KLAMATH SHOWS RAPID STRIDES

George N. Angell of The Oregon Farmer Tells of Improvements Seen

"Klamath has made great strides during the two years since I first came here to the county fair," said George N. Angell of The Oregon Farmer, who attended the fair last week and has been spending three days since looking over the agricultural situation here with County Agent C. A. Henderson. "The evidence of development is everywhere, both in city and country, and I am more and more impressed with the agricultural possibilities of this great 'empire awakening,'" he said. "As the timber disappears, you will need to fall back more and more on other products of the soil, and every forward-looking movement toward increasing those resources will tell in later years."

At the county fair, Angell was particularly impressed by the livestock, farm crops, and club exhibits, although he said that the floral, community and women's exhibits also did great credit to so young a fair. The size and quality of the club exhibits he considered merely another evidence of the efficiency of Frank Sexton, club leader, who he says is without a superior in that work in Oregon. "The county, in fact, is fortunate in its extension service agents for there is not a more active or better posted county agriculturist in the state than Henderson." The excellence of the beef cattle display, the presence for the first time of an Ayrshire exhibit, and the high quality of some of the dairy animals, particularly of A. Pinell's young Holstein bull, all helped to make the livestock show a good one, the visitor said, and the farm crops exhibit, particularly of potatoes, was one of the best he had seen. The commercial display of Nettle Gums and their subsequent sale at auction he considered a feature which other fairs might well adopt.

"Klamath is to be congratulated on the fact that for the first time some of its livestock was shown at neighboring fairs, as well as on the fact that this livestock won heavily at Grants Pass. It will win at Medford, and I look for the time when there will be considerable interchange of exhibits between fairs in the southern tier of counties, including Lake, Klamath, Jackson and Josephine, and it will be a fine thing for all of them when this is established. Klamath county has the stuff to show, as was very evident from the general exhibits made last year at the Jackson county and Oregon State fairs, where they attracted a great deal of attention."

"The Oregon Farmer is much interested in new agricultural ventures and it will watch closely future developments in the lettuce and sugar beet growing industries here, which although still very young, give great promise. A sugar beet factory here would be a great boon to dairying, and dairying always has been and I think will be the greatest stabilizer known to agriculture. Another enterprise that seems more than worth while is the Klamath Federated Community Clubs board. I know of nothing like it elsewhere but it appears to furnish just the contact necessary between city and country and I shall hope to see the plan adopted in many other counties."

Hovey Buys More Timber Near Bly

Ten thousand dollars was the sum of money paid by Richard H. Hovey for a 500 acre tract of timber in the extreme eastern section of Klamath county.

The timber buyer purchased the tract from J. T. Tufts yesterday. The tract is located eight miles direct north of Bly and is right along the Sprague river.

Another tract in the eastern part of the county was purchased from C. I. Eckman for $1000. The timber acreage was 160 acres.

The two Hoveys, Chester L. and Richard H., have by careful and steady buying acquired an immense body of timber in the eastern section and are now rated among the largest timber owners in the county.

That the timber buyers are not anticipating manufacturing the pine is generally conceded, as it is known that they are buying the timber as an investment.

MRS. WILLITS RETURNS
Mrs. L. F. Willits returned yesterday from Talent, where she has been for the past two weeks visiting with her mother, Mrs. Alford. The elderly lady has been in poor health for some time.
