

Poultry Expert Will Be Judge At County Fair

J. H. Fuller Accepts Invitation to Officiate

Word was received by the fair board this morning that J. H. Fuller of Ashland would judge poultry and poultry products at this year's county fair. Mr. Fuller, in addition to being the live secretary of the Ashland chamber of commerce, is also secretary manager of the Southern Oregon Poultry Breeders' association, whose poultry and pet stock show is one of the most important to poultry raisers, held during the fair circuits. Mr. Fuller is also an authority on poultry, being a breeder himself.

Miss Ada Brewster of the O. A. C. home demonstration staff will judge flowers, as indicated in a letter from the college received by the fair board this morning. Miss Brewster will also judge culinary and domestic art. Mrs. Jessie D. McComb, head of the domestic science division at O. A. C., will be in Klamath during the fair and will deliver a little talk to interested housewives for an hour daily, indicating why certain awards for exhibits were made and pointing out the omissions or faults which cause displays to lose first place, from a judge's standpoint.

At the PINE TREE

The astounding situation that arises as a result of a father and son loving the same woman—a grasping, lovely 17y of the field that neither toiled nor spun—constitutes the theme of "My Wife and I," which will be shown at the Pine Tree tonight.

The plot concerns itself rather unusually with the appalling entanglement one little cuddlesome doll-baby creates in a highly respectable Long Island home. Both the father and the son court Betty with all that money can buy, until her unreasoning jealousy brings about a startling denouement when wife, husband, son and the gold-digger realize the abyss they have managed to escape.

Miss Elizabeth Manning and Miss Katharine Ulrich returned this afternoon from Eugene where they have been the house guests of friends for the past week.

Brownsville Store Acquires Lease on The La Vogue Shop

With the selling of the lease of the La Vogue shop, by M. I. Blotcky, the Brownsville Woolen Mills company will take possession of the store on Main and Fourth shortly after the middle of September, according to an announcement made today by Mr. Blotcky, proprietor of the store, which is one of a chain of shops which he operates.

After closing out the ladies' ready to wear stock by Mr. Blotcky, which will continue until the 12th of September, it is the intention of the Brownsville people, who will handle everything in men's wearing apparel, to have the store remodeled and install new fixtures.

It is the present intention of Mr. Blotcky to discontinue this ladies' shop. After a few days business in Sacramento he will return here to finish his business affairs before returning south.

Stolen Auto Found But License Gone

Not far from the camp, the touring car stolen Tuesday night from Gerald Buck, was recovered yesterday with everything intact with the exception of the license plates. The automobile, thought to have been taken by the robbers that robbed six bunk houses at the Ewauna camp the same night, was taken from Pelican Bay camp No. 1 14 miles north of Ewauna camp.

At The LIBERTY

Tonight is the last performance of "The Arizona Romeo" at the Liberty theatre after pleasing capacity audiences during the run of the picture. It is a combination story of the East and West but proves that "sometimes the twain do meet." Lucy Fox supports the ever popular and picturesque Buck Jones, who has surrounded himself with the best cast ever assembled for one of his productions. The picture was directed by Edmund Mortimer from an original story by Charles Kenyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil S. Locke of Aberdeen, Washington, visited here over Thursday and left this morning for a trip to Crater Lake.

Wocus Valley Is Inspected Today By Crops Expert

The fertile land of Wocus valley was taken as an example today by E. R. Jackman, farm crops specialist of O. A. C. as what reclaimed marsh land can produce in Klamath. At 1:30 p. m. Mr. Jackman, with a number of interested farmers, land owners, and County Agent C. A. Henderson, left for Wocus valley to spend the afternoon in studying soil conditions and inspecting the lettuce crop, the grain crop and various wild grasses which abound on the 5000 acres included in the valley.

Mr. Jackman arrived in Klamath Falls this morning from Corvallis and will remain here tomorrow to confer with potato growers of Klamath on problems with which they have been confronted this growing season.

Roger Torrey Is Stopped on Speen Charge Yesterday

A half a mile a minute is perfectly all right on the highways but on interesting ones of a city, it is a different matter, was the decision of R. E. Knowles, county traffic officer, as he followed Roger Torrey speeding up Esplanade 30 miles an hour yesterday afternoon.

He checked Torrey at 30 miles as he crossed several intersections just before reaching the railroad bridge and then stopped him. Torrey is to appear in justice court to answer to the complaint Monday.

That part of motor traffic rules which pertains to parking on the highway, was ignored by H. F. Buck, and he frankly admitted it yesterday afternoon to acting justice of the peace Ed endall. He paid a fine of $5 and costs.

New Auto Supply Co. to Maintain High Standards

The same high standard that characterizes their stores in 125 towns on the Pacific coast will be maintained in the new store of the Western Auto Supply company that will be established in the McCarthy building, is the promise of George Pepperdine, founder and president of the automobile supply company.

"Our new store in Klamath Falls will operate exactly as other "Western Auto" stores operate," Mr. Pepperdine said. "It will carry the same stock of modern up to date merchandise at the same pleasing prices that prevail in all of our other stores."

"I am certain that our new addition to the commercial establishments of Klamath Falls will be a decided asset to the city and I have no doubt that this new store will, as our other stores have done, show a good account of itself from the very start."

Mr. Pepperdine organized the present company in 1916 with one small store. Since that time approximately one additional store a month has been established on the Pacific coast.

attempt to buy a city water plant, or to compel it to place its maze of wires in underground conduits and pay the city a reasonable and justifiable rental for the use of the streets.

Opens Purse-Strings

That is why—according to reliable report—that the California Oregon Power company has agreed to open wide its purse strings and join with the Southern Pacific and its group of lumbermen supporters in an attempt to overthrow the Goddard regime.

The voting public will await with interest the result of the efforts of the "lesser lights" who are actually circulating the petitions. If the combined corporate influence of the California Oregon Power company, the Southern Pacific and the 18 "willful" lumbermen is sufficient to muster the required names to a recall petition, Klamath Falls can look forward to a political campaign reminiscent of the days when the city had an ample supply of court houses.
