EARL HUMPHREY INJURED
Son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Humphrey Escapes Serious Injuries
Earl Humphrey, well known local young man, who is connected with the Westinghouse people in Los Angeles, escaped what might have proven fatal injuries the first of the week when he fell from a ladder, ten feet to the cement floor, striking upon his head. In the fall he sprained his foot, bruised his arm and it was found necessary to take stitches in his head. At first it was feared he had suffered internal injuries, the attending physicians taking him to the hospital where he remained for two days. Word from him, which was received by Mrs. Humphrey this morning, tells of his steady improvement. He visited here for several weeks this summer.

Post Story Tells of Central Oregon

Central Oregon cattle men are depicted in a fiction story, "Cleaning the Craig Clan," which appears in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post. The story is by Victor Shawe, widely known short story writer.

The scenes are laid in the cattle ranges near Prineville and at the annual county fair. Some of the traditions of Central Oregon cattlemen are revealed in the story, which will give this part of the state world-wide publicity.
