A HICK TOWN

A hick town is one where smart shopkeepers paint their store fronts glaring, garish, discordant colors to attract morons and make the judicious grieve, to save advertising costs, and thereby effectually spoil the appearance of the street.

The paint on the front of my store is serving its purpose and serving it well—if it wasn't, why should that undoubtedly intelligent editorial writer for the Herald notice it to the extent of dipping his pen in the ink of outraged artistry and tell me that only morons and want-wits would ever glance at it. I really think that this editorial writer is as smart as the average, but again he takes the opposite view, for he says himself that he wouldn't have noticed it had he been real bright.

BUT REMEMBER

Behind this glaring store front we still

Deputy Sheriff to Get Benefits of State Law, Under New Ruling

SALEM, Ore., June 19.—Ed Kendall, Klamath county deputy sheriff who was seriously wounded in a duel with a disturber this week, is the first peace officer of the state to receive the benefits of the workmen's compensation law as amended by the last legislature, according to D. A. Elkfins. The law placed peace officers under hazardous occupation and was offered municipalities and counties for acceptance or rejection. It was accepted by a majority.

PAUL SHOUP IS VISITOR HERE

fect, that with the Madoc Northern terminating here, it would be good judgment to have the division point and substantial repair shops located in this city. What were the plans?

Just as soon as the Southern Pacific was out of the woods, it was learned that the division point would be at Fuego; that the shops would be there; that Klamath Falls was an engineering impossibility, so far as a division point was concerned and that modern railroading demanded 150-mile division points. That is what would have happened if the Northern Lines had not decided to invade Klamath county. That is what will happen if they are shut out. And more is to happen.

Fuego Chosen
 Fuego will not only have the division point and the shops, but it is going to be the junction point for a branch line that will cut across lots to hit the Strahorn line at mile post 42. When this happens all through trains, freight and passenger, will pass east via Lakeview and the N. C. O., and your beautiful City of Klamath Falls will be worse off than a "whistling post on a main line."—It will be lumber town on the end of a spur track. During the past fifteen years, while occupying such a position, it has prospects. But under the plans that plying such a position it had prospects" would be obliterated, and you could buy Main street property for a hundred dollars a foot, where today it is commanding one thousand.

Shut out the Northern Lines and Klamath Falls will come into its own, that "own" being what the Southern Pacific has in store for it as outlined in the preceding paragraph. When the proper time comes, The Herald will tell its readers just why the S. P. officials have kept this rod of chastisement in pickle for the city.

And yet there are some, even among the business men and large land owners, who are willing to make this exclusive Southern Pacific territory.

Wish daytime came at night. Then you could see some mighty funny things in porch swings.

Bread Makers May Win Prize

For the best loaf of bread baked and exhibited at the Klamath county fair by either a Klamath county boy or girl, prize of an O. A. C. scholarship is offered by Moe's Women's Store. The bread will be judged for quality and appearance. Last year the prize was won by Kanilla Klekar of Malin, who is now at O. A. C. Mr. Moe is personally offering a $5 cash prize for first award in each of three divisions of sewing.

At the PINE TREE

Walter H. Galloway and his Oregonian orchestra are all what other critics have said, about them and a great deal more.

They are one of the finest and best orchestras that have ever been heard in Klamath Falls.

From the time the curtain goes up until it goes down the audience are listening to the finest entertainment of music and novelties that has ever been given from the Pine Tree stage in this particular line.

L. E. Garten gives a very unique entertainment with his ukelele. We can understand now why he was so popular in radioland.

As a body Galloway's Oregonians are harmony bounds. Both with classic and the latest popular music. They arrange all their own harmony.

One of the cleverest novelties of this act is called, "Logic." From the applause that was given on this particular number, it easily showed it was an out-standing feature.

A word to the lovers of music. If you haven't heard them, hear them tonight.

If you have a favorite old song, it might be possible you can hear it at the Pine Tree Theater.

This latest attraction which is a sensation in the East will appeal to both young and old.

It is called, "Sing Them Again." It first portrays the characters of the song on the screen and the story is told in brief, then the words of the song are flashed on and the audience are invited to sing them. It is very pretty and inspires the best of us to at least hum a little bit.

Mr. Poole says, "he will keep these pictures booked at his Pine Tree Theater as long as the public are pleased and like this form of entertainment."

A good hunting dog is no rarity but a fishing dog was one of the things Edward F. Cline, director of "The Good Bad Boy" had to uncover before he could go ahead with the filming of this new picture which opens at the Pine Tree Theater tonight.

Fishing dogs are hard to find, however, and Director Cline eventually had to convert "Brownie", the great little canine star known to millions of motion picture fans, into that kind of an animal. And that "Brownie" now can lay claim to being a real honest-to-goodness fishing dog, no one will deny after seeing him in the film.

At The LIBERTY

Admirers of Dick Hatton will be pleased tonight when his new feature "Cactus Cure" will be shown at the Liberty Theater.

It is the story of a wealthy man's son, who is sent to a western ranch on six months probation to cure him of this luxurious "high living." What the cowboys do to him and how he falls in love and finally wins "Poppy," heiress of the ranch, makes a snappy, thrilling story. It gives Dick every opportunity to use his wonderful pluck, courage and horsemanship, while Marilyn Mills shows she is second to none as a fearless rider. The two wonder horses of the screen, "Star" and "Beverly," do some really marvelous work and show that they possess almost human intelligence.

The United States has admitted 2,000,000 immigrants in the last four years.
