

Pelicans Climb Nearer to Top by Taking Hard Up-Hill Game From Dunsmuir at Local Park

Klamath Falls won a free-hitting, loosely played game from Dunsmuir yesterday, 8 to 7. It was a hard, up-hill fight for the Pelicans from start to finish and kept the crowd of 1500 rabid fans on their toes almost continually during the closing innings of the game. In many respects it was an exhibition of what baseball shouldn't be, but the locals slammed their way to a victory and everybody forgot some of the ivory ball which was shown during the early stages of the game.

The ball and strike umpire was perhaps responsible for the shaken morale of the teams. He took two guesses on every heave the twirlers threw and he generally guessed wrong. The moundsmen had to put them over the heart of the plate to get the call, and that, to a large extent, caused the free hitting on both sides. His Majesty, the Ump, however, erred as much on one side as the other, and made it a heart-breaking task for the pitchers. A few of the base decisions also were questionable, to say the least.

With their prize hurler, Wells, working in good form, Dunsmuir started off like a certain winner. They garnered five runs before the locals got started. Three scores in the second and two more in the fourth gave them a comfortable lead.

The Pelicans scored one in the fourth, and then started a batting drive in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings which drove the famed Mr. Wells to the bench. The Dunsmuir twirler blew up completely and let two Pelicans cross the plate with wild heaves.

With Dunsmuir still one run in the lead, the Pelicans took the lead in the eighth, but Dunsmuir came back in their half of the ninth and tied it up again, when an error by the Klamath left-fielder and a two-base smash to right center put the tying run across the pan.

Undaunted, the Pelicans came back in the final frame and crashed the winning score across the home reservation.

You'll take to Granger right from the start

Granger has that full, rich "rounded-out" mellowness that every experienced pipe-smoker looks for in tobacco.

For Granger is fine, ripe old Burley tobacco mellowed by Wellman's famous old 1870 method. And another thing, it's specially cut for pipes (rough cut, we call it) so that it burns slow and smokes sweet and cool right down to the very last flake.

At the PINE TREE

Not a "cave man" proposal but a cave woman threat that she will kill the other woman is the expression of a deformed mountain girl's love for a reformed bank robber. ZaSu Pitts as Judy, the daughter of a mountaineer, and Kenneth Harlan, impersonating Brian Kent, the man made great by love, provide thrills galore in "The Re-Creation of Brian Kent" showing at the Pine Tree theater today. Critics hail this picture as the greatest film production of the year. When you consider it's been actually translated to the screen from the story of the same title by Harold Bell Wright, why such reviews are hardly more than could be expected.

One of the most significant pictures of all motion picture progress is "Greed," the film version of Frank Norris' novel, "McTeague," which opens Tuesday at the Pine Tree theater. This is the latest production made by Erich von Stroheim, director of "Foolish Wives" and "The Devil's Pass Key," and in it he achieves a triumph of realism. If the Norris novel is considered an American classic, von Stroheim's screen drawing certainly must be put in the same category.

"Greed" gives a stark, naked view of life; it shows how two human beings disintegrate and go to the very dogs, without omitting a detail of the downward path. And through all this vigorous film painting there runs a wonderful vein of comedy—comedy culled from the rocky ridiculousness of real life.

Acta Is Unusual
The characters of Norris' imagination are vividly present in the picture. McTeague, the hulking, slow-minded animal-man, is portrayed by Gibson Gowland, and no finer piece of work has been done on the screen this year. Trina, the wife whose lust for gold is the chief cause of their downfall, is realistically played by Za Su Pitts. Miss Pitts hereby takes her place on the topmost rung of the acting ladder.

At the LIBERTY

"Don Dare Devil," starring Jack Hoxie and to be shown at the Liberty theater tonight is a vivid, exciting story of a six-foot American cattle man and his Wyoming cowboys cleaning up a band of South American desperadoes whose stamping ground is in the mountains of South America. Love and thrills are mixed in the proper proportions, the result being an interesting picture play.

Action Punch! Red blood! and Comedy!
That's the order of the day down at the Liberty theater Tuesday where the Paramount picture, "The Shock Punch," starring Richard Dix, is the feature.

"The Shock Punch" is a screen version of John Monk Saunders' Liberty Magazine story, adapted for the screen by Luther Reed and directed by Paul Sloane, who made "Too Many Kisses," also starring Dix. Frances Howard, who played opposite Dix in "Too Many Kisses," is featured at the head of the cast in this one, too.

Rocco Willing to "Mix" With Olson Toe to Toe; All Fighters in Shape

Rocco Strambo, scheduled to step ten fast rounds with Sammy Olson Tuesday night, is in the best condition of his life and more than willing to meet Sammy in the middle of the ring and swap punches until one of them is declared the winner.

This is what he told friends here today. He says that he is in better condition than at any time in years.

"Olson says he wants to slug it out and make the decision decisive. That suits me," Rocco is quoted as saying.

All fighters ended heavy training yesterday with fast workouts at the local gymnasium.

Today and tomorrow all will concent themselves with light roadwork and limbering-up exercises.

Great interest is attaching to the headline bout, which is the second meeting between Strambo and Olson. Both fighters figure they should have won the last battle and both are anxious for the going tomorrow night.

Some Ashland money arrived in town today and more is scheduled to be in evidence tomorrow night, most of it being offered in support of Johnny Carlson.

Johnny was all out of shape in his fight with Coffman and the battle tomorrow night will be far different. At least that is the way the Ashland fans look at it and the fact that a large delegation of them will arrive here Tuesday night with money to bet proves that they believe what they are saying.

Carlson has been taking no chances this trip. He has been taking heavy road workouts and acoustomizing himself to this altitude, higher than in the valley.

Maurice Harris, who will mix with Heine Meyers, is also backed by some Ashland coin and more will be in evidence tomorrow.

Heine Meyers and Joe Coffman, Klamath Falls representatives in the coming slugfest, both are doped to give a good account of themselves. Both have proven very thoroughly that they understand fully what to do when smacked in the jaw with a boxing glove and few semi-windup battles have aroused such interest here as the prospect of seeing these two in action, this time against opponents who will not make the mistake of underestimating them.

A knockout is expected in the curtain raiser between Jack Brush of Dorris and Gunboat Smith of Chico. Each boy weighs 190 and each can hit.

Many Present At Stone Services

CLEVELAND, O., June 15. (A.P.)—Railroad executives, labor leaders and financiers with whom he had business and social dealings, gathered here today to pay a last tribute to Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and head of its trust companies, cooperative banks and other holdings.

The body was taken to Euclid Avenue Congregational church, where Mr. Stone once taught a Sunday school class. A mounted squad of police headed the funeral procession. Following services there by Rev. Ferdinand Blanchard, brief services were held at the grave.

The advisory board of the Brotherhood which will elect Mr. Stone's successor were honorary pallbearers.
