A Charming English Cottage

House No. 102

Designed by Floyd Yowell, Courtesy, American Face Brick Association

THIS adaptation of the English cottage shows how charming and picturesque the small house can be made in the hands of a skillful and artistic designer. The casement windows with their vertical lines, the long sweeping roof lines, and the planting about the house all tie it closely to the ground and give an atmosphere of hominess.

The architect has given convincing proof that beauty in a house is not a matter of size and cost. The small house can be artistic when the fundamental principles of architectural design are applied to it.

The intending builder will do well to study the plan of this house carefully for it is unusually compact and convenient. Every square foot has been utilized without crowding or cramping. The rooms are all of sufficient size to assure comfort and airiness.

The living room is nicely proportioned and is well lighted with attractive groups of windows. The location of the fireplace opposite the bank of casement windows makes possible a variety of interesting arrangements of the furniture. The location of kitchen, pantry and dining room is most convenient and practical.

The bedrooms are of good size and are exceptionally well lighted and ventilated. The bathroom is conveniently located for all of the rooms. The basement provides facilities for heater, coal storage, laundry and vegetable room.

This house can be built on either an inside or corner lot, wide or narrow. It can face the street as shown in the illustration, or the long side of the living room may be the front. In either case the entrance should face the west to get the best exposure for the principal rooms.

The compactness of this house means economy of construction throughout, and the permanence of the materials suggested insures long life, low depreciation and elimination of repair charges.

Painter Gets Divorce From Portland Girl

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—Pierre Tartoue, portrait painter, can now obtain a divorce since a jury has found that the acts of his wife on six occasions entitle him to it.

The same jury absolved Tartoue yesterday on counter charges of a similar nature. His victory is the first in five years in the supreme court where a divorce action was contested by a woman.

Former chauffeurs of Mrs. Tartoue gave testimony concerning her limousine. Among those named was Renato Zanelli, metropolitan opera baritone.

Claudia Windsor Tartoue was married to the artist in 1919. He was her third husband.

Mr. Tartoue said that he expects to resume work shortly on a painting of President Coolidge and his father.

Mrs. Tartoue, the daughter of Mrs. R. Bengue Barnet of Portland, Oregon, was adopted in 1922 as a daughter by Countess Clarel De Tocqueville De Rampan De Chanquetot.

PARIS, June 27. (AP)—The senate today passed the Caillaux financial bill by a vote of 226 to 29. The chamber of deputies had passed the bill early this morning.

Small Crowd Sees Poorly Managed Fight Card at Wlulkse; Murphy Winner

Horribly mismanaged from start to finish, the boxing exhibition staged last night at Wlulkse gave the mitt game in this section a setback from which it will take a long time to recover.

The only consolation from the standpoint of those who like the game is the fact that so few were present.

It was the immortal Shelby Haseco, perpetrated again on a smaller scale.

Scheduled to begin at 8:00, the bouts were not put on until 9:30.

The ring was erected in a pasture and the crowd stumbled to it in the darkness dodging stumps and other obstacles in the dark as well as could be done. No lights were provided and the first few stragglers waited until someone dug up a rope and an acetylene lamp.

Ringside seats were benches and the general admission tickets entitled the beholders to stand in the pasture and battle the mosquitoes for position.

What few were present saw indifferent performances.

In the curtain raiser, Kid Sullivan and Joe Walters staged four awful rounds, the solemnity of which was relieved by the hilarious spectacle of the referee calmly trying to count Sullivan out while that gentleman was still on his feet.

As a matter of fact, both fighters should have been put out in the first round when it became evident that a gentleman's agreement existed. In a real fight, Walters could have easily taken his opponent in a fraction of a round.

The sentiment of the crowd was admirably expressed by an unknown exponent of the old western type of direct action who climbed into the ring after this match and proclaimed in ringing tones as follows:

"I want to say, right here and now, if there are any more matches like this one I'm going to get into the middle of the ring and start shooting."

The Heinie Meyers-Harrington bout was called a draw. Neither fighter showed the desire to mix that characterized their previous meeting. Meyers knocked out Harrington in a previous meeting.

The Joe Coffman-Jack Crim contest was also called a draw. Crim covered up and dared Coffman to hit him, which the latter sometimes did. There were a few exchanges in which both fighters took punishment but the example of the opening fight was evidently too much for them, and neither boy opened up and showed the stuff which normally makes them good drawing cards.

The headliner served only to do one thing—to prove that Frankie Murphy is far too good a fighter ever to be matched with one like Jim Firpo Gorman.

Murphy, fast and clever, clouted Gorman whenever the mood struck him and caused that punch-drunk gentleman to kiss the canvas in the second round. Murphy had no chance to show what he can do when matched with an opponent of equal ability. While Gorman was able to stand up, however, he gave Murphy opportunity to demonstrate that he can hit with both hands from any angle and that his short jabs both have sleep punches in them.

17TH HOMER

BOSTON, June 27.—(AP)—Bob Meusel hit his 17th home run of the season in the first inning of the second game between the Yanks and Red Sox. Dugan and Veach were on base.
