Rourk Matrimonial Bark Is on Rocks; Wife Disarms Mate

A God-given muscular physique saved Bessie C. Rourk, prominent resident of Crescent, from serious injury and perhaps death at the hands of her husband, according to Mrs. Bessie Rourk who this morning filed suit for divorce from her husband, E. G. Rourk.

Mrs. Rourk, who conducts a store and hotel at Crescent, told of her husband making threats on her life during June of 1924, and how he wielded a gun in a threatening manner.

Mrs. Rourk, the complaint set forth, took the matter into her own hands and after a brief struggle disarmed her husband. But she is again frightened because he has secured another revolver and renewed his threats to take her life, she alleges.

The couple have been married for 26 years and are the parents of a fifteen-year-old girl. Mrs. Rourk asks that she be given the custody of the minor child.

Mr. Rourk is well known throughout the county. He was formerly a deputy sheriff of Crescent until his ill health prevented him from discharging his duties. During the past few months he has been in bed for medical attention.

WILL WOOD SUES FOR BACK PAY

Will Wood, former manager of the Southern Oregon Drug company, today brought suit for back wages which he claims are due him as manager of the local concern.

Wood sets forth that he was hired as manager of the Southern Oregon Drug company in 1921 at $175 a month and that the company for which he worked has not paid him his wages for several years. He claims that there is due him $6950.

Wood recently resigned as manager of the drug concern. He is a co-defendant with the drug company he formerly worked with in a damage suit brought against the company charging negligence in filling out a prescription.

At the PINE TREE

In "The Man Without a Conscience" the attraction tonight at the Pine Tree theatre, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, June Marlowe, John Patrick, Robert Agnew, William Orlamond and Helen Dunbar, have roles that allow them opportunity to make characterization which will stand out in the picture. The opportunities of each player seem to be more equally divided than the average picture, which indicates that this all-star cast, is a tremendous success. June Marlowe in particular is attracting a lot of attention because of the great part assigned to one so young, and under the guidance of her director, James Flood, is creating a characterization as Ann Sherman which will surely place this player among the first rank of young actresses.

At The LIBERTY

It's been some time since so exciting a picture has been shown, but the Liberty theatre, certainly picked a "winner" when they booked "Where Romance Rides," to be shown tonight.

Although full of beam scraps and blood-stirring action, the thread of charming romance runs throughout.

The many movie fans who follow Hatton, will find all the thrills and stunts and fights and schemes that can be crammed into a five-reeler.

Gubser Knocking Over One Coyote Daily in Summer

If it were possible to trap coyotes throughout the year, one government trapper could display 365 pelts as the result of his activities in Klamath this year toward the control of the predatory animal menace.

H. H. Gubser, government trapper, for the United States Biological survey, has been chalking up a record of a coyote a day for some time.

His work carries him through the Malin district and out east toward Bonanza. Owing to finances raised by sheep owners, the trapper is able to maintain an automobile and thus enlarge the scope of his activities.

PARK BOARD TO MEET

An important meeting of the Klamath Falls city park board will be held in the council chambers at the city hall tonight at 8 o'clock, at which time further matters in connection with the sale of the Riverside park to the Southern Pacific and Oregon Trunk railroads will be up for discussion.

WILL NOT FIRE GAME DEPUTIES

Klamath Employees of State Game Commission to be Kept on Payroll

Klamath county employees of the state game commission will not lose their jobs under the new regime just so long as they attend to business, stay out of politics and do not violate any laws.

This is the word received by them in a letter from E. F. Averill, newly appointed state game warden. The letter follows:

"It is very apparent that an organized attempt is being made to discredit the work of the game department by circulating statements to the effect that the entire force of employees is to be reorganized on a political basis. I have been instructed by the Oregon state game commission to advise you that all such statements are false.

"The commission at its meeting held August 19 authorized me to say to you that the force is not to be reorganized on a political or any other kind of basis, and that so long as each employe does his work faithfully and efficiently, refrains from every kind of political activity and does not violate any of the laws of the state or nation, his services will be continued.

"I realize you have been more or less disturbed by the reports that you were to lose your positions and that you have thereby been hampered in the performance of your duties. I certainly hope you will take the statements contained in this letter at their face value and from now on give your undivided attention to your work.

"For myself, I ask only the same loyal cooperation that you extended my predecessor and I feel sure that as we become better acquainted, our relationship in the work will be mutually pleasant and satisfactory."

The game commission as now constituted is determined to carry on with renewed vigor the work of propagation and protection of game birds and fish in order that there may be more and better hunting throughout the state, the new state game warden remarks in his letter.
