FORT KLAMATH TRIP PLANNED

R. C. Groesbeck to Be Speaker at Community Dinner Wednesday

R. C. Groesbeck will be the Klamath Falls speaker at the Fort Klamath-Klamath Falls get-together tomorrow night at Fort Klamath when more than 60 local men and women will motor to the Fort for dinner and a program. Two residents of Fort Klamath will also be on the program as speakers of the evening. Frank Confer of Klamath Falls will be present with several vocal selections and instrumental music will be provided. A three-piece orchestra will be taken to the Fort in order to enjoy a jittery dance after the dinner.

The program will be exceedingly short, in order to give the Fort Klamath residents a chance to tell the assets of their country and if they are in need of help to give the chamber a chance to hear about their conflicts so that they may render any assistance possible.

SEEK SPEAKER FOR BANQUET

Directors May Obtain Ex-Governor Campbell for Community Dinner

If the invitation of the Klamath Falls chamber of commerce to Senator Samuel Shortridge of California to speak at the community dinner the latter part of May is declined it may be possible that ex-Governor Campbell of Arizona may be the guest of the chamber and deliver the main address of the evening. The matter was discussed before the meeting of the board of directors of the chamber at noon today. Other names were suggested such as the assistant secretary of agriculture and a few reclamation service men, who may be in this district at the time of the dinner.

Although the final date has not been set, the speaker when chosen will probably name the most convenient time for his arrival. R. E. Crego was named chairman of the dinner to be given in the White Pelican hotel, with W. W. McNealy and Fred Houston serving with him. Houston will be in charge of the decorations.

Discussion of the Fort Klamath trip was held and Andy Collier and H. N. Moe named as a committee of two to canvass Main street in the interest of the last caravan trip of the season. Charles Martin, chairman of the auditing committee, gave reports of the past year. Reports of the primary election were given by Secretary Lynn Sabin.
