Peasant Embroidery

Doris Kenyon Wears a Youthful Frock Made Lovely with Colorful Stitching.

THERE has come to greet the earliest days of spring a one piece frock which is as unusual as it is charming. Straight, of course, are the lines which the youthful silhouette demands, and possessing for its beauty the embroidery found on the blouses and dresses of the peasant lands of Europe.

Blouses which come from Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia and the far places of Russia are artfully utilized in this new type of gown. Sleeves with the quaint and charming fullness of the old world, with colorful embroidery artistically employed in silk or worsted, with broad collar or shirred necks, are used with a straight line frock which is cut low in front and is without sleeves.

When the frock is of beige, beige or the new Kasha cloth, the blouse which uses vivid reds, blues or greens is most effective. Dark blue or brown, too, may be successfully combined with these lovely blouses with their gorgeous stitching.

Doris Kenyon, in First National's "The Half Way Girl," wears with great success a frock which combines the art of the old world with the new. Hers is a straight little frock, scalloped at the bottom in two rows. A long cape which fastens at the neckline in the back falls gracefully to the knees. The blouse which is worn with this frock is embroidered and shirred in the most successful and colorful manner of the peasant lands of Europe. The sleeve, a huge affair, is long, and is caught in at the cuff with the silken material used to fashion the gown, which is the season's smartest shade, beige.

LUMBERJACK JIM WINS PRIZE FOR HOME-MADE YARN

Some modest tale-teller who hides his identity under the pen name of "Lumberjack Jim" wins the hand-painted peavy as well as one of Lumberlogue's perfectly good "bucks" with his contribution this week on the "home-brew" series of Paul Bunyan stories which The Lumberlogue is inaugurating. His Paul Bunyan story is a good one, as you'll agree when you hunt it up some where in this week's issue and cast your lamps on it.

Several others also were received but Lumberjack Jim wins the dollar prize which Lumberlogue offers this week.

We want a lot more of these Paul Bunyan stories from the mills and camps. So just get out life old pencil and weave us a yarn about the mythical Paul and see if you can't be the one to win the dollar next week.

JACKSON MEAN DANCER

People who attended the last Community club dance declare that if Ace Jackson cuts half as mean a glide in the air as he does on the dance floor that he will deserve his name of Ace.

RETAIL TRADE IS PICKING UP

Red River Plant in California Cutting Steadily, Reports Show

SAN FRANCISCO.—Fine spring weather is facilitating building operations and retail dealers are doing a fair volume of business and are buying a little lumber. Many steam schooners are tied up, and fir shipments to California ports are not excessive. Japan and Australia are taking some fir. Parcel shipments or redwood are moving to Australia, and offerings of new business are being considered.

The Red River Lumber Co., continues to make a good output of white pine at Westwood. There is a moderate assortment on hand. The new veneer factory is making a good output. Logging is progressing favorably.

The Standard Lumber Co., will make a good cut of California white and sugar pine at Standard this year. D. H. Steinhilber, general manager, has been conferring with W. A. Pickering, head of the W. R. Pickering Lumber Co., about plans for operations. A good output of sash and doors is being made.

J. M. White, general manager of the Weed Lumber Co., thinks that the lumber market for 1925 will be good, both on the coast and in the east. The company is planning an output of 135,000,000 feet which will make it rank as one of the largest producing concerns of California.

The Diamond Match company, at Sterling City (Butte county) has commenced its operations for the 1925 season.

The Penman Lumber company, a new concern, is building a new mill near Blairdsen, Plumas county, and expects to have it ready to handle the season's cut which will be about 10,000,000 feet.

Radio phone tests, between ships, have recently been successfully made by ships of the Matson Navigation company, the Maui's radio telephone set is a 5-tube, 250 watt installation. The Matsonia has a 1,000 watt set, installed some years ago. The two vessels talk with each other on every trip.

WOMEN ADOPT BARBER WORK

Craze for Bobbing Hair Brings Jobs to Feminine Sex

LONDON, Apr. 11.—The women and girls of England are being absorbed back into industry far more quickly than the men and boys according to recent statistics on unemployment. Hair dressing, owing to the bobbed hair craze, has given employment to a large number of young women who earn better wages than the men barbers because of the extra charges made for trimming bobbed locks. Men in London pay approximately 25 cents for a hair cut while women pay double that amount.

Last spring there were 300,000 women among the unemployed of Great Britain, while today the number is something like 250,000. Although about 1,000,000 extra women and girls are now at work compared with the figures of the year before the beginning of the war, women and girls together do not represent one-quarter of the total of unemployed. Government officials say there is every indication that the number of unemployed, both men and women, will be greatly reduced during this year.

Jack Nelson Chased Crippled Jackass All Over Hills of Algoma

Jack Nelson, of Pelican City, took a hunting trip after mule tail deer last season. He had no luck, but on his return reported seeing many split tracks, which he knew had been made by mule tail deer. The men of Pelican City assured Jack that mule tail deer not only had tails like mules, but that their hoofs were solid.

A few days later Nelson made a trip to the hills back of Algoma, and chased a poor crippled old jackass that had been abandoned by some shepherders all over the hills. Although Nelson never caught sight of the jackass, we understand that he is becoming a little skeptical about those solid hoofed deer this year.

MANICURE WANTED

Charlie Strom, of Pelican City, declares that he would not mind going out fishing if the fish would have themselves worked over by some cute little manicurist.

Perfume in Ear Ring

NO longer need ladies carry her perfume in the oversized vanity cases. Hollywood fashions have decreed a much simpler method, the ring and earring. Jocelyn Lee, film actress, is shown with the "perfume earring," while Eugenia Gilbert carries her perfume in a tiny gold flask concealed within her ring.
