TO KILL HOPPERS

Fort Klamath Are Investigated as to Pest Conditions

County Agent C. A. Henderson left this morning for the Fort Klamath area, where he will investigate crop conditions with relation to grasshoppers. According to Henderson, the hoppers have not been molested in that section this spring and as a result have attained nearly full growth.

At the PINE TREE

A census of opinion taken among writers and critics persuaded Erich von Stroheim to give "McTeague" the screen title of "Greed."

Von Stroheim was converted to the changed title of his first picture only after admirers of Frank Norris' works pointed out that the title was the only point wherein the young novelist neglected to express his Zolaesque symbolism.

As Frederic Taber Cooper wrote in The Bookman when the novel was published: "The symbol of 'McTeague' is the spirit of greed represented by gold; we find it in the lottery prize which Trina wins; in the huge gilded tooth of the dentist's sign; in the Polish Jew, Zer-kow, 'The Man With the Rake,' groping hourly in the muck heap of the city for gold, for gold, for gold; in the visionary gold dishes of Maria Macapa's diseased fancy, yellow blaze like fire, like a sunset; and finally in the coins on which Trina delighted to stretch her naked limbs at night, in her strange passion for money, and which finally lured both McTeague and his enemy to their death in the alkali desert."

Von Stroheim had determined to carry out his long-cherished ambition to put Norris' realistic masterpiece on the screen just as Norris wrote it—every character, every turn of plot, the very locations in San Francisco, Oakland, Placer county and Death Valley.

So "Greed" was selected as the title. It comes to the Pine Tree theater for two days beginning Tuesday. This was the only important change made in screening the novel, which follows Norris' story of "McTeague," with literal faithfulness. It took two years to get the story filmed and the picture has been acclaimed everywhere as the greatest triumph in realism among photoplays.

At the LIBERTY

Richard Dix arrives at the Liberty theater tonight in the role of a young man who has lightning in his fists in the Paramount picture, "The Shock Punch," directed by Paul Sloane from John Monk Saunders' Liberty Magazine story.

The story has to do with a young millionaire who dreads the thought of getting "soft" and hires a couple of professional pugilists to keep him in trim. The action starts with the first scene, and doesn't let up for a minute.

Frances Howard is the girl in the case. She is the daughter of a building contractor who likes Dix but doesn't take to his fistie accomplishments and tells him that if he wants to stay in good with her he'll have to tone down a bit. This Dix tries to do, but everywhere everyone seems tempting him to demonstrate the famous "shock punch" he has developed as the result of weeks of strenuous training.

—and he does, not once, but several times, and when that old blow hits home, you'll almost break the handles off the seats.

If you don't like "The Shock Punch," the motion picture isn't made that will entertain you.

FROM MALIN

F. M. Micka, Malin rancher, was in the city yesterday, visiting at the office of C. A. Henderson, county agent, where he procured a quantity of gopher poison for Micka Brothers' ranch.
