Heat Blamed For Freak Happening Delaying Train

Word of one of the most unusual occurrences in local rail history was received today from Algoma, where excessive heat Thursday caused eight rail joints to buckle, delaying the northbound afternoon logging train two hours before the damage could be repaired.

The freak was discovered by G. Mazzon, section foreman on the Algoma section, a short time before the train was due.

According to local trainmen the occurrence is most unusual. Rail joints have been known many times to creep in extremely hot or cold weather, but this is declared to be the first time, locally at least, that creeping rails have decided to oppose one another.

Local Southern Pacific officials, questioned about the happening, declared that they had heard nothing of it.

At the PINE TREE

Gay and glittering, Paris is brought to your very feet at the Pine Tree Theater tonight where "Playing With Souls," the new First National picture, produced by the Thomas H. Ince Corporation, is showing.

Dazzling scenes of Parisian splendor feature this colorful story of the boulevards, palatial drawing room scenes, rich cafes, dingy Apache dens, romantic nooks along the river Seine—all are shown as the story is unfolded.

"Playing With Souls" is the story of an American family in Paris. A cast of exceptional players seen. Jacqueline Logan has the role of an alluring dance hall girl. Mary Astor is a sweet French miss, and Belle Bennett is seen as the frivolous mother who is seeking eternal youth.

Dogs are, without doubt, the most beloved pets in the world, and in "The Lighthouse by the Sea," the new Warner picture at the Pine Tree Theater, where it will have a two days' run, one finds the very kind of dogs, the phenomenal movie actor, Rin-Tin-Tin, more awe-inspiring and impressive than one had even anticipated, judging from his previous work—"Where the North Begins" and "Find Your Man."

His sympathetic understanding of human moods and emotions is almost incredible, and in this picture he is so bravely lovable, so true to his master and those he serves, that it is difficult to tear oneself away when the last scene flashed on the screen, not to mention the joy it was to see his quick-flashing body that hurtles through space to fasten itself on his enemies, a brutal gang of bootleggers that planned to bring disgrace on the lighthouse, the blind keeper of the light, his daughter, Louise Fazenda, and Rin-Tin-Tin's master, "Buster" Collier, Jr., to further their own evil ends.

"Charley's Aunt," the great feature comedy made from the famous old stage farce by Brandon Thomas, which is being shown next week at the Pine Tree Theater, is what may be termed a "family affair."

The play has been called the mother of farce comedy for many generations. It was produced by Al Christie, the recognized father of light comedy on the screen.

At The LIBERTY

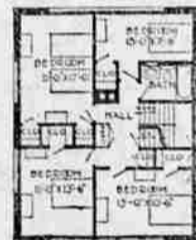

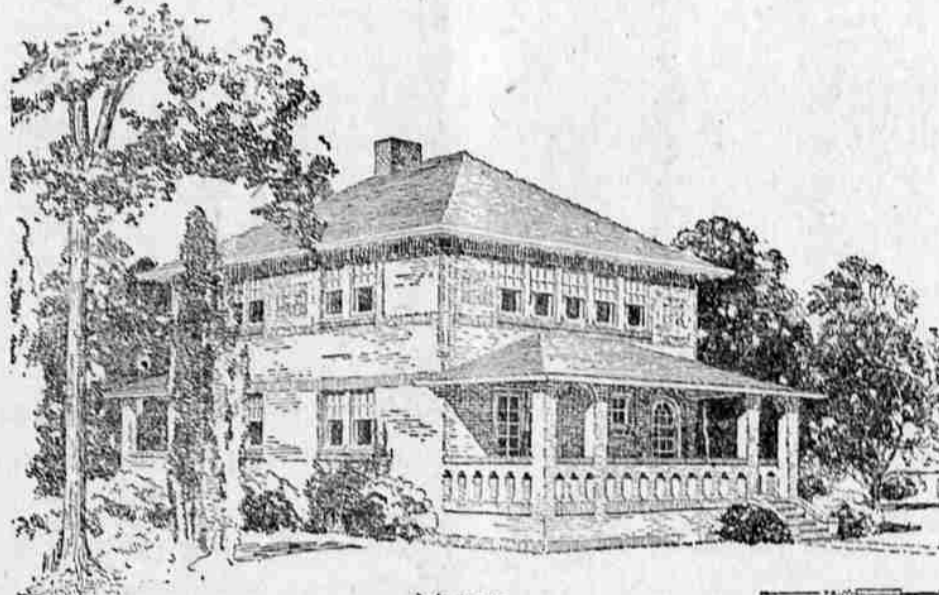

Is it possible to make a woman fall in love with you by treating her rough? Is the female of the species more amenable to cave-man tactics than the gentler arts of persuasion and devotion?

Zane Grey, perhaps the best known writer of outdoor fiction in the United States, answers "yes" to both questions. He proves it, too, in his latest novel, "Code of the West."

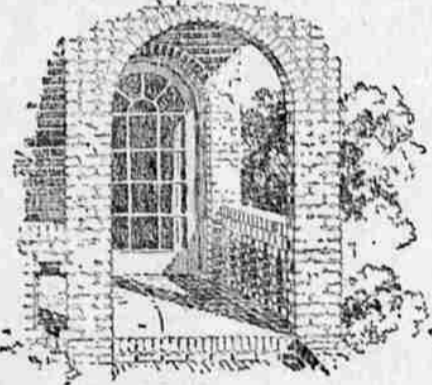

In the picture, Charles Ogle is owner of a big ranch in the Tonto Basin, Arizona. The routine life of the ranch folk is suddenly broken up by the arrival of Constance Bennett, sister of Mabel Ballin, the school teacher, who boards at the ranch. Fresh from New York and with eastern customs, Miss Bennett has a devastating effect on all the ranch hands with the exception of Owen Moore.

Insects have to rise to great heights to drift with the wind.

Porch Shade for Any Hour of the Day

SECOND FLOOR

House No. 711

THE square house has so many advantages that it will no doubt always continue to be popular. It affords a compact and convenient arrangement of the interior, and because of its simple lines builds most economically.

Much of the effect of such a house, however, depends on the treatment of the wall surface. In this house, the face brick solves the problem admirably. The architect has embellished the walls with panels of simple but beautiful brickwork, and given additional interest to the composition by his attractive treatment of the front porch and entrance doorway.

This plan being rectangular in shape with one bearing partition through the middle, is very simple in construction so that the house can be built for less than a smaller one that has a number of angles and breaks in its outlines.

It will fit on as small a lot as thirty-five feet but would be better if placed on a forty-foot lot. The porches are placed so that one of them gives a view of the street while the other has an outlook on the garden. This house need not be built on a level lot, as shown in the illustration, as it is adaptable to a site which slopes either from front to rear or from one side to the other.

Whatever direction this house faces, some portion of the porches will always be in the shade. The front porch has direct connection with the living room by a pair of French doors and the entrance is so placed that passage to and from the front door does not interfere with the full use of the porch. The dining room porch may be screened for summer use or by glazing will make an excellent conservatory or flower room in any season.

There is a large entrance hall with an ample coat closet. The living room and dining room are large and, together with the hall, make a splendid arrangement for entertaining.

The basement stairs and a fine lavatory open from the passage between the hall and kitchen, making them convenient to all parts of the house.

Note how well the kitchen has been planned for the saving of steps. Two cabinets on either side of the sink and two more near the rear door (one above the refrigerator) take the place of the pantry.

The four upstairs bedrooms, with convenient closets, are large, light and well ventilated.
