TRACY - MERRILL BREAK RECALLED

which guards Frank Ferrell, S. R. T. Jones and B. F. Tiffany were killed. Tracy later killed Merrill and before his career was ended by suicide, when held at bay by a posse, he had killed several more men.

The Tracy-Merrill break occurred at 7 o'clock in the morning. Rifles believed to have been smuggled to the convicts from outside the prison, were secreted in the foundry and were stolen by the two convicts after they had been marched into the shop.

The convicts were dead shots. Farrell was shot while in the foundry. Jones was picked off the north wall at 150 yards. The desperadoes used Tiffany as a shield after they had gotten outside the walls and then killed him.

Story of Escape

The convicts left Salem, but returned that night and held up J. W. Roberts, taking clothing and a team of horses from him. The next day two posse members were held up and a horse and buggy and rifle taken from them. Trace of the convicts was lost near Needy, Clackamas county, but on June 15 they stole horses at New Era and early in the morning drove into Portland. Three men were caught outside Portland and compelled to row them across the Columbia river.

Clarke county Washington posse pursued them without success, although daily the outlaws were committing robberies. Their next appearance was at LaCenter, Wash., on June 21, and next they were in Olympia, after being chased by posses and bloodhounds through several counties. To reach Ballard and then Seattle they compelled some fishermen to row them across a strait.

Finally Surrounded

Tracy was now traveling alone, and let it be known that he had killed Merrill in a duel. On July 1, deputy sheriff Raymond of Snohomish county and E. E. Breece, a police officer, were killed by Tracy, and he fatally wounded a deputy game warden named Rawley of Seattle. The body of Merrill was found of Napavine, Wash., July 14. Tracy appeared at Roslyn, Wash.,

July 23, and about a week later at Wenatchee. Next he appeared at Coulee City and Ritzville. On August 5, a posse surrounded him in a wheat field at Fellows where he committed suicide after being wounded.

The First Delivery

The toll of Tracy's rifle was seven men killed and one wounded.

In the break of July 3, 1883, 14 men escaped over the wall and three of them were killed as they went out by Gifford Sallwell, a guard, including Sitka Jack. Of the 14 men who got out one, Old Beau-camp, notorious criminal, was killed by a posse near Woodburn, and all the others were subsequently captured except a man named Disbrow. Capturing the warden, Geo. Collins, and an overseer named Geo.

Fletcher, the convicts marched them with knives at their throats toward the gate, ordering Collins to have the gate opened by Stilwell. Stilwell, hearing the order, said: "What shall I do, Collins?" "Open the gate," Collins answered. Stilwell opened a gate, but it was not the large gate, but a small one beside it that did not lead entirely outside.

Nitcher and Collins rushed outside the gate, and either Fletcher or Stilwell then closed the gate, cutting off the escape of about 40 other prisoners who were in the plot. One was caught immediately outside by Albie Veatch, an employe of the prison.

Many of the prisoners rushed to the turnkey's office to get firearms, but their efforts in the main were frustrated, largely by the work of Stilwell who poured bullets into them with much effect. In a scuffle they got a pistol from the turnkey, a man named Gobat, and a rifle belonging to Supt. Stratton of the prison.

Stop at home--- first

YEARS ago people went into the market place "to shop." They went, not knowing what they would find, its price or its worth. Weary hours were spent in inspection, in bargaining and buying.

Today manufacturers are bringing the market place to your home. Every time a newspaper comes a host of people are ringing your door-bell. Merchants and manufacturers are waiting on the doorstep to spread their goods at your feet for you to look at—to inspect at leisure and in comfort.

Don't let the opportunity that advertisements offer you slip by. No matter what you want, clothing, groceries, a fountain pen or a farm, you will find the "better" ones in the advertising columns.

The advertisements tell you where you can get what you want. They are a guarantee of worth that protects your purchase.

Buying with a Definite knowledge is so much better than shopping at random. Study the advertisements
