

Jesse McFall Is Called By Death

Another vacancy appears today in the ranks of Klamath's pioneers, and the vacancy is that of Jesse McFall, aged 69, and one of the early settlers of Poe valley. Mr. McFall died Saturday night as the result of a stroke of apoplexy suffered 14 days before.

Funeral services for Mr. McFall were held this morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Poe valley cemetery and immediately following the body was laid in its last resting place.

Mr. McFall is survived by a number of sons and daughters who reside in Klamath county.

"You Made Me What I Am Today"

When Hiram Johnson, U. S. senator, recently visited his home town, Sacramento, Calif., he met again Mrs. N. E. White, teacher to Hiram in grammar grades. "If I am any sort of a speaker at all, I may thank you for it," Hiram told Mrs. White. He recalled her recitation class, of which he was the honor pupil. "That started me on my oratorical career," Johnson admitted.

O. T. Buys Out Hilliard Land For Big Price

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Paid for Long Strip of Land

A strip of land, wide enough for a right-of-way and extending from a point where it adjoins the property of C. L. Lewis south to Ewauna Point, was sold today to the Oregon Trunk railroad by O. A. Hilliard. The purchase price approximated $15,000.

Mr. Hilliard's land was in the marsh, and was purchased several years ago with the idea that in the future the land might be worth something for truck gardening. According to latest reports the Oregon Trunk railroad now has a clear right of way from the point where they would strike the west side of Ewauna lake to the corner of Main and South Riverside, with three exceptions.

C. L. Lewis still owns a piece of land which lies between the former Hilliard tract and the land which C. R. DeLap sold to the Oregon Trunk railroad.

Also G. K. Van Riper, chief deputy of the sheriff's office owns a lot along south Riverside and the city park property has not yet been acquired. The Northern lines are anticipating utilizing the city park property for the purpose of erecting a station there.

Negotiations in the purchase of land in south Riverside are being conducted by G. B. Richmond, land agent for the Oregon Trunk railroad.

Hatchery Experts Will Stock Lakes With Brook Trout

Twenty-five beautiful mountain lakes, which stud the valleys on the crest of the Cascade range, will be teeming with trout within the next few years if the plans of hatchery authorities of this county do not run amiss.

In each of these jeweled snow fed bodies of water, four thousand eastern brook trout will be planted and the trout will be hauled, by horseback up to the top of the range by Jud Short, who is connected with the state game hatchery on Crooked creek.

Mr. Short starts in the arduous job of shipping the trout to the top of mountains next week and will continue it steadily until each of the 25 lakes have little eastern brook in them.

"The hope is that in these many lakes of the Cascade that we will find a lake that is as well adapted to trout as is Diamond lake," Short said. "In that event, then another premier egg taking station will be established."

Klamath county this year has five and one half million trout to plant within its county line. Of this number, approximately 4,000,000 will be planted in the streams and rivers that empty into Upper Klamath lake; including, Fort Creek, Wood River, Seven Mile Creek, Sprague River, Williamson River, and other streams in the vicinity.

Purpose of this is to keep the Wood River valley streams brooding streams, where hatchery officials can secure an abundance of eggs each spawning period.

For the first time, the Loch Leven trout are being planted in Klamath. Practically all of the half million Loch Leven fingerlings that were shipped here from Montana have been released in Crescent lake, with the idea in mind that the waters of Crescent lake are best with the idea in mind that the trout would multiply and grow so rapidly that within a few years a Loch Leven egg taking station could be established with success.

GERMAN VETERANS DEMAND AID INSTEAD OF WAR MONUMENTS

MUNICH, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Legion of German War Veterans at its third national convention passed a resolution criticizing the various regimental and veteran clubs for erecting so many monuments for dead comrades instead of properly caring for their widows and children, as a more befitting method of honoring the memory of the dead. The resolution recommended

Minister-Sheriff Is Visiting Here

The name of Ray Cookingham strikes a responsive chord in brains of scores of old residents of Klamath, for Ray Cookingham, who is also a minister and a sheriff to boot, was formerly a minister on the Klamath Indian reservation.

The Rev. Sheriff Cookingham arrived in Klamath Falls yesterday to spend several days visiting his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Richardson of the Sunset apartments.

From Klamath county the former reservation minister moved to Pendleton. Last November as a minister he was a candidate for sheriff and much to the surprise of all those who claimed to be "in the know", he was elected and has served Umatilla county in the capacity of sheriff as efficiently as his predecessors.

Sheriff Cookingham will remain several days in Klamath Falls and then proceed northward to his home in Pendleton. He came here from Portland where he testified in a case.

Midland Grading Work Is Started

By October, grading of the Midland state line road will be completed, according to word received late Saturday by County Road Engineer Frank E. Howard. The steam shovel, which effecting the necessary excavation on the new road is now one and one half miles south of Midland and it will be two months before it reaches Midland where it will join the Midland Market road and eventually furnish a shorter and better route from Klamath Falls to Dorris and points south.

Following behind the steam shovel, is a grader which shapes and levels the road. From the state line north to a point about half way to Midland, the road is now in good condition, according to reports.

It is known to be the county court's plan to surface the Midland state line road and the Midland market road when completed in order to furnish a through surfaced highway from Klamath Falls to the state line by way of Midland. British actors must not use the word "bloody," by ruling of the lord chamberlain, who censors plays in order to furnish a through surfaced England.
