

...still C-T-C sales mount upward!

FROM Los Angeles, Salt Lake, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco . . . everywhere in the West . . . come reports of increasing C-T-C sales!

In 1924, the number of retail dealers selling C-T-C's, made a tremendous increase—120 per cent gain over 1923.

And still C-T-C sales mount upward! It looks as though unquestionably 1925 sales will at least double those of 1924!

The reason? Engineers behind C-T-C are keeping their promise!

They came West from Akron, where they held high executive positions, to build even a better tire in the West. Motorist say they have done it.

We shall be glad to give you expert information about your tires, and—if you need them—put on C-T-C's—either balloons, semi-balloons, heavy-duty cords or oversize cords!

ISABELLE POPE, GIRL WHO WAS TO HAVE MARRIED M'CLINTOCK, SAD FIGURE IN SHEPHERD TRIAL

CHICAGO, May 30.—The deepest of all the tragedies that have grown out of Billy McClintock's fortune is hidden behind the shadows in two clear gray eyes.

Isabelle Pope, the girl Billy McClintock would have married if death had not intervened, does not care to have the world share her sorrow.

"I dislike being bathed in sentimentality," she says. "I do not wear my were sweethearts from childhood.

Will Tell of Death

Miss Pope is just 22. She has been resting with relatives in California ever since the inquest into Billy's death, when State's Attorney Crowe ran on to the chain of circumstances that led to the indictment of Shepherd for murder.

She is to be asked to tell how she came to Billy's home with a preacher and a marriage license, and how Shepherd, she affections on my sleeve for the world to see."

There are no hysterics, there are no tears—except when she lets herself think of the dream that could never come true.

Miss Pope is to testify for the state in the trial of William D. Shepherd, Billy's foster father, who is accused of killing him with typhoid germs to get his fortune.

Will Do Her Duty

She will do her duty quietly and unemotionally, and then she wants to hear no more of it. Shadows of sorrow well in her eyes as she speaks of it.

"I would rather that what I must do were not to be," she says.

"It will be very bitter. Why must everything be picked to pieces again?"

"My only hope is that the trial will be over quickly. I want to be present as little as possible."

"But I want justice done. I will do as they ask. I will tell the truth."

And then she wants to go back to teach in her kindergarten and forget. Forget that she waited with a marriage license while Billy's life slipped away; forget that she never could become the bride of the man she loved; forget everything, perhaps, except that she and Billy says, kept her from joining the youth until it was too late.

This is expected to support the state's claim that Shepherd sought his ward's money. Had the two been married, McClintock's fortune of a million-odd dollars would have gone to his wife. As it was, it was left to Shepherd.

The girl dreads the trial, knowing how it will open the wounds that have slowly been healing. But she has one comfort—Billy McClintock's picture.

Always Has Picture

"I always carry it," she says. "Dear, poor Billy. Anybody would love Billy."

"But Billy is gone. I can't say, in words, just what I would express. To talk about him and of all this is oh, so painful, can't you understand?"

"We would have been in Europe now, on our honeymoon—but this—he is gone. What can there be left?"

No, there are no hysterics. Isabelle Pope is a thoroughbred, and thoroughbreds do not parade their troubles for the crowd.

But she is only a girl, after all. And so the clear gray eyes, that try so hard to look at life bravely and hopefully, fill slowly with tears. Miss Pope turns away so that they may not be seen.

For she does not wear her affections on her sleeve.

AT THE PINE TREE

Cox & Fisk, Saxophone players, with their comedy singing, talking and musical act, played to standing room only on the first two days of their visit here, and Manager Poole of the Pine Tree has had so many compliments for their act that he has decided to hold them over three more days. They will be seen tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday in a complete change of program.

Conflicting stories concerning the age and birthplace of Baby Peggy Montgomery have appeared in newspapers all over the United States. One publication describes her as "the three year old wonder." Another, "the two year old film star."

For the enlightenment of every interested reader, here is the low-down on the tiniest film star.

Peggy Jean Montgomery was born in San Diego, California, five years ago October 26th. As a matter of fact, her recent trip to New York was solely to celebrate her fifth birthday, which she did giving a luncheon at the Biltmore for Got-

AT THE LIBERTY

A rapid mystery melodrama of stirring situations is "Raffles," which shows at the Liberty theater tonight.

House Peters in the title role plays the amateur crackman with great skill and historic ability. He gives a reserved, careful delineation of the most entertaining of fiction sleuths. Although the "Raffles" stories were written more than thirty years ago they have continued to be popular with readers of all ages. Both young and old will revel in the exciting situations in the present production. Drama runs ram-
