

KELSO ENGINEER FORMALLY HELD IN MURDER CASE

George H. Norris Charged
With Slaying of Thomas
Dovey, Editor

RELEASED ON BONDS

Friends of Accused Man Deposit $40,000 to Insure
His Appearance

KEISO, Wash. 24.—George H. Norris, city engineer was bound over to the superior court on a charge of conspiracy to murder Thomas Dovey, Kelso editor, at a preliminary hearing last night before Justice McCoy, at Castle Rock. The hearing was not marked by any demonstration. Norris was released on $40,000 bail.

Mrs. Julia Price, who conducts an auto camp at Kelso, was the principal witness last night, testifying that she heard the shot that killed Dovey, June 19, and saw a man run through her park, and recognized him as the Kelso city engineer, though she did not know his name at the time.

The hearing last night was conducted by prosecuting attorney Hito Imus.

Following his return to Kelso last night, A. Ruric Todd, deposed mayor, and complainant in the charge filed against Norris, was served with a fourth warrant charging malicious persecution. He arranged for bonds, and was released at midnight.

Navy Officers View Wreckage Of Shenandoah

Seek to Form Clear
Idea of Collapse
Of Ship

LAKE HURST, N. J., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Wreckage of the airship Shenandoah was inspected today by the naval members so that they might form a clearer idea of the survivors as to just what happened within the big ship when she broke up in a storm over Ohio, September 3, with a loss of 14 officers and men.

Survivors explained to the court details regarding the ship's construction and the function of the various pieces of wreckage which had been laid out on the floor of the hangar here in the relative position in which it was in the original hull.

Included in the salvage were the five engines of the air fighting craft, all of them considerably damaged as a result of their fall; parts of the framing, much of it twisted; control and other wires; fragments of the control car; some of the automatic and maneuvering valves for releasing helium, some of them damaged by the fall, as well as parts of the covering bag, the gas cells and even blankets used by members of the crew.

