Local Fighter Defeats Olsen

Earl Ritchie Gets Technical K. O. Over Swede

Fight fans at Scandinavian hall Saturday night saw Sammy Olsen, heavy-sitting Galesburg Swede, get the worst of a scheduled ten-round fight with Earl Ritchie, local heavy-weight.

Olsen was outit throughout the fight and in the eighth round the referee called for the sponge from Olsen's manager. Olsen's eye was so badly cut just above the eye-ball that to have continued might have resulted in serious injury.

Both fighters showed no inclination to stall. Throughout there was evidenced a desire to swap wallops at all times. Ritchie put up a better fight than at any previous showing here and weathered some hard punches. He carried the fight all the way.

The semi-windup stole honors from the headliners, when slugging Kid Starkey gave an artistic lacing to Duke Evans of San Francisco.

Evans was willing to fight. He outweighed Starkey and evidently figured the battle was his. His awakening came early in the first round and from then on he tried every rifice he knew in an endeavor to lead the lighter man into leaving an opening.

Evans was knocked down once before taking the final count in the fourth round.

The special event, featuring Chuck Sams of Kelso, and Stanley Morse, was uninteresting. Sams received the referee's verdict the decision being boobyed by the crowd.

Babe Lightfoot, outweighed, got a draw with Billy Ezell in the curtain raiser. A good house saw the contests.
