At the PINE TREE

The phrase "all-star cast" may well have been invented to describe the personnel of the First National production "Single Wives," which comes to the Pine Tree Theatre Tuesday. The featured roles are played by Corrine Griffith and Milton Sills, who are seen together on the screen for the first time. Miss Griffith plays the part of Betty Jordan, a role said to be especially suited to her and one giving her excellent opportunity to depict the sort of roles that have made her famous. Milton Sills plays opposite Corrine Griffith in a role different than anything he has heretofore essayed. In this picture he will be seen as a modern business man in contrast to his work in "The Sea Hawk"—the husband who is nettled in his home and business, who has left behind him some of that glamour and romance that belong to youth and the days of courtship.

At The LIBERTY

Lurking figures slinking stealthily through the shrubbery, doors opening unexpectedly, secret panels closing suddenly, a hooded what-it turning on the current for the electric chair, fights, steel traps, comedy, suspense—and "The Monster" at the Liberty makes its bow. It's a thrilling mystery film, with Lou Chaney as the suave Dr. Ziska, who frightens his victims and sends ecstatic chills through the audience. Johnny Arthur as the amateur detective is a delight. Johnny takes a few drinks—and the subsequent situations are a riot. There are plenty of laughs, despite the weirdness of the plot, and the picture is highly entertaining.—Rose Pelswick in The Evening Journal.

U. S. Weather Report

Oregon generally fair with moderate temperature tonight and Tuesday. Light northerly winds.
