SAVE THE RODEO

It is to be hoped that misunderstanding which exists between members of the Bly Rodeo association and the chamber of commerce committee over the purchase or lease of the equipment of the Rodeo association will soon be ironed out.

Every possible means should be employed to save the Rodeo for Klamath county and for Klamath Falls. It is an institution which brings back, in part, some of the glamour of the early west, and for this reason, as well as because it provides clean and exciting entertainment, it should be perpetuated.

The members of the Bly Rodeo association are deserving unstinted commendation for the faith which caused them to carry on in face of financial obstacles over a period of years. They have weathered several severe storms, but by courage and faith they have kept on until the annual Rodeo is now a very definite part of the life of the Klamath country.

If possible, some solution should be found whereby Klamath Falls might take over the Rodeo, and in so doing, pay the Bly men an adequate price for their equipment. These men are entitled to a just return on their investment.

Klamath Falls should get squarely back of this movement to save the Rodeo and subscribe sufficient funds to complete a transfer which would be just and satisfactory to all concerned.

If the United States really desires peace in Europe, why do our financiers continue to loan them money for armament purposes? It does not fit in with the pleas for peace, participation in League of Nations or otherwise, it savors so strongly of hypocrisy that one is justified in loss of faith.

Rock Creek Road Mix-up Unsolved

If the Rock Creek bridge is not constructed across Link river below the California Oregon Power company dam it is quite likely that it will not be constructed across the river at any point.

This was the observation of several directors of the chamber of commerce, including J. A. Gordon, when the matter of creation of an improvement district on Conger avenue was brought up this noon.

The bond issue, from which the county secured funds to complete the Rock Creek project, stipulated that the bridge should be built below the power company dam, Mr. Gordon said. Hence the proposition suggested by many that the bridge cross Link river above the dam and the road be routed through Shipington, would be impossible because the bond issue funds could not be utilized by the county.

Andy Collier, president of the chamber, urged that something be done toward the completion of the project. He appointed E. H. Balsiger, E. B. Hall and J. W. Kerns as a committee to investigate whether or not the property holders along Conger avenue were still adamant against the creation of an improvement district for the improvement of Conger avenue, which would mean the completion of the Rock Creek road project.

Controversy to Be Compromised

Argument Between U. of O. and O. A. C. Near Settlement

PORTLAND, Ore., May 19.—While the state board of higher curricula, which yesterday heard both sides of the controversy between the University of Oregon and Oregon Agricultural college on duplication of courses has the questions at issue under advisement today, members of the faculty of the two institutions are endeavoring to make adjustments. The board late yesterday adjourned to study the brief and statements of representatives of both schools. Decision is not expected for some time, said Dr. C. J. Smith, chairman.

Differences to be decided center principally around the school of commerce and the school of journalism, it developed late yesterday, for efforts are being made to settle the other issues by compromises.

Oregon Caseys Name Salem Man As State Deputy At Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., May 19.—Knights of Columbus of Oregon, in annual session here, were today enjoying a trip over the Columbia river highway following the closing of the business of the convention late yesterday. Frank Davey of Salem was elected state deputy; John J. Dooley of Albany, state secretary; Frank Ryan of Ontario, state treasurer; Dan J. Coman of Portland, state advocate; Frank Fitzpatrick, state warden.

William Eagles of Albany was named official delegate to the supreme convention which will be held in Duluth, Minn. In addition the state deputy and the past state deputy will be delegates.

A resolution was adopted urging establishment of five radio broadcasting superstations in connection with Catholic universities.

Liquor Conspiracy Unearthed In East

NEWARK, N. J., May 19.—A conspiracy in which it is alleged the government has been swindled out of more than a quarter of a million dollars in taxes and in which this city has been made the center of activities for an alleged bootleg ring handling thousands of gallons of alcohol was alleged to have been revealed today. It was announced that 20 individuals and two industrial firms were under indictment charging conspiracy.

NO FLOWERS

J. G. Darling, principal of the Klamath County high school, this morning announced that no graduation presents or flowers should be presented to graduates at commencement exercises. Graduation exercises will be held next Friday night.

