BOARD HEARS OF CONDITIONS HERE

He was followed by H. J. Tichenor, one of the directors of the project, whose statement was similar to that of Mr. Wishard's. "The only thing we have to ask from the government is that we be given a little longer time to get our lands in shape and permit some of the large owners to divide up and sell their ranches before the public notice is issued. This is a new project, somewhat removed from railway transportation and it is going to take some time to get things so that we will be able to meet the charges. Give us just a little leeway, and the government will find that we will meet the payments."

Gale Optimistic A. E. Gale, another of the directors, was equally as emphatic in his endorsement of the service. "What we have we got because we did not fight for it. We just figured what we ought to have, went out after it and stayed with it until we came home with the bacon. As a result we have the best projects in the United States. I own 400 acres, but it is impossible for me and my son to work this and get it in shape to meet the charges if the public notice is not withheld for a time. I want to dispose of 250 acres and I will sell it at just about what I have in it. So will the other large land-owners.

Settlers Expected "We are now negotiating with farmers from the Owens river valley section and I expect that within a few months we will have fifty families from there located in Langell valley. They are well satisfied with the land, the price, the climate and the abundance of water."

In reply to a question from Mr. Goodwin, Mr. Gale gave a history of the $12.50 charge for water, stating that first it was offered at $9; later at $10 and finally at the price now fixed—$12.50.

W. H. Pankey was the last speaker for Langell valley. He classified the land in the valley and he stated that there was no doubt about the farmers being able to pay out if they were given time to get their lands segregated before the public notice was issued.

History Given The next matter to come before the meeting was an argument by A. M. Thomas, secretary of the Klamath Irrigation district. Mr. Thomas gave a history of the delinquencies and asked for a withdrawal of all these charges and a reassessment, the repayment to be made upon the basis of crop returns.

"I wish to emphasize the fact that this unhappy condition is not due, as has been charged, to the fact that our farmers are deficient in ability or industry," said Mr. Thomas. "Our record of payments, as compared with those projects more advantageously situated with relation to production, crops, transportation and markets, proves this."

Power Still Bared "Because these delinquencies were our short growing season, lack of sufficient market, lack of capital, lack of development, lack of transportation to basic markets, unusual and long continued depression in agriculture that was nationwide, the failure of the district directors, now retired, to stop delinquencies when legal action could have been safely applied, and the alleged definite and persistent and orderly effort, continuing from 1916 until the advent of the present secretary of the interior, and which effort has so far seemed to be successful, to deprive the water users of one of their most valuable assets, power production; because the reclamation service, until the advent of Secretary Work, the Fact Finding committee and Commissioner Mead, had made no intelligent effort to find and correct the things fundamentally wrong with the plan of service operation; because the present and unfortunate and, if unremedied, disastrous situation is caused by all these contributing factors, many of which are unlikely to permit or to recur, we think you are justified in recommending that the government take extraordinary steps in relief now."

Consideration of the tax question was postponed until Thursday morning and that of the land classification was taken up by the board. A. L. Wishard appeared objecting to the placing of certain lands in the Altamont Acres being placed in Class 5. Mr. Wishard stated that it has been placed in Class 1 and Class 2 by Soil Expert Dixon and on this basis asked that it be returned to these classes.

Wishard Hits Snag This was objected to by the directors of the district, who claimed that the land was worthless for agriculture and that the only in-interest Mr. Wishard had it it was to sell the land in small tracts at high prices and let the buyer make the best of it.

A newspaper article was placed in the record, carrying a statement to the effect that buyers of these small tracts would be permitted to participate in district elections, the claim being that those back of Altamont Acres had in mind an effort to gain control of the district board would work in behalf of private directors, electing men who interests and against those of the farmers, as has been done in the past.

Plot Denied To this contention Mr. Wishard entered a vigorous denial, stating that the statement in question slipped into the paper while he was absent from the city and it should not have been made public.

The matter was brought to a close by Chairman Campbell stating that the question would be settled by their soil expert, to whom the case would be referred.

should remain as they stood. He charged Bradbury and his associates with being the cause of farmers on the district not paying their taxes in the past few years. By agitation and propaganda, he claimed, Bradbury had induced farmers to not pay their irrigation taxes. He told the board that Bradbury had not paid taxes on his own land.

Nylander said that he could see no reason why the delinquencies should be deferred and said that he had had no trouble in paying his taxes.

Bradbury Retaliates Bradbury, characterizing Drew as a "horseback farmer," told the board his opinion of why Drew could pay his taxes. He said Drew made his money through buying up Klamath Indian livestock at low prices. He pointed out that the Indians were supplied the money for the purchase of the livestock by the interior department.

Mr. Bradbury took occasion to explain in detail why he was delinquent in his irrigation taxes.
