

STATE ENGINEER CONTRACTS TO GET SURVEY

SALEM, Oregon, July 27.—Rhea Luper, state engineer, today signed a contract entered into between the state and the United States geologic survey for completion of the topographic survey of the Bend Quadrangle. The expense will be $5,000 divided equally between the state and the government. A contract will be signed shortly for completion of the Hood River quadrangle at a cost of $2500. The city of Hood River will contribute $800, the state $600 and the government $1400. Ultimately the whole state will be surveyed and mapped.

LONG PILGRIMAGE TO ROME MADE AFOOT BY MOTHER AND CHILDREN

ROME, July 27.—Thousands of devout Catholics have made Holy Year pilgrimages to Rome, but few have come in the manner in which the world truly connects. One such, however, has been completed by Luisa Cruces, a Spanish woman living in Morocco, with her three children, whose ages are seven, four and two years.

Senora Cruces left Morocco with her little brood on December 9, 1924, and they made practically the whole journey on foot. They started with 25 pesetas in their possession, and throughout the trip they had no other means of support, except from the sale of picture postcards showing their photograph. For the most part they slept on the grass under the stars or along the sand beaches, but occasionally they were taken to by kind people along their route.

Autoist Ditches Cop But Has Hard Luck; 3 Arrested

A little hard luck led to the arrest of Frank Moore, C. V. Bunnell and William Taylor last night.

With Moore at the wheel, the three men drove by a tent show on Pine street at a speed which to the calculation of County Traffic Officer R. E. Knowles, nearby was excessive.

Knowles took up the chase, but the speed and slipperiness of Moore resulted in the traffic cop being ditched.

Knowles a few minutes after he was sidetracked was driving aimlessly when on turning into a street, he perceived his quarry bearing down upon him.

A second time he gave chase, and was successful.

According to Knowles, Moore had been drinking and one of the men ran away from the car as the officer approached, and cached a bottle in the brush. A bottle of liquor which Knowles confiscated is being held as evidence.

Whether or not the men would be prosecuted on a charge of possession or whether or not Moore would be charged with driving while intoxicated was not decided by the district attorney's office this morning.

Many Present At Catholic Picnic

With between three and four hundred people in attendance, the annual Klamath county Catholic picnic, held Sunday at Martin Green's ranch for Catholics of Klamath county and their friends, proved one of the most enjoyable and successful ever held in this community. At 9:30 in the morning the road to the beautiful ranch home was lined with cars, which all arrived for mass which was celebrated at 10:30 on the lawn of the ranch home, Father Loeser of this city officiating.

Much credit should be given the women of St. Mary's Altar society, who served a delicious picnic luncheon at noon. The afternoon was devoted to a sports program, enjoyed by old and young, which included sack races, three legged races, wheat tying contests, rooster fights and tug o' war for the men and women. Winners of the various sports were as follows:

Boys race, 6 to 8 years old, Thos. Greens; boys race, 8 to 12 years old, Jack Hales; boys three-legged race, Donald Colwell and Francis Alberts; boys sack race, Donald Colwell; potato race, Elsie Dingler; girl's 50-yard dash, Gertrude VonBertlesdorf; lady's wheat tying contest, first, Mrs. Mochette; second, Mrs. Miller; men's 100-yard dash, Bill Bessler; Rooster fight, Edward Dervin.

Tug o' war, men, was won by the men from the country. Tug o' war, ladies, was won by the ladies from the country.

BACK FROM PORTLAND

While north they enjoyed a number of beautiful drives and visited a number of the coast cities. Miss Hogan resumed her position at the Golden Rule this morning. With her usual happy disposition, Miss Hogan says she is glad to be back home, which after all is the spirit to take, when our vacation days are over.

Although the humidity was at its lowest ebb of the forest fire season, no fire broke out in Klamath forests yesterday, according to the reports this morning of fire lookouts.

Hunting and Fishing Violators Always Try to Alibi Out of It

(Special to the Herald)
DIAMOND LAKE, Ore., July 27.—Nine out of ten persons caught violating the state game laws will try to alibi out of his predicament, according to Pat N. Daly deputy state game warden who was at Diamond Lake recently checking up on the fishermen. Practically every violator has some good reason why he should not pay the penalty for his or her offense against the game laws.

"Only one out of a hundred or so persons fish or hunt without a license," said Mr. Daly, "but those that do, very often try to lie out of it."

The wardens become so well acquainted with the stock alibis that they can almost invariably tell when the law breaker is spinning some delicious yarn. It is this trait of prevarication common to so many violators that leads wardens to be so adamant in the taxation of fines, according to Mr. Daly. The wardens are not deliberately trying to "snak" anyone, but feel it their duty to see that the game are protected.

In Oregon the only funds used to restock the streams with fish are collected from the fishing license. Therefore it is doubly poor sportsmanship to fish without giving any thing in return, and then to try to get the fish out of it.

Und! this year one of the most frequent tricks of the unlicensed fisherman was to hide behind the skirts of a woman. When caught the violator would explain that only the woman was doing the fishing. This alibi is useless now because women are now required to have licenses.

The alibi stories hold true with hunting as well as fishing, according to Roy Parr, state game warden who was at the Lake with Mr. Daly. The most frequent alibi is the accidental shooting of deer. This story is so shop worn it seldom impresses the wardens. If such a thing actually happens the proper

The Long-Bell Lumber company is the owner of one of the most perfect stands of pine timber in the world. The timber is located in the northeastern section of Klamath county. Mr. Long in an interview to The Evening Herald, said that his company is not planning cutting timber in Klamath in the near future.