State Will Take Over Sand Island

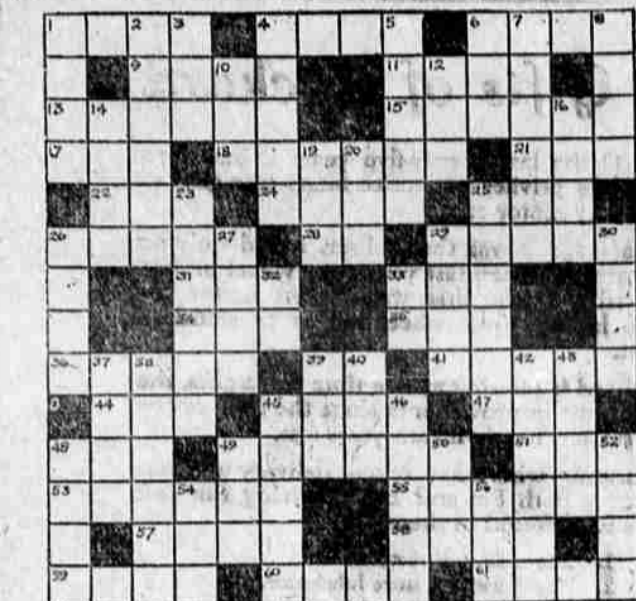

SALEM, Ore., May 19.—After 62 years of alleged violation of its agreement with the state of Oregon the United States will at last lose control of and profits of the Sand Island in the mouth of the Columbia river, if plans of the state land board are carried to success.

In 1864 Sand Island was ceded to the government by the state to be used for military purposes, and this was a condition of the transfer of the island to the government. But the government never has used the island for military purposes, but instead has leased it as a fishing ground, for which it is very valuable. Now the state land board has a plan for recovering possession of the island. At a meeting a week from tomorrow the board will assume that the state owns the island and will lease it to some corporation for fishing purposes. If the government contests the state's rights the corporation to which it is leased, according to an offer and agreement now made, will defend the state's position in court.

Immoral Conduct Case Opens Today In Justice Court

First step in the prosecution of Maximo Isham and Dean Upton who are held under a charge of immoral conduct, will be taken this afternoon when the couple will be given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace R. E. Hunsaker to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to bind them over to the grand jury.

Arrest of the couple on this charge, followed apprehension of the woman on a charge of intoxication. The couple are charged with registering at a local rooming house as husband and wife.

Council Silent on Executive Franchise Veto

(Continued From Page One) with his proposition, the council declined to take any action on the proposition of R. E. Koon, member of the firm of sanitary engineers, Stevens & Koon, of Portland, who, upon the request of the council, investigated the city sewage system with the idea of submitting a proposition for its betterment. Mr. Koon was told that other engineers had been communicated with and that until other propositions were heard no definite action could be taken.

Merle West, chairman of the finance committee, reported to the council that there was now $1000 available to pay the United Rubber company a long outstanding bill for fire hose purchased. There is still $500 owing on the bill.

Fred Cofer, chairman of the fire committee, reported that two shacks recommended for condemnation by Fire Chief Keith K. Ambrose should be razed immediately. One of the shacks is behind 515 Klamath avenue and the other behind 423 Main street. The fire chief was instructed to take immediate steps to see that the buildings were torn down.

C. E. Stuckey, chairman of the police committee, reported that it appeared there was sufficient population to warrant the installation of pool tables in the card room under neath the Hart building.

Michigan Avenue Whether or not the Michigan avenue improvement was completed or not again came up before the council for discussion with conflicting views characterizing the discussion. The matter was brought up by a resident of Michigan avenue, who submitted a petition requesting that M. M. Obenchain be appointed temporary inspector to oversee completion of the surfacing work.

Original specifications provided for a base surfacing of rock and top surfacing of cinders. The top surfacing all agreed was of rock. But, as one councilman explained it, owing to inability of Miller to obtain cinders from the upper lake, because of the lowness of the lake rendering navigation impossible, it was informally decided by the council, the city engineer and the contractor that rock should be used in place of cinders.

Whether or not this informal action of the council will hold good in the future, as against the plans and specifications under which W. D. Miller Construction company took the contract, is the question which remains to be solved. The council deferred action pending further investigation.

Court Dissolves Road Injunction

PORTLAND, Ore., May 19.—The temporary injunction obtained by Frederick M. DeNeff, local attorney, enjoining the state highway commission from entering into a contract with Simonsen and Huffy to repave 8.9 miles of the lower Columbia river highway between Astoria and Svenson, was dissolved late yesterday by Presiding Circuit Judge Morrow.

Judge Morrow declared at the conclusion of arguments that in his opinion the highway commission's contract is not a proper one. He held, however, that DeNeff, as a taxpayer, is not qualified to attack the validity of the contract through the courts. At the request of Jay Bowerman, representing DeNeff, the judge agreed that upon filing of a demurrer he would deny the right to amend, thus bringing about a final decree and preparing the way for appeal to the supreme court.

Search of Vessels To Be Restricted

GENEVA, May 19.—The amendment to establish the right to search ships suspected of conveying arms improperly was today eliminated from the proposed convention of the international conference for the control of traffic in arms and munitions. The American delegation led the opposition to the amendment.

The Geneva conference also voted today to abandon the proposed plan of a control board under the league of nations to regulate traffic in arms and munition. The delegation has opposed such a board.

Miss Evelyn Amick will have as her house guest, Miss Mary K. Johnson of Lakeview, who will arrive the early part of next week for several days visit. While in the city Miss Johnson will attend the Tri S dance which will be an event of May 27 in the White Pelican hotel.
