S. P. STARTS TO GIVE TESTIMONY IN RAIL BATTLE

Eastern Extension by Way of Alturas Sought from Federal Commission

STRAHORN TESTIFIES

President of O. C. & E. tells what he planned when he started in 1915

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 8.—(A.P.)—Testimony in the I. C. C. hearing here on railroad development switched from Oregon to California today, as Director Charles Mahaffie took up the application of the Southern for extensions in the northern California after the Hill roads completed their case in behalf of their proposed extension from Bend to Klamath Falls.

The Southern Pacific's case was begun after Director Mahaffie refused the request of that railroad that the Oregon public service commission should put its testimony before the Southern Pacific produced its witness.

J. F. Shaughnessy of Carson City, Nevada, president of the Nevada railroad and public service commission, spoke in favor of an extension of the Central Pacific (Southern Pacific) from Klamath Falls to Alturas, California.

Strahorn on Stand

Robert E. Strahorn, builder of the Oregon, California and Eastern railroad in the southern part of Oregon, spoke in support of extending his lines from Sprague river to Silver Lake and also to Lakeview, Bonanza and Williamson river. He told of his struggles to finance this undertaking.

"I was attending a big railroad mass meeting at Bend in 1915, when a delegation of leading citizens from Klamath Falls came and asked me to go down there and study their transportation needs," said Strahorn.

Came to Klamath

"I went to Klamath Falls, made a careful survey of the situation and planned a line from there to Bend and to Lakeview. From the moment it was found the Klamath Falls project might be a success, the lumbermen of Bend began to oppose it.

"Mr. Shevlin of the great Shevlin-Hixon company repeatedly told me personally that they could not stand for the southern extension of the railroad," said Strahorn. "My friends who were in business in Bend at the time were threatened if they continued to favor building a railroad south they would suffer."

Plans Approved

He said that about this time the chambers of commerce of the state took a vote on the desirability of building his proposed Klamath Falls-Bend-Lakeview railroad and every chamber of commerce in Oregon favored it but Bend.

The story of Klamath Falls' cooperation was told. A $300,000 bond issue was voted and given him, right of way to Sprague river was promised as well as a terminal site in Klamath Falls and certain needed municipal franchises.

Mortgaged Home

"Only one half of the right of way was furnished and the same amount of the terminal site given," Strahorn said. "And some of the franchisees are lacking. I am not complaining about Klamath Falls because the people there attempted this, but it made me shoulder more troubles. Rather than let the entire project fall and the people lose their $300,000 bond issue, I had to carry on. I then strained my credit to the very utmost and even mortgaged my home in Spokane to take the road up to Sprague river."

He declared that before he started his new work he consulted with the chief officials of the Hill and Harri-

Salesman Held Up On Highway East Of Salem

A. G. Bach of San Francisco Victim of Outlaw

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 8.—A highway robbery on the open road and in broad daylight with A. G. Bach of San Francisco, a tobacco salesman, the victim, was perpetrated on Silverton road about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Bach was relieved of $75.

Bach was driving along the paved highway when another car drew alongside, the driver signalling Bach to stop, which he did. The other motorist asked the direction to McMinnville, and while Bach was giving him the information he suddenly pulled a gun and ordered Bach to get out of the car. After the stranger had gone through Bach's pockets and taken his money, he ordered Bach to step aside. The robber then jumped into his own car and sped away. The license tags on his automobile were covered so their numbers could not be obtained, by Bach. He furnished a description of the man for the police.

Murray To Ask For Acquittal

Convict Claims Abuse Justified His Escape

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 8.—In keeping with the surprises and thrills which have marked his entire career of crime the defense of Tom Murray alleged leader of the three convicts who shot their way out of the Oregon prison August 12, killing two guards, did the unexpected again in outlining their case yesterday afternoon.

Instead of basing his case upon extenuating circumstances and seeking a verdict less severe than first degree murder, as had been intimated in his opening statements and generally anticipated, Will R. King, chief counsel for the defense, told the jury that he expected to present evidence substantiating an acquittal on the grounds that Murray was so mistreated and persecuted during his confinement in the prison as to place his life in jeopardy, and to justify him in seeking to escape even at the cost of taking a human life to secure his liberty.

King in describing to the jury the various degrees of murder and the verdicts they were authorized by the law to find, explained that there were extenuating circumstances which, if not justifying acquittal, would amply supply finding a guilt of second degree murder or manslaughter.

Associated Press Founder Eulogized

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(A.P.)—A tribute to Victor Fremont Lawson was adopted unanimously yesterday by the board of directors of the Associated Press as the first action of the first meeting held since his death.

Besides eulogizing him as a true American, a Christian gentleman and a courageous newspaperman and a tower of wisdom and strength, the directors ordered Mr. Lawson's portrait reproduced in a steel engraving and a copy sent to every member of the Associated Press, which he founded.

Due to a typographical error in K. Sugarman's advertisement in yesterday's Lumberman, boy's overalls were priced at 60c a pair. The price should have been 85c a pair.

BURGLAR'S TRY AT LOOTING OF HOTEL STOPPED

Attempted Robbery of the Arcade Pool Room frustrated Early Today

J. SHEEHAN ARRESTED

Screen and Window Broken, Find Man in Hiding Near Hostelry

Attempt to break into the Arcade hotel pool room was frustrated early this morning and Jerry Sheehan was arrested on a charge of attempted burglary.

