

Here's World's Most Famous City; If You Don't Believe It, Kindly Glance Over This Veracious Tale

DIAMOND LAKE, Ore., July 24.—The city of Diamond Lake which is only 7.83 acres in size boasts more occupants and a more versatile population than any other city approaching its size. The total permanent population this summer is 17 people, this figure including wives and children. All but three of these are employed by the Diamond Lake company.

In the way of business institutions, first of all comes the Diamond Lake store, which is no small emporium. It contains everything from milk of magnesia and prunes to bananas and horse shoes. Harold Kirk, the head clerk, is perhaps the most versatile man on the place.

He is storekeeper, telephone girl, service station and tire repair man, assistant barber, violin player in the orchestra, assistant postmaster and confidential advisor to all fishermen.

The boat business thrives with Don Woodward, a licensed Red Cross life-saver, at its head. Woodward keeps track of some forty-odd boats.

The best and only hotel in the city is the Diamond Lake Lodge which is cared for by Edward Miller who is chief greeter and head janitor. He also is the city's barber, trap drum player and newspaper man.

The dining service is under the direction of Earl Barbour, formerly head chef in the Travellers hotel in Sacramento. Mrs. Barbour, who assists in the dining room, has served ex-Presidents Harding and Wilson, when they each visited Portland, Oregon.

George Howard, the worthy post master, is the mayor, council, police officer, traffic director, political boss, and city manager. George Howard conceived the city of Diamond Lake, built it, and now he runs it. He rates higher in Diamond Lake than Caesar did in all the Roman Empire. But unlike Caesar, his citizens praise him instead of stabbing him. Mr. Howard's duties consist of oiling the cogs of the institution so that it will entertain hospitably several thousand vacationers annually. He is an expert at every job on the place and is chief assistant to every one else in the establishment.

Here Ends the Truth
Mr. Howard also feeds the fish in the lake and does it according to the best rules of the nations best dieticians. At present they are on a milk diet.

One of Mr. Howard's Gands is in pretty bad shape, the fish having bitten it in several places when he was feeding them. Most of the older fish are more considerate, and have better manners, but several of the little yearling ten pounders are somewhat greedy.

Recently Mr. Howard started wearing rubber trousers so he could fill his pockets with water and carry Ethel, his pet fish around with him. Ethel is a widow and an orphan, her entire family having been wiped out by the great fish famine which occurred here two weeks ago when Mr. Howard ran out of raisins which he was feeding at the time. One day Mr. Howard saw Ethel's tears in the water, so he took pity on her and took her out of the lake and dried her tears.

Ethel was so grateful that she now lives most of the time in the grocery store where she sits on the fishing tackle case and advises the fishermen on what kind of bait to use.

Ethel sends her best regards to her many Klamath Falls friends.

Lives of Baby Chicks Saved

(Special to The Herald)
YREKA, Calif., July 22.—Seventeen lives were saved yesterday afternoon by Mrs. John L. Berry, assisted by her husband, Siskiyou county treasurer, when she started a brisk fire in the range in the kitchen of her home, set the hot water tap to running and thrust 24 two months old Rhode Island Red chickens into various warm nooks and crannies in an almost vain hope of restoring them to life.

The chickens were caught in their runs when Yreka was visited with a cold rain storm that recorded .86 of an inch in less than two hours at the forest service station. They crept under hopvines instead of getting under more substantial cover and when the Berry's returned home, they found 24 of the birds seemingly dead. The hot water and the hot oven, however, brought 17 back to the state where they show no ill effects today of yesterday's near tragedy.

J. W. Maddux Alive; Recovers Machine

J. W. Maddux, of Gold Hill, whose motorcycle in Pelican City was found deserted on the road, is not seriously injured, according to Maddux himself, who was riding around town this morning on his motorcycle once again.

Maddux had taken a spill yesterday when his motorcycle hit some loose gravel. He abandoned the machine temporarily while he was having some minor injuries dressed, and in the mean time the motorcycle was brought into the sheriff's office by Ivan Bernard, a truck driver for the state highway commission.

A blood stained motorcycle led to reports of foul play, which were dispelled this morning when Maddux put in an appearance.

Seeing Is Believing

Let us prove to you that "Better Bread" is better. What we say about Better Bread may be biased to a certain extent but what our many customers have to say about it is an entirely different matter.

Really it is surprising how our sales of our wheat meal or old fashioned graham bread has grown. Our wheat meal is especially ground for us and is the genuine whole wheat with nothing added and nothing taken away. Your grocer can supply you, but insist on the Sixth Street product.

Many good things are being offered at our store, including cream pies, fruit pies, layer cake, rolls, coffee cake, Boston brown bread, etc

WORMS INVADE KLAMATH FARMS

Mr. Chorpenev will spread poison on a half acre and tomorrow morning will investigate to find out how many of the worms were killed.

Water Cure Helps

Some success was experienced yesterday by J. L. Jacob in irrigating, in other words, drowning them out of existence. The Jacob ranch was particularly affected by the blight.

Gus Hilyard will try going over his fields carefully with a corrugated roller, in the effort of crushing the armies of worms out of existence. He will operate the corrugated crusher during the night when the worms are at their worst.

To Use Poison

If poison is found to be successful, the control measures will be handled the same as during the grasshopper infestations. Poison stations will be established in rural communities throughout the country and poison will be distributed to each station which in turn will distribute to farmers.

"I consider it the most serious thing that has happened to this county in years," Mr. Sexton said today in summarizing up the army worm menace. "Unless the infestation is controlled, there will be practically no second crop of hay in the county. And next year the blight will be far worse."

If poisoning does not prove satisfactory in checking the infestation, experts will be called from Oregon Agricultural College to assist in effecting control measures.

TO GIVE CONCERT

The Abbie Green Musicians to Appear on Street

The Abbie Green orchestra will stage a concert on Sixth street, near Main, starting at 7 o'clock tonight. This same orchestra will furnish the music for the social dance aboard the Venetian barge, starting at 9 o'clock tonight. It is declared to be a musical organization of unusual ability.

MISS CONBOY IN CALIFORNIA

Friends of Miss Grace Conboy today received cards from her at Yosemite park in California, where she is touring with Mr. and Mrs. John Kingston and Miss Virginia Linsmere. Miss Linsmere is enjoying a three weeks' vacation trip in California and was joined in San Francisco by Miss Conboy, who left here the first of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Kingston are some of the first western people Miss Conboy met while wintering in Florida and is enjoying her visit with them immensely.
