

Lecturer Will Talk Tomorrow At Pine Tree

The International Bible Students association has invited Rev. G. R. Pollock to deliver a lecture in this city tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, in the Pine Tree theater, on the subject, "A Standard for the People, comparing the Great Pyramid of Egypt with the Scriptures." Mr. Pollock is recognized as one of the ablest orators of the association and is a master of the subject he discusses. But recently in New York he addressed an audience of 18,000 people with such success as to attract favorable comment from all circles.

Hoodlums Wreck State Property

SALEM, Ore., June 27.—While a picnic party was enjoying the privileges of the state fair grounds yesterday the drivers of two automobiles took advantage of the opportunity to despoil state property by driving their cars back and forth through two of the most luxuriant of the floral beds on the ground and practically ruining them. Mrs. Ella S. Wilson, secretary of the state fair board, said today that she doubted if the beds could be brought back to their usual beauty by the date of the state fair in September. The picnic party was one that had not asked permission to enter the grounds, which is usually done, and who was responsible for the party is not known. No opportunity was given to get the license numbers of the automobiles.

Wool Market Is Strong; Better Price Foreseen

BOSTON, June 27.—The Commercial Bulletin says today: "The wool market is broader and slowly strengthening, both on fine and medium descriptions. Reports from the goods market indicate a better demand for worsted goods as well as woolsens and knit goods. Top makers and spinners are getting much better business at better prices. In the west, the market is firm to slightly dearer. "The foreign situation has centered on the position in Australia, where it has been decided finally to resume sales July 13, with offerings of 120,000 bales monthly in July and August, a moderate offering. A number of buyers have left to attend the London colonial auctions, commencing July 7." "Wasn't it about this time of year when Rip Van Winkle went to sleep and slept 20 years. The differences which cause most trouble are indifferences.

Blooded Sheep Shipped By Bord

Rex Bord, prominent Klamath stockman, has made two shipments of fine blooded rams to outside points within the past week. Saturday two single-deck cars went to Texas sheepmen, the shipment consisting of 150 head of Ramboulette yearling rams, 6 head of two-year-old Stud rams, one two-year-old Corriedale stud ram and fifteen head of yearling Corriedale ewes. Yesterday he shipped one single-deck car of mixed yearling and two-year-old rams to Durham, California. The shipments to Texas were in full fleeces and because of the hot weather had to be lightly loaded. Sam Dixon was in charge of both cars and will accompany them to destination.

Portland Ready For Elk's Meet July 13 to 18

PORTLAND, June 27.—Everything is in readiness for the sixty-first annual session of the grand lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, scheduled to meet here July 13-18. Such is the word issued from the headquarters of the Portland Lodge Commission in the Elks' Temple today by James D. Olson, executive secretary. Committees on all phases of the grand lodge session, long in existence, have practically completed their work and as a result plans that were laid in advance have been perfected until it may be said that were the convention to meet next week, the city would be prepared for the throngs to come. Formal sessions will be held in Portland's public auditorium beginning with church services Sunday, July 13, when divine worship and sacred music will be featured. Many noted Elk visitors will be in Portland and are scheduled to preach from numerous pulpits that day, in addition to the special services in the auditorium. Adequate reception for all special trains, uniformed patrols and bands has been provided, as well as guides for each delegation during their sojourn in Portland—something new to Elk grand lodge conventions. Hotels and other quarters for the visitors have been arranged for and those who come on special trains will live on these and will be parked within easy distance of the convention activities, as the railroads, at great expense, rearranged trackage and other necessary features so this could be done.

Farmers Urged To Select Exhibits

Klamath county farmers are urged to select grains and other exhibits and get them in readiness for the county and state fairs, in letters being sent out today from the office of County Agent Henderson. The letter follows: "This is the time of the year when every farmer throughout the county should keep in mind that the County Fair will again be held the first week in September, and following the County Fair it is planned to have an exhibit at the State Fair, the same as last year. About the middle of July you will be able to secure a copy of the premium list for the County Fair, which no doubt will help you in selecting your exhibits, but if you have anything particularly good, it should be saved not only for the local fair, but to be used at the State Fair. "Grasses, form a very important part of a State exhibit, and these should be gathered early, as a number of grasses are maturing at this time and it is advisable to pick the best that you can get. Sheaves should be made not less than three inches in diameter at the butt, the grass being dried in a cool shady place, well spread out so that the natural green color will remain. We should have several sheaves each, of the following grasses: smooth brome, rye grass, reed canary grass, red top, blue grass, timothy and any other grass that is used to a large extent throughout the county. For Alfalfa, make up quite a good many sheaves of the first, second and third cuttings respectively and also red and alsika clover should not be over looked. The main purpose of exhibits of this nature is to show the adaptability of pasture and hay crops, rangness of their growth and the quality for feeding purposes. "A little later as the grain matures, sheaves should be saved on all our best varieties, particularly Burbank, Blue Stem, Marquis, Galgalos and Hard Federation. Grain sheaves should be not less than 4 inches across the base and should be put carefully, all leaves stripped from the stalk and the longest and most even heads being picked. Sheaves should also be saved from barley, particularly Hannechen, Marlot and Wisconsin Pedigree, and also from the best stands of rye and oats—these sheaves to be of similar size and quality as is given for the wheat above. "If you have any meetings at your community club, will you please take this matter up and see if you cannot get a committee appointed, so that the best possible exhibits can be secured throughout the entire county, as it is highly desirable to make a good showing at the State Fair and our County Fair this year, and this can only be done through the fullest cooperation of everyone."

Young McCormick drove down from Tacoma and was met at Portland by Manning. Both boys are juniors at the state university and

At The LIBERTY

It is doubtful whether there is an actor in motion pictures who risks his life more frequently than Dick Talmadge. His current production, "Laughing at Danger," is being shown now at the Liberty Theater, where Dick's many local admirers are reveling in his leaps and bounds and all round good humor. One of the most thrilling scenes includes a jump of fifty feet which Dick makes from the window of a hotel, landing, of course, in a net. Nevertheless the jump was one to test the nerve of even the hardest stunt performer.

At the PINE TREE

Beautiful, broke, but brave—that's the position the heroine of a picture is sure to find most appealing to her audiences—and that's exactly the way Viola Dana starts off in her latest picture, "Along Came Ruth," which opens at the Pine Tree theater today. Miss Dana needs only a clever story punctuated with amusing situations and she's off—to the delight of everyone who sees her. "Along Came Ruth" is just that kind of a story, and the tiny star proves she's as attractive when she's pathetic as when she's funny, and vice versa. Ellnor Glyn makes an interesting reply to those critics who have attacked her writings as being immoral. The picturization of her novel, "His Hour" comes to the Pine Tree theater on Sunday. It follows her screen version of "Three Weeks."

"I have often been condemned as an immoral writer," says Mrs. Glyn. "That is not American justice, and I challenge anyone to carefully read every word of 'His Hour,' or any other story I have written with an open mind, not with the determined idea to search for sensualities, and then see if he can find a single sentence taken with its full context and meaning, which can degrade—a single insinuation that is base or dishonorable—a single place where my heroes and heroines do not act as ladies and gentlemen of breeding."