A screen had been torn away and a window on the east side of the hotel broken, when the night clerk at the Arcade hotel called Patrolmen Mitchell and Patterson.

The two officers rushed around the corner of the hotel and found Sheehan hiding underneath a platform in the rear of the monument works on the corner of Eleventh and Main streets. Sheehan was placed under arrest and lodged in jail. According to police he was in an intoxicated condition.

That Sheehan attempted to persuade him to allow him to escape, was the statement this noon of Patrolman Mitchell, who with Patterson marched Sheehan down to jail. "He tried to shroshan me to let him go," Mitchell said, "but I told him nothing doing."

Sheehan is well known in Klamath Falls, but so far as is known by authorities, has not been in serious trouble before.

Rancher to Serve 8 Years in Prison

DALLAS, Ore., Oct. 8.—Carl Frakes Polk county rancher who pleaded guilty to shooting at E. C. Kirkpatrick, former county judge of Polk county with intent to kill, was this morning sentenced to serve not exceeding eight years in the state penitentiary by Circuit Judge Ramsey.

Maccoel Now Over Smallpox Epidemic

YREKA, Calif., Oct. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following several weeks of a smallpox epidemic, Macdoel is gradually resuming the even tenor of his ways.

The disease was no respecter of persons and business and professional men found themselves quarantined while the disease progressed mildly through the district. No fatalities were reported and the most confusion came when disinfection began and where, in some instances, more than 50 pounds of sulfur poured volumes of smoke to eradicate any danger of the return of the disease. The schools continue with filled classes.

Klamath Indian Wins Acquittal

C. Reynolds Mose of Chiloquin Found Not Guilty of Forgery

MEDFORD, Ore., Oct. 8.—C. Reynolds Mose of Chiloquin was acquitted late yesterday after twenty minutes deliberation by the jury in the federal district court in session here, of forging and passing a check on a Chiloquin storekeeper. He was defended by two Klamath Falls lawyers while United States District Attorney Nouner and Stearns of Portland represented the government.

A battery of photographers surrounded Coveleskie as he warmed while another group of photographers took snapshots of Vic Aldridge as he got into condition for Pittsburgh. Coveleskie did not seem to show any difficulty in his pitching motion because of a recent muscle strain in his back. Aldridge employed a wide curve and it was evident that he was going to follow the plan of Meadows in feeding the Senators with deceptive hooks. This was considered good strategy that McKeehan because the American League is mostly a fast ball league, its pitchers depending on speed largely.

Reduce Loads On Automobile Trucks, Edict

Paving And Construction Work to be Impeded

Construction and street paving activities will be seriously impeded this fall as the result of a state highway regulation which goes into effect October 15, lowering the maximum truck load limit from 22,000 pounds to 16,500 pounds. Announcement of the new regulation was made today from the state highway office.

Owing to wet weather, the regulation, lowering truck load weight, is going into effect a full month earlier than last year. It will slow up street paving operations now in progress. W. D. Milles Construction company which is hauling gravel and the Warren Construction company which is hauling paving material over the Dallas-California highway to Klamath Falls must cut down their loads to meet the new regulation.

The regulation will affect truck hauling over the Dallas-California highway to the south and north of Klamath Falls, the Ashland-Klamath Falls highway, the Klamath Falls-Lakeview highway, the Klamath entrance to Crater Lake and the Prineville-Lakeview highway, besides other principal highways throughout the state.

The state highway regulation was prompted by the necessity of protecting the highway against disintegration during the rain season. It remains in effect till April 15, 1926.

More Than 400 Wild Fans Get Baseball Dope

Evening Herald Service At Pine Tree Draws Crowds

More than 400 baseball fans were guests of the Evening Herald today at the play-by-play Associated Press report of the game at the Pine Tree theatre.

Almost from the start the game was a thriller, and Jack Framy, who did the announcing, kept the crowd in good humor as the telegraph instrument on the theatre stage clicked off the plays direct from Forbes field.

In the eighth and ninth innings when the result of the game hung in the balance, the fans went wild until the final flash came, announcing that Pittsburgh had won.

Because of the cooperation of Harry Poole, owner of the theatre, this unexcelled service will be given Klamath's baseball fans throughout the series. They can sit in comfortable chairs, talking and laughing and smoking and cheering while the plays are flashed by the Associated Press wire direct to the theatre.

The two teams will meet in Washington tomorrow, and all fans who want to "see" the game as guests of the Evening Herald can wander down to the Pine Tree and get it all from start to finish for nothing. The mugs calls the first batter up promptly at 11 o'clock, local time.

Pendleton Man Dead In Crash

Loses Control of Auto; Skull is Fractured

PENDLETON, Oct. 8.—Jack Bertoni of Pendleton died last night at 10:55 as the result of injuries sustained late yesterday afternoon on the Old Oregon Trail near Pendleton when his automobile went over a bank. Bertoni was on his way to a quarry where he had charge of the blasting and taking out of rock for the county road work. About three miles out of town he believed that he lost control of his car, the machine going over in the loose gravel, fracturing Bertoni's skull.
