitement and tells of a cowboy named Jim who helps a girl to run the O. D. Ranch which belongs to her Mother. To do so he steals 200 head of his own horses. The sheriff gets on his trail and arrests him. You will get a dynamic thrill when you see the girl come to the rescue and haul him by rope up the side of a steep cliff while the posse sleeps underneath, and yet another when Jim is surrounded by the posse and escapes through what seems to be an impenetrable barrier from the deserted cabin wherein he was in hiding. However, at the end Jim is recognized by his foreman as being the owner of the ranch from which the horses were stolen, and all ends as it should with Cupid as Chief Engineer.

Ed Cobb is tremendously popular with Western fans and they will not be disappointed in this latest vehicle of his which comes quite up to the mark of his previous pictures.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—"One Eyed Connolly," champion gate crasher, would have had a hard time getting into the farewell costume ball given by Prince Gelasio Caetani, Italian ambassador.

For the prince had provided special protection against just that sort of visitor.

Despite the fact it was a masked affair, every arrival had to identify himself at the door. Lift his mask, and then wait until his name had been checked against a list of those who had been invited.

If the guests met all these tests they were permitted to mask again and enter.

If they didn't—but they went, without having been in!

The procedure followed by Prince Caetani was made necessary by the increasing number of "society crashers" in Washington.

Growing numbers of folks without invitations, but with dress suits and a polished front, have been "horneing in" on receptions and parties.

On some occasions the number of persons present at a given affair has been almost double the total of invited guests.

At one place, it is recounted, the "batters-in" had eaten up most of the refreshments before the honest-to-goodness guests arrived.

So when Caetani, who is credited with having stopped an Austrian advance by blowing the top off an Italian mountain with dynamite prepared for his party, he set for himself the same slogan he did on that occasion—"They shall not pass." And they didn't.

As a result, the Caetani farewell party was one of the really exclusive "large" affairs given at the capital this winter.

Although officially the recent departure of Jules Jusserand, French ambassador, marked the high tide of regret for a departing envoy, Prince Caetani's going actually leaves more heartaches.

For Don Gelasio is a handsome bachelor, dashing rather than dignified. His adventures, from railroad building with a construction gang in California to his heroic war exploits, clothed him in an aura of romance not equaled by any other member of the diplomatic corps. Being unattached, matrimonially, he of course had an advantage over most of his diplomatic colleagues. As a result, wherever he went, it was the traditional "lits of the party."

As a diplomat, Caetani's big work was to help get Uncle Sam's viewpoint straight with respect to the
