FARM POINTERS

Large scale poultry raising on one, two, and three tracts is a hazardous and generally short lived enterprise, according to H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist for Oregon extension service. Soil contamination with its attendant destructive diseases is almost sure to follow such system of management.

Construct poultry range and laying houses atop the pattern of types that have proved their worth, advises H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist for the extension service. Plans for successful houses can be had from any county agent or by writing the Oregon Agricultural college, Corvallis.

Experimental work at O. A. C. with potatoes has shown the hot formaldehyde and the corrosive sublimate treatment to be about equally effective. The corrosive sublimate treatment is best suited to small lots of potatoes, while, where there are to be large plantings, and where facilities are available for providing plenty of hot water, the hot formaldehyde treatment is most economical.

It is better business to buy all baby chicks at one time where only one range and one brooder equipment are available than to attempt to brood and range together chicks of different ages, says H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist for O. A. C. extension.

Apparatus has been invented which broadcasts received by radio can be permanently recorded on a magnetic wire.