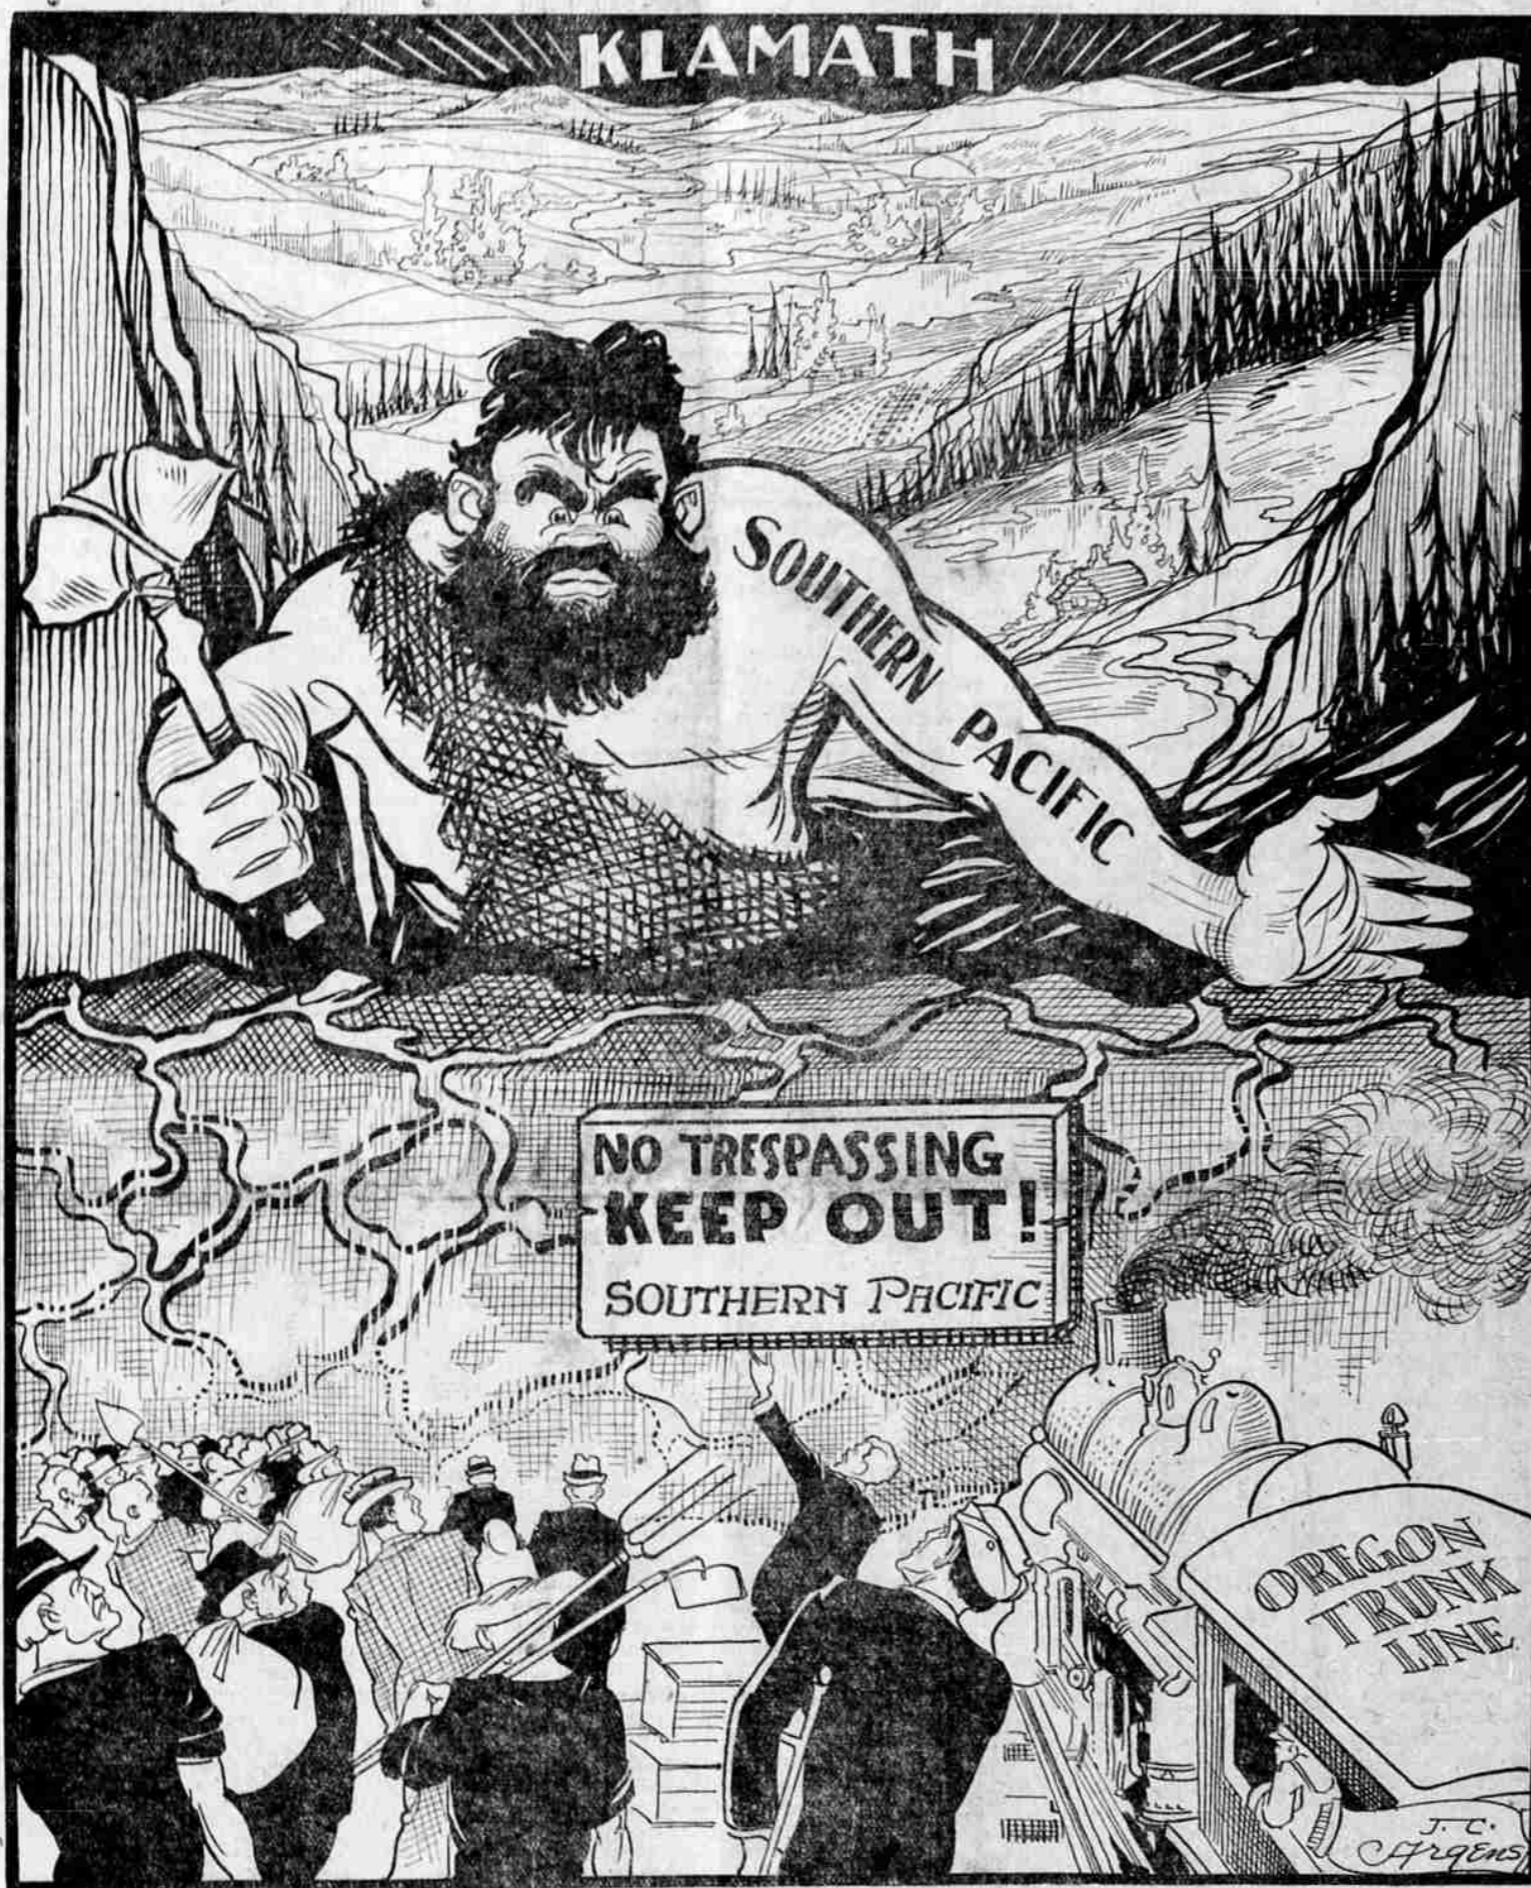

Naval Fliers Are Welcomed

Commander Rodgers
And Crew Reach
Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The battleship Idaho, bearing Commander John Rodgers and four members comprising the crew of the naval seaplane PN-9 No. 1, entered the Golden Gate at 8:30 a. m. today and headed for Man-O-War row, along the Embarcadero. The Idaho was conveyed by a fleet of small craft, while overhead circled and dipped a fleet of aircraft.

