AT THE LIBERTY

The famous vaudeville team of Crimmins and Gore, favorites in the west and midwest especially, have finally deserted the two-day to do work in pictures.

They are now appearing in the new Franklin Farnum attraction, in which they do much the same type of burlesque as they used so extensively on the stage.

In this new picture they play the parts of the mother and father of a wealthy Chicago girl.

A great deal of the comedy is supplied by Crimmins and Gore, the mother and father.

See them in "The Bandit Tamer" at the Liberty Theatre tonight.

Are 24 kissing scenes in one eight reel photoplay too many?

Watcher," which is coming to the Liberty Theatre Sunday and Monday say "most certainly not, that is, for married couples." The usual photoplay has but half a dozen kissing scenes before the final close-up, but the usual photoplay does deal with the romance within the homes of three married couples.

"Romance is the guiding spirit of human life. There is romance in all things. Without romance life wouldn't be worth living. Affection is never common when it is real.

AT THE PINE TREE

"Two Shall Be Born," which will be the attraction at the Pine Tree Theatre today, is the love story of a New York traffic policeman—and a most memorable and engaging cop he is, too. The story is set in New York City with plot threads extending to foreign countries. The original novel by Marie Conway Oemler has a full measure of that charm which has endeared the authoress to a multitude of readers.

A strong cast appearing in a story that offers extraordinary opportunities for moving entertainment. This is the promise of "Fear-Bound," which comes to the Pine Tree Theatre Sunday, to remain two days.

"Fear-Bound" is a Western, but with appeals for every class of picture-lover. It has thrills galore—but there is an appealing romance threading its way through the plot, there are clever comedy touches, and there are settings that are said to entitle the picture to a place among productions of the highest artistry.
