President and Wife on Summer Vacation

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 25.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived here today for a vacation that is expected to continue through the summer.

The special train on which the presidential party traveled from Washington arrived at Salem at 8 o'clock this morning. The president motored to Swampscott for breakfast at the home of his friend, Frank Stearns, who was among those who greeted him at the Salem station.

It is probable that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will spend a day or two as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stearns before taking over White Court, the Frank Howard, market road engineer, completely surprised his many friends here when he returned yesterday from a trip to the valley cities, bringing with him his bride, who before her marriage was Miss Alice Thurston.

The popular young couple were married on Monday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Thurston, at Roseburg.

Mrs. Howard will be remembered here, where she taught a few years ago in the local high school. The groom is well known throughout this section, where he has made many friends.

They will be at home to their friends on North Fifth, where Mr. Howard secured a bungalow before leaving to be married.

Store News

The growing demand for fresh, pure drugs, prepared according to prescription by a college trained expert has determined the growth of drug stores such as ours.

In the old days, and in some places even today, the soda fountain attendant or the proprietor's son or daughter, would grab a bottle and pour in a little of this or a little of that and medicine that means life or death to you was thrown together by some one who could know very little about it.

Today, an expert pharmacist is not enough—the patron must know that the ingredients of each prescription are fresh. This brings our three-store buying power to the foreground again. When we buy for three stores we are able to have a clean, new stock in each one of them. It is for your protection to buy from one of our busy stores.

Peddlers vs. Golden Rule

Why do you buy from peddlers and agents?
 Can you give an answer satisfactory to yourself?
 Do you buy from peddlers when you actually don't know you will because of the agent's plausible talk?
 What is the difference between buying from a peddler and from the Golden Rule?

Dainty Sheer Underthings and MUNSING Wear

THESE questions are asked you in an honest effort to prick your curiosity and arouse your interest. Maybe you will get mad and declare we are doubting your intelligence or capability for exercising your own judgment. That is not the effort of this series of "Trading Facts." What we are attempting to do is to place before you some of the facts comparing Peddler Plausibility, Distance Delivery, and Adjustment with Golden Rule.

Quality, Quantity of Merchandise, Service, Immediate Stock and modest price.

Peddlers, Good Times Callers

As you may have noticed, peddlers come to Klamath Falls or any other town only during good times. Why? Because when people are prosperous they spend money more easily, with less thought to economy and necessity.

Peddlers know but the one line of merchandise they carry. They must make their living off that. Consequently the cost of selling you whatever it is, hose, shirts, ties, has to be sold as the saying is for "all the traffic will bear." You have to buy three or six pair of hose from a peddler. From the Golden Rule you can get one pair or three or six pair at a time, within a few minutes. Not only that, the Golden Rule is here every day in the year, with five different lines of hosiery for women, at prices from 35c to 75c in cotton and mercerized, 68c to $1 for Rayon silks, $1.00 to $2.50 in pure silks. The same clerk in the Golden Rule can sell in a day's time hosiery, cretonnes, silks, linens, ribbon, muslin, lingerie and underwear to each customer or any one person, at a thirty-three and one-third less percentage of profit than the peddler can for the same quality of merchandise.

Any time you wish to compare quality and prices in regularly priced peddler merchandise, one pair, three pair or six pair of whatever it may be, we'll be glad to show you in plain comparison where our merchandise is offered sells for less money per quantity and quality.

The next time a peddler offers you something with the statement that he sells cheaper than your home town merchant, such as The Golden Rule, because of lower selling costs, challenge his statement and ask for a comparison.

No. 2 of this series will be in tomorrow's paper. It will deal with another phase of house to house selling by the itinerant. We hope you are not mad, but provoked to knowing the actual facts.

Stewart's Washington Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Mystery in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad failure? A good many public men think so.

So much so that it probably will be congressionally investigated next winter. Bankers' influence is suspected—an attempt to freeze out the smaller fry.

Otherwise how could so great and prosperous a system go on the rocks so suddenly?

"No mystery at all," says B. F. Yoakum, dean of the country's big transportation men.

"The St. Paul road," he continued, "grew great and rich with the growth of the great, rich, agricultural middle northwest. But its territory was limited."

"Finally a time came when the management realized it must expand, build to the Pacific. Otherwise it inevitably was going to be swallowed up by other powerful roads which were readier to do so."

"In the light of what now is past history," said the veteran railroad man, "we can see that it would have been better if the St. Paul hadn't done this, but it was impossible to tell in advance what was about to happen. The extension, of course, was expensive."

"To meet its cost it was necessary for the road to have a thriving traffic over its new line. And just at this juncture, his prosperity props were knocked from under the farmer."

"The answer to the puzzle is perfectly plain. It is, as Operating Receiver H. E. Byrum concisely and accurately puts it, 'Depressed agriculture.'"

"He adds, 'On western railroads agricultural products form a much larger proportion of the total tonnage than on roads serving other sections of the country.'"

"Railroad and farm prosperity are interdependent. Impoverishment of either means impoverishment of the other. A decrease in the farmer's purchasing power means reduced incomes to the stockholders."

"Railroad managers appreciate the vast difference between the farmer's power to buy only the scant supplies of what he must have and his ability to buy all he ought to have. To railroads it means the difference between big steady earnings and much reduced earnings—the difference between prosperity and hard times."

"No railroad serving an agricultural section, with prosperous farmers as its patrons, will suffer, under any conditions, a serious loss of revenue. If the farmers have money, their patronage will offset other adverse conditions that may overtake the railroads."

"No other favorable conditions will offset the railroad losses inevitable from agricultural depression."

"Never was there a better illustration of this than the story of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. With farm prosperity, it grew, by degrees, into a system of towering strength in the transportation world, serving a splendid country and industrial communities."

"With farm depression—from the height of its strength, in a few years, a receivership."

"And the point of this story is: The railroads need fear neither loss nor criticism by helping—not financially—to establish a national system of marketing under which the farmer will be insured his justifiable