The Golden Gate along both shores was lined with cheering and flag-waving crowds anxious to get the first glimpse of Commander Rodgers and his crew, while the Embarcadero and Market streets were swarming with other crowds bent on welcoming home the intrepid fliers who winged their way through the Golden Gate more than three weeks ago on the attempted flight to Honolulu.

Readers Favor Changing Name

Voting Brisk For First
Day on "Klamath"
Question

For "Klamath Falls"40
For "Klamath"47

Evening Herald readers favor changing the name of Klamath Falls to Klamath. At least, this was indicated when ballots printed yesterday afternoon were counted at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Voting was even more brisk than had been expected, indicating that residents of the city are taking genuine interest in the movement which was launched recently by the Rotary Club.

One man protested against both Klamath Falls and Klamath and suggested that the city be known as "Linkville." Unquestionably, he was a resident of Linkville in the pioneer days and is guided in his decision by early traditions.

The voting ballot will be run for one week on the front page of The Herald, and those who have not stated their preference are urged to cut out the ballot today and either mail or bring it to the Herald office.

When the voting is completed, all ballots will be delivered to the chamber of commerce where they may be filed with the referendum vote taken by the chamber of commerce members.

So if you haven't voted, do it now. Mark an X before your preference, sign your name and get your ballot to the Herald office.

Which Do You Want—

"Klamath Falls" or "Klamath"?

- ()—I favor changing the city's name to Klamath.
- ()—I oppose any change in the name of Klamath Falls.

Engineer at State Capitol Succumbs

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 24.—Jacob Warner, 54 year old, who for 13 years has been chief engineer at the state capitol, died suddenly early today from a heart attack.

Mr. Warner had been in ill health for some time, and had been away from his work for several weeks, but went to his apron at the state house this morning. He became helplessly ill about 6:30 o'clock and a physician was called. He was removed to his home, 507 North 20th St., where he died.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Members of the Kiwanis club have taken no action with reference to the movement to change the name of Klamath Falls to Klamath. It was reported yesterday that the club favored the shorter name, but Kiwanis officials today said the question had not been formally presented and voted on by the club.

Seek Vandal Who Killed Deer for Horns and Skin

(Special to The Herald)

YREKA, Calif., Sept. 24.—If the identity of the San Francisco hunter who killed a six point mule tail deer, six miles east of Pamlico State mountain, in the Modoc lava beds near the Oregon-California line, for its horns and cape is learned, a warrant will be issued for him.

Deputy Fish and Game Commissioner William Lippincott who investigated the slaughter of the animal and found its decayed carcass trampled by a deer, declared that he would ask for a jail sentence for the vandal, if he is caught. The deer was recently killed and stripped of its horns and cape while the meat was allowed to go to waste. The hunter was seen with his trophy but his name was not secured.

EARTH TREMORS FELT

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two strong earthquake shocks were felt today at Averzano, 55 miles east of Rome, causing considerable alarm.

Searchers Abandon All Hope Of Finding Missing Farmer Alive

Hope of finding Martin Owensby, Merrill rancher, in the wooded slopes of Huckleberry mountain was abandoned this morning by a search party of four men who have been tracking the forests for several days in an attempt to find the missing man.

Somewhere in the vast black forest of pines in Crater National park or just outside the boundary, Owensby lies dead or dying, it is the belief of searchers who have been using Anna Springs camp in Crater Lake park as their supply depot.

Four men believed the search to be hopeless. Another party believes there is still a chance and is beating the brush and seeking for signs of foot tracks underneath the tall pines.

Searchers finally located Owensby's first camp, after he left Huckleberry city. It became known today. But tracks or other signs leading from the camp were not uncovered. It is on the strength of finding this camp that the second searching party is continuing to comb the wilderness. The camp was located a mile from Huckleberry mountain.
